PRIVATE BRAIN TRUST WATCHES WALLACE AIDS

Rockefellers, Others Making Surveys.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—A private brains trust, backed by Rockefeller money, is inspecting the work of the professors at the department of agriculture. That was learned today.

Washington has become accustomed to professors running the government, instructing the farmers and bankers and statesmen and manufacturers how to operate their businesses. A new wrinkle has developed, however, with this private brains trust overseeing the work of the Roosevelt-Wallace-Tugwell brains trust.

To make it more interesting, the Rockefeller fund managers have selected as the directors of their professorial surveillance two pedagogical experts who were the chief economists for the late and unlamented farm board of former President Hoover.

May Oppose Tugwell Ideas.

The Rockefeller experts charged with the task of inspecting the Roosevelt farm program are Prof. Joseph S. Davis and Prof. John D. Black.

To the taxpayers who observed the ill fated course of the Hoover farm board, with its fruitless waste of many millions, it may appear that little value can be attached to the Rockefellers' present aims. But the two experts in question are declared to be strongly opposed to the Tugwellian theory now being experimented with at federal expense. And one wag, paraphrasing the old saw, remarked in a comforting way: "O, well, set a brains truster to catch a brains truster."

Some additional Rockefeller millions are to be spent, it was learned, along similar lines of observation. The Brookings institution, a Washington organization engaged in research, is using the Rockefeller money to study the national industrial recovery administration, and also to study banking reforms, as well as to act as the center of the investigation of the agricultural methods.

Business Men Plan Survey.

Other citizens and organizations also are taking steps to keep an eye on the Roosevelt policies and activities, it was made known. The United States Chamber of Commerce announced that it is setting up committees of business mer to study government taxation and expenditures, money reforms, and banking changes. The committees are yet to be named.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has consented to the creation of the professoriat over his own professoriat, it was learned, even though it is to be directed by the Hoover economists.

It is understood that sufficient funds are available to set up a nation-wide investigating staff, to dispatch observers into the cotton and wheat fields, to check economic formulae put forth by Prof. Tugwell, Prof. Mordecai Ezekiel, and other specialists in the Wallace department.

From Hoover's Present Home.

Prof. Davis has just come from Palo Alto, Cal., Mr. Hoover's home town, where he is head of the food research council at Stanford university, to take a position on the board of the independent investigation. Rated as a leading agriculture economist, he was picked by Hoover to be the first chief economist of the old farm board.

Although Prof. Davis is reported to have broken with the former President during the last campaign, the fact that he was chosen to work outside the new administration in spite of offers to join it is considered significant here, especially since he is said to be highly critical of the Roosevelt-Wallace-Tugwell experiment.

Prof. Black succeeded Davis as chief economist of the farm board after the latter had departed to head the Palo Alto food bureau. Associated with Black and Davis at the head of the new inquiry will be Prof. E. G. Nourse, agriculture economist of the Brookings institution.

A central staff comprising an expert for each of the agricultural commodity divisions such as wheat, corn, and hogs, etc., already has been set up in Washington. The groundwork of the investigation, however, will be done by 25 regional observers scattered about the country.

These observers will report to the central office of all the doings of the agricultural adjustment administration in the field. Marshall Harris of the University of Illinois has been chosen to watch the development of the officials' machinery in Illinois.

GIRL DROWNED MYSTERIOUSLY ON LAUNCH TRIP

Miss Bernice Wand, 32 years old, 4526 Sheridan road, a telephone operator, was drowned in Lake Michigan last night when she mysteriously fell off an 18 foot motor cruiser. The accident occurred a quarter mile out off 54th street.

Other occupants of the boat did not see Miss Wand drop into the water, although, police were told, they saw her struggling in the water a few minutes later and tried to save her.

On the boat besides Miss Wand were Spencer Barkley, an official of the Drake hotel; Mr. and Mrs. Russell M. Oliver, 725 East 92d place, and Mrs. W. K. Oliver, a sister-in-law of Oliver. Oliver owns the boat.

The party was cruising along the shore with all except Miss Wand below deck. She was sitting on top of the boat when last seen. Off 54th street one of the party noticed Miss Wand struggling in the water and called the others. The woman sank before rescue efforts could get sufficiently well under way. Oliver then turned the boat to harbor and notified Hyde Park police. The Jackson park coast guard station was informed and a search for Miss Wand's body was started. Neither Oliver nor Barkley could be reached last night to give further details of the drowning.

ARIZONA VOTES REPEAL TUESDAY; DRYS "MISSING"

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Arizona voters will ballot Tuesday on national prohibition and nominate a successor to Lewis W. Douglas, who resigned as representative in congress to become director of the federal budget.

Anti-repealist leaders concede fourteen delegates pledged for repeal of the 18th amendment will be chosen. The prohibitionists failed to obtain sufficient signers to petitions to place their candidates on the ballot. Twenty states have ratified the repeal amendment.

Two columns will appear on the ballots, however, and will be headed "For ratification" and "Against ratification." Drys may write in the names of their candidates.

The Democratic congressional nomination is sought by two men and a woman. They are Mrs. Isabella Greenway of Tucson, Democratic national committeewoman for Arizona; Harlow Akers, former state senator and Phoenix attorney; and William Coxon, former member of the state house of representatives.

British Flyer Reaches Faroes on Flight to U. S.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 6.—Nervousness over the domestic political situation tightened tonight concurrently with the revival of rumors that if Ireland's internal peace is threatened there is some possibility of fresh negotiations with Great Britain through South African mediators.

The situation tonight points toward next Sunday's threatened climax when Gen. Owen O'Duffy's blue shirted Irish national guard is scheduled to assemble on Leinster lawn here for a memorial service to Michael Collins, Arthur Griffin, and Kevin O'Higgins, martyred patriots.

Reports that the Free State was threatened by civil war today were characterized by President Eamon de Valera as "nonsense." The government admitted it was concerned over the national guard, declaring that its existence was embarrassing. But De Valero could not suppress the guard without being pressed to take action against the Irish Republican army, his political opponents pointed out.

Bans Parade in Uniforms.

The government has announced that Gen. O'Duffy's guard will not be permitted to parade in uniform. The question tonight is whether the guard will decide to ignore the order or whether they will appear in their blue shirts—concealed beneath their coats. There is the possibility of a governmental ban on any kind of assembly whatever.

Patrick J. Ruttledge, minister of justice, today said that while the guard at the government buildings is being strengthened, no separate force is contemplated. The men, he said, will be drawn from the army and the civic guards. He added that recruiting of guards will be resumed to fill their places.

Other sources insisted, however, that former members of the Irish Republican army are being taken into the new force, but this cannot be confirmed officially. Members of the new De Valera army are in plain clothes and carry revolvers. They were on duty at the government buildings tonight.

South African Visitor.

Talk of economic peace between the Free State and Britain centered on the presence in Ireland of N. C. Havenga, South African minister of finance. Mr. and Mrs. Havenga were entertained at lunch by President De Valera and later left for Killarney.

Gen. Jan Christian Smuts was active in his efforts to bring about an Anglo-Irish settlement during the world economic conference and is reported to have offered the offices of South African mediators in settling the dispute.

There is no indication of peace, however, beyond the South African activity.

PARACHUTE FAILS; 15,000 SEE YOUNG MOTHER KILLED

Mrs. Ruth York, 24 years old, a professional parachute jumper, fell 2,500 feet to her death near Aurora yesterday when her parachute failed to open after she had leaped from a plane. A picnic crowd of 15,000 saw the fatal jump.

The parachute jump was scheduled as an added feature of the Aurora Knights of Columbus outing at Exposition park after an acci... had interfered with the original feature. This was to have been a double parachute jump from a balloon by Dorothy and Dorothea Schuttler, 17 year old twins of North Aurora. Just before the balloon was to be sent up it caught fire.

Mrs. York was then asked to make a parachute jump from a plane so as not to disappoint the crowd. She agreed, and a few minutes later went up in a plane piloted by Paul Thornberry. At 2,500 feet Mrs. York stepped from the plane. The crowd looked on in horror when, after she had dropped more than 1,000 feet, it was evident she could not open the parachute. Mrs. York's body fell in an alfalfa field about a quarter of a mile from Aurora airport, where she had taken off. Mrs. York, a divorcé, was the mother of two children.

JAIL PRISONER SAVES LIFE OF HANGING VICTIM

When Carl Flobeck, 31 years old, 921 Addison street, a masseur, is arraigned in Town Hall court today the police who arrested him will recommend leniency because he saved a man's life yesterday. Flobeck was a cellmate of Thomas David, 22 years old, 600 Montrose avenue. Both were held for disorderly conduct in the Town Hall station. While Flobeck was asleep David hanged himself with his belt from the cell door. Flobeck awakened to find David apparently lifeless. He called Lockup Keeper Mark Jennings, who cut David down. Then Flobeck, employing his skill as a masseur, massaged and rubbed the apparently dead man until he revived him. David will recover. Doctors said he would not have survived without Flobeck's efforts.

TYPHOON STRIKES COREA; 78 DEAD AND 183 MISSING

TOKIO, Aug. 7 [Monday].—(AP)—Seventy-eight persons were known to have lost their lives and 183 were missing in the typhoon which struck two provinces in southern Corea last Thursday and Friday, said reports reaching vernacular newspapers today from Fusan, Corea. The returns were belated owing to disrupted communications. Two hundred and seventy-one small boats were washed away and 2,634 houses were destroyed or badly damaged.

HUNT GIRL IN DEATH OF YOUNG RAIL EXECUTIVE

Other Mysteries Are Being Searched.

New York, Aug. 6.—[Special.]—The body of a man, found yesterday buried head downward in a crude grave in a Long Island wilderness, has given the police the latest of a long list of mysterious murders, many of them still unsolved.

The victim was a railroad executive, highly connected in both business and social life. The body was identified as that of Henry F. Sanborn, general eastern representative of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, and the son of the late Walter H. Sanborn, member of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Leaves for Long Island.

Sanborn left his offices on July 17, saying "a man was waiting to take him out to Long Island." That was the last seen of him alive. His body showed that he had been beaten terrifically and that he had been shot in the breast.

The police immediately decided two things. First, that two or more men had been involved. The police added that Sanborn was of such build that one man could not have carried the body to the spot where it was found.

There was no sign of a struggle there. Sanborn was well over six feet, weighing more than 225 pounds.

The second police decision was to discard robbery as a motive. Of the $2,000 Sanborn had drawn from the bank the day before he disappeared, almost half was found in his pockets. His jewelry had not been disturbed.

Today the police are following out a dozen or more clews. They are reticent as to disclosing anything and say that Sanborn's association with hundreds of persons in business and social life give a large snarl of threads which must be untangled.

Seek Beautiful Girl.

They began a search for a beautiful Swedish girl living in Brooklyn, who they say was the fiancée of Sanborn. She is said to be a secretary to the head of a downtown brokerage house.

The fact that Sanborn was to make her his third bride is reported to have been bitterly resented by his family.

One statement which came from the police and which was immediately denied by the higher ups was that the girl had been located, that she had admitted she was with Sanborn on the day before he disappeared, despite the fact that he had broken their engagement shortly before that time.

The police previously had found nearly a dozen pictures of a nude blonde beauty, and one police report was that the Brooklyn girl had admitted the photographs were those of herself, taken by Sanborn on various intimate occasions.

The pictures of the photographed blonde were turned over to John J. Gallagher, inspector of police, in charge of the case, by detectives of the missing persons bureau today. They had been conducting a search for Sanborn.

Brewery Stock as Clew.

A second problem the authorities are trying to solve is a business deal involving a Connecticut brewery. In Sanborn's pockets were receipts for payments for stock in this venture. In this there enters the name of Bancroft Mitchell, investment counselor and son of William D. Mitchell, the attorney general in the cabinet of Herbert Hoover.

On July 22, five days after the disappearance of Sanborn, Mitchell and his wife sailed for Italy on the liner Rex. Police indicated they would make no attempt to reach him by wireless or on his landing.

The elder Mitchell tonight said his son and Sanborn had been interested in many deals together.

Rail Official Calls Police.

Another friend of Sanborn, Arthur S. Owens, railroad official who first notified the police of the disappearance and asked them to keep it out of public notice also is out of the city.

Still another angle which the police are interested in is why Sanborn, supposedly well to do, should give his address as a railroad branch of the Y. M. C. A. An official of his rank, they think, would hardly choose a residence there. They are trying to find if he had another place of abode.

After the announcement of the murder the secretary at the Y. M. C. A. would not permit a search of the room without court order, and such authority will be sought tomorrow.

It was around the beautiful girl that most of the investigation today

Cuba Crippled by Strike; Civil War Looms

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 6.—President Machado tonight moved to declare a state of civil war in Cuba as the general strike, in which several hundred thousand workmen have walked out, spread through the island, crippling virtually all activity.

One man was killed and three persons were wounded in the single outbreak of violence reported today. The casualties occurred on a Havana street corner. The victims were shot down by bullets from a submachine gun and a sawed off shotgun which were fired from a passing automobile.

Congress Meets Today.

President Machado will ask congress for authority to suspend constitutional guarantees and declare martial law at an emergency session tomorrow afternoon. Government officials said the draft of a decree proclaiming a state of civil war is ready for Machado's signature. Edicts issued by Secretary of the Interior Zubizarreta warned that military force would be used, if necessary, to end the strike.

Oppositionists, however, asserted that congress would not be able to muster a quorum tomorrow because of the lack of transportation facilities produced by the walkout.

United States Ambassador Sumner Welles raced the strike in an effort to complete his mediation program before the island is hurled into open revolution. After a conference with Machado and other government leaders today, however, he indicated that he regards the situation as most critical.

Awaits Developments.

"I have not decided on any emergency action," the United States envoy said. "I am awaiting decisive developments tomorrow."

Representatives of various labor federations and opposition political parties met with Machado this morning, but could reach no agreement to end the strike, the chief aim of which appears to be the ousting of the president.

Strikers maintained that they will continue "until Machado resigns." The president retorted that he will quash the revolution, "no matter what drastic measures are necessary and no matter what in' rests are hurt."

Transportation Paralyzed.

As the third day of the general strike ended, the island presented a sorry picture. Transportation in Havana and in other provinces was paralyzed. The United railway workers struck at midnight. Street car men, bus and taxi drivers in Havana quit last week.

Soldiers at Cienfuegos were guarding the cable, mail and telegraph offices and public buildings. The only automobiles on the streets were those of municipal and army officials and those of the Red Cross. Some ... residents rode horses and mules.

A food shortage loomed as restaurants, clubs and other eating places shut their doors. Boot... ing grocers are already raising prices 100 per cent on necessities.

Waiters, bartenders and servants in Havana hotels struck today, forcing many of the city's large hostelries to refuse admittance to further guests. Virtually all of the city's bars have been closed.

Garbage men who are employés of the public works department voted to strike tomorrow and the federated

FRENCH AIRMEN LAST REPORTED NEAR VIENNA

Gas Leak Hampers Record Seekers.

BULLETIN.

VIENNA, Aug. 7 (Monday).—(AP)—The Aspern, Austria, airport has been in contact with the French flyers, Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, since they passed over Munich, Germany, early today on their distance flight from New York. Although officials estimated the flyers would reach Vienna at 2:15 a. m. (8:15 p. m. Sunday, Chicago daylight saving time) they had not been sighted at 2:20 a. m. The wireless signals in the meantime had ceased and doubt was expressed that the machine was still aloft.

PARIS, Aug. 7 [Monday].—(AP)—A gasoline leak early today threatened the attempt of Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos to set a new distance record in their plane, the Joseph Le Brix, but they pushed on toward India after conquering rough weather on their New York-to-Paris flight.

Wireless advices to Le Bourget flying field, over which they passed yesterday at 2:20 p. m. [Chicago daylight saving time], said they continued to navigate under a clear sky in lower Austria. They were sighted over Munich at 6 p. m. [Chicago time].

9 Minutes Behind Lindy.

They gave their position at 1:52 a. m. [7:52 p. m. Chicago time yesterday] as about 20 miles west-southwest of Vienna. They declared they hoped to break the record despite the leak.

The French aces dipped over the airport at Le Bourget nine minutes behind Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's time of 33 hours 30 minutes from New York to Paris.

From their broad-winged Bleriot monoplane, the Joseph Le Brix, they dropped messages to their wives, who waved frantically to the airmen, and then pointed their ship eastward toward Munich.

Battled Rough Weather.

Rossi and Codos had covered more than 3,500 miles since they made a perfect takeoff from Floyd Bennett field, New York, at 4:41 a. m. [Chicago time] Saturday.

Their heavy plane battled rough weather during most of the flight over the North Atlantic great circle route, wireless messages said. "Crossing bad from Halifax," read one message sent while the flyers were about 375 miles from Brittany.

As the plane neared Le Bourget the aviators sent word that more than one-third of their enormous gas supply of 1,770 gallons remained, and that they hoped to go 3,100 miles farther, to better the present record of 5,340 miles for a nonstop flight. The record is held by O. R. Gayford and G. E. Nicholetts, who flew from England to Walfish bay, South Africa.

Predict Arrival to Minute.

The Joseph Le Brix, appearing a drab white against the red flush of the setting sun, was sighted at exactly the minute the airmen had predicted in a wireless message an hour earlier.

Of scarcely 100 persons at the airport, the most excited were the flyers' wives and Lieut. Rossi's mother and sister. As the plane dropped to an altitude of 400 feet, the group of women waved and cheered and the aviators waved back.

Suddenly weighted messages were thrown from the ship and floated to the ground. The women shrieked, and tears flowed from the eyes of Mme. Codos. Mme. Rossi laughed excitedly and then her eyes, too, filled with tears.

Both received scribbled notes from their husbands saying that the takeoff had been difficult, the voyage hard going, but that they were glad to be on their way. "Love and kisses" was the ending on each message.

Go Via Vienna.

Rossi and Codos had sent the air ministry a request to keep the beacons lighted on their route through France. After the weather bureau reported conditions, they chose a route from Munich to Vienna, Budapest, Bucharest, Aleppo, and then to Bagdad or Karachi.

The aviators saw little of the sea or earth on their steady flight to France. They wirelessed they were nearly always in the clouds, and weather reports indicated more clouds ahead of them.

The first word received from the plane by the air ministry here came at 6:15 p. m. Saturday. Afterward nothing was heard for 11 hours, but then communication became frequent, especially as the flyers neared the coast.

The Saturday evening message said: "Excuse us. For five hours we have been fighting weather off Halifax. We had a bad time. We will give position tonight. We crossed ship in storm. Now 44 degrees, 45 minutes. Our regards to our families and our friends. Au revoir."

At 3 a. m. the ministry received a message saying:

"We have been unable to give news of ourselves because of a very severe crossing. In a moment I will tell you our position. Navigation has been difficult because of bad weather."

As the plane neared the coast of France, the messages became more frequent. When it was two-thirds of the way from New York to Paris, the ship's position was given as about 625 miles northwest of the Scilly islands.

"We Are Coming."

"We are coming," read another report as the monoplane approached Brittany. Then:

"We are in vicinity of French coast. We have been in clouds since our departure. We think we hear a coastal station, but receive nothing."

As their gasoline diminished and the nine ton weight of their plane lightened, the airmen were hopeful of making better time in the latter half of their ambitious voyage. Their flight to Le Bourget was made at an average speed of better than 100 miles an hour.

The Joseph Le Brix carried enough gas to remain aloft about 70 hours. It was estimated to be more than sufficient to carry the flyers to Karachi, 7,200 miles from New York.

VIENNA "HUNTS" OCEAN FLYERS

ELISHA LEE DIES SUDDENLY; NOTED AS RAIL OFFICIAL

New York, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Elisha Lee, senior vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, collapsed tonight after he had alighted from an Albany train and died a few minutes later. He was 62 years old.

With Mr. Lee, who lived in Philadelphia, were Dr. Max F. Herrman of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Merz of Jenkinstown, Pa. They had passed the week-end at Saratoga Springs and were returning on a New York Central train, which had been rerouted because of a derailment and was proceeding along the freight tracks on the west side of the city.

The party alighted at a small emergency station intending to go to the Pennsylvania station to board a train for Philadelphia. As they were crossing the tracks, Lee suddenly collapsed. He was dead before an ambulance arrived. Dr. Herrman said Lee had appeared in excellent health.

Mr. Lee, who was born in Chicago, was a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was appointed superintendent of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk railroad in 1909, and two years later became assistant to the general manager of the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie.

Two sons, Elisha Jr. and J. Latimer Lee, and a daughter, Mrs. Greville Haslam of Philadelphia, survive. Mr. Lee's wife was the daughter of Jonathan C. Latimer, Chicago attorney. She died in Paris July 4.

FARMER'S WIFE AS SLEUTH TRAPS A PICKPOCKET

William English, 60 years old, a pickpocket, was in police custody yesterday because of the detective work of a farmer's wife. She is Mrs. Hattie Seymour of Golconda, Ill.

On Friday Mrs. Seymour, her husband, John, and her father, Milo Austin, arrived in Chicago to visit the Fair. As they alighted from a bus at the Fair grounds Austin discovered that his wallet, containing $16, had been stolen.

Mrs. Seymour scanned the faces of the passengers who stood near her husband as they alighted from the bus. She suspected that the man who had stolen the wallet might be found plying his thievery on a bus, so on Saturday she did nothing but ride buses between the Fair and Randolph street. Finally, after a dozen trips, Mrs. Seymour recognized a man as one of the passengers who had alighted from the bus just after her father was robbed. She called Traffic Policeman William Brown, who arrested the suspect.

At the bureau the prisoner was identified as English, who has a police record as a pickpocket and confidence man dating from 1904.

SATURN'S SPOT IS ALMOST 20,000 BY 12,000 MILES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—The white spot discovered on Saturn's equator, is about 20,000 miles long and 12,000 miles wide, an observation made through the United States naval observatory's 26 inch telescope by Principal Astronomer H. E. Burton here last night indicates.

Using the same telescope with which Prof. Asaph Hall in 1876 discovered a similar Saturn spot, Astronomer Burton and John E. Willis, his fellow astronomer, made observations Saturday morning and night. Mr. Willis used a fixed six inch transit telescope and noted the spot.

Tonight the spot was on the other side of Saturn and could not be observed. The Sautrday morning and night observations allowed Mr. Willis to check roughly the determination of Saturn's period of rotation, 10 hours 14 minutes 24 seconds, which Prof. Hall made in 1876. Sir William Herschel in 1794 without the use of a spot, came within two minutes of determining this rotation value.

FINDS WOMEN LOSE RIGHTS IN DICTATORSHIP

Dr. Rowena Mann Tells of Visit.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Back in Chicago after eight months' study and teaching abroad, Dr. Rowena Morse Mann, guest professor of philosophy at her German alma mater, the University of Jena, yesterday characterized the position of women in four countries now under dictatorships as acutely decadent. Dr. Mann, who is a Unitarian minister and writer on social and political topics, visited Germany, Poland, Italy, and Russia on her recent trip. She is a granddaughter of Samuel Morse of telegraph fame.

"Under all four dictatorships," said Dr. Morse in her home, 5653 Dorchester avenue, "there is loss of opportunity and freedom, and culture runs down. And women fall first. We find women in Germany losing their work, their positions being given to men. For instance, only 5 per cent of the medical students are permitted to be women, and the practice of woman physicians is limited to women and children.

Woman's Sphere Limited.

In Italy and Poland there is also a manifest effort to confine the activities of women to the sphere of wifehood and motherhood.

Dr. Mann returned to America with renewed devotion to the principles of a free press, after experience in four countries where government censorship is, she holds, the prime factor in maintaining the sway of the dictator governments. Not only newspapers, but the theater and the radio are completely controlled, she points out, to the extent that the German public knows far less about occurrences in that country than does the American nation, informed through an unmuzzled press, while the situation in Russia is even more extreme.

The European View.

"There are many things about dictatorships," she declared, "with which I heartily disagree. Yet I must confess that individuals abroad do not agree with me. I have talked with small merchants, peddlers, bankers—all kinds of people. And I find that they feel that in the trough in which these countries were caught following the war, force was needed, and the dictators have supplied it.

"One must admit that Germany, for instance, is flourishing. Their six million unemployed have been put into uniforms and assigned to work—some on the railroads, some on the streets, some on farms, but they all have a little something, and the result is that Berlin is once more the most efficient city in the world.

"What makes me furious is to think that we sent so many billions into Europe, when those countries can get along beautifully without us. We had far better keep our money at home and spend it on our own people—Europe needs us not at all."

FRIENDLY SCUFFLE FATAL TO MAN.

Roman Mikula, 28 years old, 1206 Fry street, fell from the second floor back porch of his home early yesterday and was killed. He had been engaged in a friendly scuffle with his brother, Peter, the latter told police.

AUSTRIA FORCES 27 NAZIS TO CLIMB CLIFF TO REMOVE EMBLEM

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Twenty-seven Nazis were arrested here today and marched under armed escort to a mountain, where they were compelled to climb a cliff and remove a huge swastika emblem painted at an altitude of 6,000 feet. The action was taken under a recent decree making all members of the outlawed Nazi party responsible for acts committed by unidentified persons believed to be Nazis.

THREE FLEE AFTER CRASH IN WHICH THREE ARE HURT

Two women and a man were pinned underneath their automobile yesterday when their automobile was struck and overturned by another car at Hoyne avenue and Adams street. Three men who were in the second car fled on foot after the accident.

The three injured, taken to the West Side hospital, are Mrs. Judith Protessi, 55 years old; her daughter, Mrs. Josephine Tavolacci, 29, and her son, John Protessi, 26, all of 1038 North Central Park avenue. Mrs. Protessi suffered a possible skull fracture. The two others were cut and bruised.

Frederick Hoehn, 45 years old, 2429 North Albany avenue, was killed and Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Heinze, 5222 Dakin street, were seriously injured when their automobile struck a moving freight train on the outer belt line at Diamond lake, Lake county, early yesterday. Heinze, who was driving, said he did not see the train. He and his wife are in the Condell hospital, Libertyville.

HORNER APPEALS TO STATE TROOPS TO AID RECOVERY

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner today asked 7,500 National Guardsmen in training at Camp Grant to do their bit in civilian life towards booming the national recovery. A crowd of nearly 40,000 heard the governor's address.

The address was one of two main features of the day. The other was a celebration in honor of Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity, retired commander of the Sixty-sixth brigade and former Chicago chief of police. He retired several months ago after forty-four years in the Guard.

Gov. Horner told the militiamen that they were the state's first line of defense and an integral part of the national defense.

There has been, he warned, some "inexcusable opposition to these measures" by "selfish men" and obstructionists, and this in the face of the general feeling that "we are returning to the good days of former years."

EUROPE'S PEACE PACT IN PERIL OVER NAZI 'RAIDS'

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Premier Mussolini's four power pact, which was to guarantee the peace of Europe for 10 years, tonight appears to French observers to be perilously close to breaking up over the struggle for Austria.

With Germany determined to set up a puppet Nazi government in Vienna and France basing her whole conception of European peace on the maintenance of an independent Austrian government, the treaty is facing its first decisive test. The fear is growing here that this test will result in failure.

France has put in weeks of underground efforts to line up Italy and England to make a joint protest to Berlin against violation of Austria's sovereignty by Nazi propaganda air raiders.

Mussolini Stands Alone.

The French press on Friday announced that the three powers, while unable to agree on a common text, had decided to make a parallel and simultaneous protest to Berlin. It was explained that the French and British ambassadors were going to deliver a note on Monday and that the Italian ambassador already had made an unofficial representation. This was denied in a curt communique by the official Italian Stefani agency.

The latest information available in informed quarters tonight is that Britain is determined to stand with France in backing up Chancellor Dollfuss' fight for independence, but that Mussolini so far has refused to commit himself.

Tonight there were unofficial suggestions that France will abandon the methods of secret diplomacy within the framework of the four power pact and will make public complaint to the league of nations under Article 80 of the treaty of Versailles which guarantees Austria's independence.

Franco-German Tension Increases.

The result of all this is that the tension between France and Germany, which had noticeably relaxed the last two months, once again is reaching a dangerous pitch.

In addition to the Austrian dispute, French public opinion is worked up over the recrudescence of Nazi activities in the Saar valley. These activities in the last few weeks include the kidnaping of two French citizens in the Saar territory and their removal to a German prison and the stealing of a French flag from mining property by a band of Nazis, who violated the Saar frontier to accomplish the act. The French foreign office has officially protested against these two acts.

Nazi activities in the Saar are becoming more aggressive daily, and the French are adding oil to the flame by launching a sharp campaign to hold the territory for France in the plebiscite which comes up in 1935.

Diplomatic Crisis Feared.

The threat of war still is far less concrete than it was three months ago, but the situation is rapidly assuming an ominous complexion, and it is considered here that a diplomatic crisis of some sort is inevitable. The French foreign office believes that Mussolini is trying to persuade Chancellor Hitler to put on the brakes, but doubts the efficacy of the attempt.

The unsettled aspect of the international situation is believed responsible for Premier Daladier's decision to curtail his vacation at Vichy and return to the capital tomorrow.

German General Dies

BARON HANS VON BELOW.

Waynesville, N. C., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Lieut. Gen. Baron von Below, former German army officer who was in command of a German army corps in the latter part of the world war, died at a hotel here today. He suffered a stroke of paralysis several days ago.

Baroness Below said she planned to remain in Waynesville for the summer and the body of her husband would remain at an undertaking establishment until taken to Washington for burial next month.

Hindenburg's Chief of Staff.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Baron Hans von Below, who died today in Waynesville, N. C., had a long and distinguished career in the German army before and during the world war and was a member of one of the most noted military families of the old empire.

Early in the war Baron von Below was chief of staff of Gen. von Hindenburg, now president of Germany, when he was in command of the eastern front.

Shortly before the war Baron von Below was colonel in command of the Augusta guard, the personal guard of the empress, and in that post was a member of the kaiser's official family.

Baron von Below was a recognized authority on military affairs and was the author of several books on the subject. He came to this country in 1919 and had lived here in retirement since that time. He was 74 years old.

The German general's widow is an American woman, the former Nina Bryce of Columbia, S. C. She was the widow of Frederick Turnbull of Philadelphia when she married the general.

80,000 STORM TROOPS MARCH IN BERLIN REVIEW

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—Eighty thousand storm troopers of the Berlin organigations of Chancellor Hitler's brown shirted army held their first mass parade on historic Tempelhof field in Berlin today. They passed in review before Capt. Ernest Roehm, chief of the Nazi army.

Before the review they heard a sermon by the Rev. Herr Tausch in which the chaplain thanked "God, the eternal, who bestowed Adolf Hitler upon Germany, a man such as appears only once every thousand years."

Attacks Jews.

"The victory is ours and we shall never let it out of our hands," the Nazi chaplain proclaimed solemnly. "Jews and their confederates have robbed, trampled, and vilified the German soul. The German nation was near death when God almighty sent Hitler. True to God, he always had sought and found strength from the heavenly skies and therefore God turned to him. God is not for pacifists who use peace to hide their personal cowardice. God was with Hitler and threw the wicked to hell. Let us thank God that he gave us a leader."

Capt. Roehm in his address said: "Hitler made us a guarantee for the success of the revolution. He shall justify his trust. The bourgeois think everything is beautiful and quiet and that the quiet is marred only when we soldiers appear on the scene. These bourgeois must get accustomed to having us around and realize that we shall stay around."

Deport U. S. Student.

The American student, Walter Orloff, who was arrested at Greifswald university July 4 and held incommunicado until recently, will be deported from Germany on one of the next boats. The ship on which he is to be deported will be made known after it sails. Orloff admitted taking part in secret communist meetings, police said.

Strict orders have been given Prussian officials in the presence of the American consul general to notify the proper consul immediately whenever a foreigner is arrested.

Iceland Reds Trample Nazi Flag of German Consul

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 6.—A communist mob at the herring fishing center of Siglufjord today tore down a Nazi flag from the residence of the German consul and trampled it in the mud. The consul had raised the flag for the first time due to the arrival of a party of German tourists.

BRITISH POLICE PROBE NAZI RAID ON OFFICE OF JEWISH ATTORNEY

(Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.)

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Scotland Yard detectives today investigated an alleged raid by Nazis in London on the office of Dr. Reiter, a German-Jewish lawyer, who came to England three months ago to escape anti-semitic persecution.

Dr. Reiter went to his office in Hampstead Friday night and found it in chaos. Messages condemning the Jews and extolling Adolf Hitler were scattered around the room, swastikas were plastered on the walls, and notices in German warning Dr. Reiter against his supposed conduct were stuck on his desk.

Dr. Reiter called the police, but yesterday he was warned by a voice on the telephone to keep quiet unless he wanted to be "taken for a ride" and "bumped off."

BITE OF SNAKE BALKS LECTURE ON THEIR POISON

Suffern, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Col. Martin L. Crimmins, U. S. A., retired, 56, was bitten tonight by a water moccasin just before he was to have delivered an address on poisonous snakes. The lecture was canceled. Serum was administered at once, and two physicians, who attended the colonel, predicted he would recover.

Col. Crimmins was transferring to a suitcase a chestful of rattlesnakes, copperheads, and the water moccasin which he had brought for demonstration purposes.

As he reached for a rattler, his hand brushed a burlap bag containing the moccasin, which lashed out. Its fangs struck the colonel's hand.

POLICEWOMAN MAKES SALLY PUT ON SOME DUDS

Sally Rand was stopped from putting on her fan dance at the Streets of Paris concession at the World's Fair last night by Policewoman Anne Ward of the south park police. "Fans aren't enough," decreed the policewoman. "You must put on pants and a brassiere." Sally frowned, insisted her dance was art, but agreed to put on the articles specified.

EXPECTS WEEK TO SET RECORD IN WAR ON CRIME

Prosecutor Promises to Speed Court Cases.

First Assistant State's Attorney Grover Niemeyer, chief aid in State's Attorney Courtney's war on crime, said yesterday that he expected to set a record this week in cases tried, convictions obtained, and prisoners sent to the penitentiary. Gunmen are to be made to realize that the authorities are determined to show no mercy to those who take up arms against society, he said.

Mr. Niemeyer has general supervision of the court work of all the prosecutors on Mr. Courtney's staff. He has given orders that murder and robbery cases are to take precedence over all other cases, and the prosecutors are to resist every effort on the part of defense attorneys to obtain delays.

Spurred by Racket Convictions.

"Every one of the 10 Criminal court branches will be manned with able prosecutors tomorrow morning," Mr Niemeyer said. "The conviction of Rooney and his two co-defendants of a racket union murder on Saturday is a stimulus to greater efforts on the part of all of us.

"With judges giving up their summer vacations to aid in the drive against criminals, and employés of the state's attorney's office doing likewise, great results can be expected. Chief Justice John Prystalski has promised to arraign defendants the day after their indictment and to put their cases down for early trial. Where delay is demanded by the defense the state will insist that the Supreme court's ruling that a 'reasonable time must be given to prepare for trial' be lived up to strictly, and that no more than a reasonable time is allowed.

"It is up to the judges to determine what is a reasonable time, but in no instance should more than 30 days be given. Every gunman tried within 30 day will be an object lesson. We hope to give Chicago a new reputation for speedy justice."

Praise Prosecutor for Victory.

The murder conviction of John Rooney, secretary and treasurer of a circular distributors' union; Henry [Hogan] Berry, business agent of the union, and Rosalie Rizzo, sweetheart of Rooney, caused many congratulatory messages to be sent to the prosecutor.

Mr. Courtney particularly criticized the tactics of the defense attorneys in trying to make the jury believe Courtney was fighting union labor, and his answer was that he is warring on crooked and racketeering union officials in the interest of honest union labor. Rooney and his aids had been extorting money from Goldblatt Brothers' department store, and when more money was not forthcoming they started a campaign of terrorism that ended in the murder of Stanley Gross, a watchman for the store.

Rooney and Berry are to get life imprisonment under the jury's verdict, which fixed a 20 year prison term for Miss Rizzo. A motion for a new trial is to be argued next Saturday.

LENORE ULRIC SEEKS DIVORCE FROM BLACKMER

Actress Files Her Suit in Mexico.

Miss Ulric, whose marriage to the actor caused her break with the late David Belasco, Broadway producer, filed a divorce complaint against Blackmer secretly in Mexico a week soon, it was learned today. She charged incompatibility.

"Our marriage was tragic," Miss Ulric said of her union with Blackmer. "It was nothing but long distance and telegraph love."

"It was the old struggle between a home and a career," said Blackmer in commenting on his wife's suit for divorce. "She still remains the finest person I ever met and there is no other man or woman in the case.

"Ours was a beautiful romance for 12 years and then the long separations caused by our work began getting on our nerves. I think, too, the general unrest of the times had something to do with it. I regret very much that the divorce suit has come, but I will not contest it."

For years the romance of Blackmer and Miss Ulric flourished. Year after year she refused to marry him because Belasco's plans for his stars did not include marriage—he believed they should remain wedded to their art alone. Finally Lenore yielded to Blackmer's entreaties and they went to the altar. Her break with Belasco followed, and soon her romance with the actor cooled.

URGES FEDERAL WAR ON CRIME UNDER NEW LAW

New York, Aug. 6.—[Special.]—The creation of an American "Scotland Yard," with a national police force for the control of racketeering and attendant crimes, is proposed in a report to the Federal Bar association. The report by its committee urges a constitutional amendment to create the proper authority by which the federal government would have jurisdiction concurrently with the states over homicide, kidnaping, coercion, extortion, and assault.

The report was prepared by Franklin P. Russell, professor of law at the Brooklyn Law school and vice chairman of the anti-racketeering committee of the association. This is said concerning control of crime by the states:

"There are many serious handicaps to the administration of justice in a state. The police officers, prosecuting attorneys, and, in some cases, the judges [particularly of the lower judiciary] are frequently susceptible to influence of one sort or another."

PRESS SEARCH FOR WOMAN IN HOLDUP MURDER

Special police squads searched the west side yesterday in an effort to capture a blonde gunwoman and her male companion who are wanted for the murder of Gustav Hoeh, 70 year old haberdasher, in his store at 3848 Division street.

One prisoner is already in custody for the crime, and he has identified his companions—the blonde and her friend—as Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, 27 years old, mother of two boys, and George Kennedy, 30, both of 4300 Madison street. The man in custody is Leo Minneci, alias Joe Miller, 27 years old. He admits having been present at the killing of Hoeh, but denies participation in the crime. He names Kennedy as the slayer.

Disappear After Slaying.

Both Mrs. Jarman and Kennedy disappeared immediately after the slaying. They did not go together. Mrs. Jarman took with her her children, Le Roy, 9, and LaVerne, 12.

Supervising Captain John Stege organized the west side search to apprehend the fugitives. The special squads were ordered to watch all known haunts of the two, and to keep a detail on guard at the Madison street apartment which they occupied. The captain also told his men that they need not feel squeamish about shooting in case Mrs. Jarman is cornered.

"If she is the woman who has been terrorizing west side merchants, she's desperate," said Capt. Stege. "No matter how we do it, we're going to get her."

The police believe Mrs. Jarman and Kennedy are in hiding somewhere, probably on the west side. They believe that Mrs. Jarman in particular cannot go far because she has her two children with her.

Meanwhile, detectives further questioned Minneci yesterday. He is at the Bridewell hospital, suffering from a hand wound which he said he received from Kennedy's gun when he tried to prevent Kennedy from robbing Hoeh. They also questioned his wife, Tina, and from her learned about Mrs. Jarman's getaway.

Wife Tells Her Story.

Mrs. Minneci, who lives at 3346 Monroe street, said that she went to Mrs. Jarman's apartment Friday afternoon. That was shortly after Hoeh had been slain. She found her husband, Mrs. Jarman and the Jarman children there.

"Leo had his hand bandaged and told me he had been in some trouble. Then he gave me the keys to the car of his brother, Emil, and told me to give the keys to Emil and have him report the car stolen. Mrs. Jarman was packing up, and she left in a taxi with her children."

The use of his brother's car led to Leo's arrest and the search for Mrs. Jarman and Kennedy. Witnesses obtained the license number of the car when Hoeh was killed, and it was traced to Emil, a student at the University of Illinois. Emil told police that his brother had borrowed the car without permission.

OPERATE ON BOY AFTER AIR RACE THROUGH FOG

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug. 6.—(AP)—David Looff, 4, was reported doing "splendidly" today after an appendicitis operation which followed a race through fog and rain in the airplane of Pilot Harry Blunt, who had been summoned by wireless. Pilot Blunt landed here late yesterday, 35 hours after he took for Alitak, Kodiak island, a round trip of more than 1,000 miles. The boy is the son of Henry Looff.

The boy was operated upon at Anchorage hospital immediately upon his arrival. The trip, requiring only ten hours actual flying, was interrupted on the return leg by a forced landing at Iliaska bay, after the seaplane was driven from Barren island by heavy weather. Shortage of fuel caused Blunt to wireless for relief.

Pilot Al Monsen took off from here for a flight through thick fog to the stranded plane's aid, but before his arrival Blunt was able to proceed to Illamna, where he took on gasoline for the last lap home.

STRIKING MINERS URGED BY LEWIS TO RESUME JOBS

Told to Accept Roosevelt Truce.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Some 65,000 striking miners in the Pennsylvania bituminous coal fields were urged back to the pits tomorrow in conformity with the truce signed by President Roosevelt, in a message today from John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America. He wired it to 800 local unions in the strike area, declaring that any defiance of the President's wish would lead to further collective distress.

It is figured that 25,000 miners will return to the mines tomorrow, and that within three days, almost all strikers will have resumed work.

Lewis' Message.

Mr. Lewis' message, after repeating the terms of the temporary agreement settling the coal strike, says:

"Let me assure every member of the United Mine Workers of America affected by this situation that their interests lie in conforming to the agreement made by their organization and in carrying out the expressed wish of the President of the United States by the complete acceptance of its provisions.

"There will be those among you who will advocate defiance to the policy of your organization and defiance to the wish of the President. Such men are not wise counsellors and their advice should be rejected. Such a course can only lead to further collective and individual distress among our people and will delay the accomplishment of the plans of the federal government to bring about economic stability to the coal industry through the instrumentality of the recovery act. I have faith, however, in the loyalty and fine judgment of the overwhelming majority of our members.

Period of Crises.

"Our nation is going through a period of supreme crises and our union and its members must make a contribution towards the task of maintaining our institutions and rationalizing our economic processes. For this moment let controversy cease. Return to your normal occupations. Give time for the application of reason and logic to your own problems and the problems of the coal industry and extend your cooperation to your government, to your President and to your union.

"I have pledged the honor of the United Mine Workers of America to the President of the United States to assist him in working out these grave questions, and I ask your support to redeem this pledge."

REOPENING OF FRICK MINES DELAYED FOR DAY; STRIFE FEARED

Uniontown, Pa., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Last minute efforts to ward off the threatened reopening of the labor war in the western Pennsylvania soft coal mine fields, with the threat of more bloodshed, were partly successful tonight.

In response to a plea from Gov. Pinchot, who foresaw certain violence if the H. C. Frick Coke company carried out its intention to open its mines tomorrow, while striking miners vowed they would not permit them to open, the Frick company granted a delay of a day.

The company announced its decision here tonight as follows:

"In response to a personal request from Gov. Pinchot, the H. C. Frick Coke company will not open its mines until Tuesday, Aug. 8."

The governor has been following the developments here hour by hour, his secretary and other advisers on the ground reporting to him directly. His appeal to the Frick company was made by telephone to company officials in Pittsburgh from his summer home in Milford.

FIND BOY WITH STITCHED HEART GROWING BETTER

Marked improvement in the condition of Elihu Garmiss, 16 years old, 1326 North Maplewood avenue, whose heart was stitched Saturday after he had been stabbed, was reported yesterday at the Lutheran Deaconess hospital. Shortly after the operation he was given a fifty-fifty chance for recovery. Yesterday it was said his chances had improved 25 per cent.

The youth was stabbed Saturday by an unidentified man as he was walking in front of 2642 Crystal street. He was taken to the hospital where Dr. J. D. Koucky, 411 North Ridgeland avenue, sewed up the wound.

"The heart had stopped beating when the boy was placed on the operating table," Dr. Koucky said. "In thirty seconds the operation would have been futile. After the stitching the heart was massaged and resumed its beating."

WOMAN IS FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL; BLAME POISON

A woman, about 35 years old, registered as Anne Jacobs, was found dead yesterday in her room in the Hotel Sherman. Dr. Lee H. Kiel, house physician, found near her an empty bottle which had contained 100 poison tablets, and said she had probably swallowed all of them.

The woman registered at the hotel on Saturday afternoon, carrying neither baggage nor a purse. She listed her address as 145 North 55th street, New York city. Police said there is a 145 West 55th street, but not a 145 North 55th street in New York.

Police described the woman as neatly and fairly well dressed. She wore glasses which she had hidden under the mattress, apparently in an effort to prevent them being used as a clew to her identity. The woman was about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and weighed 150 pounds.

HOW THE LAYMAN CAN ENJOY FAIR ART COLLECTION

James O'D. Bennett Gives His Discovery.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

I have worked it out—mostly by myself—how we laymen can highly enjoy even the more recondite works and the lesser masterpieces in the Art institute's seventy-five million dollar World's Fair exhibit.

You would hardly call that a world shaking discovery. It hath been made a thousand times.

But I am all of a glow with self-complacency about it because for me it opens many an illustrious vista. It touches to life and eloquence many a painting that otherwise I would gaze upon with a lackluster eye. It makes those pictures my possessions.

Looking Versus Overlooking.

'Tis as simple as that.

But people—most people—do not do it. They go to a gallery that glows with treasures of the ages and of nations, and they only gawk. They do not look. They overlook. What a pity!

Doubly a pity when when you consider that probably not until 43 years have passed—when Chicago will be celebrating with its third World's Fair the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence—will such a glorious collection of pictures be assembled in this town as Dr. Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art institute, has assembled for our present festival summer.

But come to the point, reporter, come to the point!

A Lady in a Plight.

Not, to me, a wonderful picture, but, to anybody a little informed, a great and arresting historical document.

It is a shade blurred by the mists and the vicissitudes of nearly four and a half centuries. Its size does not make you think false thoughts about its importance, for it measures only about two by two and a half feet.

But it talks a chapter. It is eloquent with the searching eloquence of social, ecclesiastical and political history. Innocuous though it is and always was, it was the victim of as ruthless and tragic an anti-vice crusade as zealotry ever launched and fanaticism carried to the point of madness.

Art's New Anatomy.

Mark well how boldly and firmly the figure of Hercules is modeled. What taut strength there is in him from shoulders to ankles! He is drawing a bow and drawing it to kill. Those, too, are momentous points, for Pollaiuolo was the first painter to possess a practical knowledge of anatomy from dissection.

He was, in short, a pioneer of the puissant, moving Renaissance, when all Italy renewed its youth and released the waters of the fountain of youth upon its neighbors.

Look again upon the figure of Deianira, who in a few days is to hang herself for grief that she persuaded her husband to wear the death laden shirt of dead Nessus.

A Sallyrand of the Renaissance.

I doubt whether the half draped—or less—figure of the woman would today project the most susceptible of us into a sallyrand state of mind. Draped or naked, Mme. Hercules would not inflame me.

But her reticent nudity raised scandal among anti-vice crusaders and panic among painters 436 years ago.

When found in Italy about three-quarters of a century ago the "Rape of Deianira" ["rape" in the title means naught more drastic than kidnaping] was Deianira with Deianira left out. Hercules and Nessus were settling their difficulties without the source of the difficulty being in the picture. She had been altogether painted out.

But under modern cleaning she came out. She was not again touched in. She simply reappeared.

Who Did It, and Why?

Nobody can be certain.

Dr. Harshe inclines to think that one of the subalterns of Savonarola, the ecclesiastical Mussolini, may have done it, if not Savonarola himself.

D. C. Rich, the institute's associate curator of paintings, advances the theory that Pollaiuolo may have done it in order to save his picture from Savonarola's chastening "bonfires of the vanities."

Some day in some Florentine library or palazzo or monastery a document may be found—some scrap of letter or of reminiscence—that will identify the out painter.

Meanwhile, do you not now gaze with intent eyes and with imagination all enkindled on this "Rape of Deianira" which Yale university bought 62 years ago and which it loaned to our World's Fair?

Thrice Across the Atlantic.

The painting is of abiding interest to connoisseurs and historians. Thrice it has crossed the Atlantic to be shown at great exhibitions—the last before our current one being the Royal academy exhibition in London three years ago.

Now the picture on the east wall of gallery 31—the tremendous gallery of the four Botticellis, the two Leonardo da Vincis, the two Bellinis, and of the Raphael—is talking to us. If we do but give close heed it will talk to us of Savonarola as intimately as George Elliot's "Romola" does.

It is bidding us step back into the Piazza della Signoria and into the year 1497.

"Into the Fire with Them!"

The first of the reformer's "burning of the vanities" is on. Wild excitement convulses Florence. Fripperies, masks, "indecent" books and pictures are tossed into the bonfire. Sometimes there is little discrimination between indecencies and veritable treasures. The anti-vice crusaders are in a passion of destruction for "the glory of God" and the salvation of mankind. Rich art patrons and lovers of the beautiful for beauty's sake are shocked by the pious excesses.

A Venetian merchant sends word that he will give 22,000 gold florins for the condemned articles. Piety not only scorns his bid but hurls his portrait into the flames.

Swarthy, lantern-jawed, cavernous-eyed Savonarola, priest, statesman, reformer, and in a year to be a martyr, sounds again and again to the multitude his slogans—"The fear of God and the purification of manners." . . . "Promotion of the well-being of all instead of a privileged few."

The Captain of Souls.

Every day, and sometimes far into the night, his prayer is "Lord! teach me the way my soul should walk." He is your typical zealot. Other souls shall walk the way his soul walks. Men call him "Savonarola of the Terrible Sermons." In the midst of one sermon he suddenly beholds a vision of the flaming sword of the Lord and he thunders to the affrighted congregation "gladius Domini supra terram cito et velociter."

This Dominican friar, who—like Italo Balbo—comes from gay Ferrara of the d'Estes, now is dictator over Florence, proudest city in Christendom.

He is dictator along 20th century lines. A marvelous organizer. The boys of Florence are banded into a holy militia. The city goes Puritan, and, while cleansing itself of infamies, it also perpetrates most of the infuriating stupidities of which Puritanism on the rampage is capable.

For five years now the preacher has kept northern Italy in turmoil. Nor armies nor excommunication nor offers of a cardinal's hat can silence him.

"No hat will I have," he replies, "but that of a martyr."

He has a capacity for discrimination which his followers do not share.

In that soberer sense of his the mystery of the "over-painting" of "The Rape of Deianira" has its source. The painting was the work of Pollaiuolo's best period. Did the reformer recognize it as a work of large significance in a new field? Did he appreciate the artist as not only a remarkable painter, sculptor, engraver, and goldsmith who had something new to say but also as perhaps the best niellist of the age? Did he see that the pioneer who had brought correct anatomy and vivid movement into painting was a glory to Italy? Pollaiuolo was then an old man and had done great things. Did the dictator feel that his fellow citizen deserved not ignominy but honor?

And, feeling thus, did he order the nearly nude female figure over-painted to the end that such a measure should save the picture from the first of the bonfires of the vanities? We do not know. Perhaps the world will never know.

The Boon to Our Time.

Or did the artist himself take that measure in order to save his picture? Again we do not know.

In a year both priest and painter were dead. Reaction came into power, and reactionaries gave Girolamo Savonarola the martyr's crown which he long had said he feared not to wear. Before strangling and burning him they tortured him on the rack. After that ordeal he said to Friar Niccolini, "I am very weary. Let me lay my head on your lap."

Then he, so soon to die, fell asleep, and it stands in the chronicles to this day that as he slept "his face became as serene and smiling as an innocent child's."

The little picture on the east wall of a festival show has done for me a supreme service. It has widened my vistas. It has touched the past to life and meaning and intimacy. It has enlarged my kinship with men long gone and made my books of history to breathe out to me the cries, the clamor, the sorrows and the bewilderments of lips that now are silent evermore.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Winners of the Montgomery Ward & Co. voting contest began arriving in Chicago yesterday to visit the Fair, and the remainder of the group of 100 youngsters from small towns throughout the country will arrive today. They will be here as guests of the company.

Arrangements have been completed for bringing the troops of the Illinois National Guard to Chicago for Illinois day celebration Friday. The Milwaukee road will bring companies from Decatur, Rockford, Kankakee, Champaign, Carbondale, Cairo, Sycamore, Dixon, Sterling, Elgin, Danville, Sullivan, Salem, Mount Vernon, Peoria, Paris, and Lawrenceville Friday morning. The 131st and 132d infantry will arrive Thursday.

An automobile race between midget drivers in one cylinder cars from the Midget village will be held Thursday afternoon at the World's Fair bathing beach track. Ten drivers will take part.

A party of 35 delegates from 13 countries to the international geological congress, recently held in Washington, D. C., visited the diamond exhibit in the General Exhibits group yesterday and were escorted through the model diamond mine by Dr. Bastin and Dr. Croneis of the University of Chicago.

The wooden model of the famous city hall of Stockholm, Sweden, designed by Rogner Ostberg, is attracting the attention of architects. It is in the Swedish pavilion and was made by Aron Sandberg, sculptor. The building was voted the gold medal of the American Institute of Architects this year.

Jean Hudson, 9 year old licensed amateur radio operator of Laurel, Del., yesterday was presented with a silver loving cup by H. D. Hayes, superintendent of radio in the Ninth district, as a result of winning a receiving contest sponsored by the world-wide amateur radio convention. The amateur operators have an exhibit in the Travel and Transport building at the Fair.

Word was received yesterday by Fair officials that four famous flyers will arrive here Friday afternoon to take part in the Illinois day celebration. They are James A. Mollison and his wife, Amy Johnson Mollison, and Capt. James G. Hazlip and his wife. According to present plans they will fly from New York to St. Louis in a Lockheed-Vega plane and then transfer to a Sikorsky amphibion plane to fly to Chicago, landing on the north lagoon at the Fair.

Missouri will celebrate its day at the Fair Thursday, bringing a regiment of its National Guard to take part in the ceremonies. The Missouri military parade will be the largest of its kind yet held on the Fair grounds.

LA GRANGE PARK WOMAN SHOOTS SELF TO DEATH

Mrs. Agnes Hanner, 27 years old, of Edgewood avenue, La Grange Park, died early today in the Hinsdale sanitarium of a self-inflicted bullet wound in the abdomen. She had been worrying over finances.

She shot herself in her home at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but La Grange police did not learn of the shooting until just before her death nearly 12 hours later. They began an investigation when word of the affair was received from Portland, Ore., where Mrs. Hanner's brother is a detective.

Police Chief Edward Jones of La Grange Park declared that the failure to notify him of the shooting constituted poor coöperation on the part of the attending physician, Dr. J. W. Carr, 125 North 5th avenue, La Grange. The doctor laid his omission to excitement.

LOUVRE INSISTS ITS MONA LISA IS THE ORIGINAL

PARIS, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Louvre officials were skeptical today of a statement in a London newspaper that the original Mona Lisa is in the hands of an Algerian picture dealer and that the picture here is merely a copy. The statement was attributed to a man who was described as one of the thieves who once stole the Mona Lisa. Fernan Cellerier, director of the National Physical laboratory, declared he was convinced of the authenticity of the Louvre picture after X-Ray and other tests following upon the painting's return.

"You need have no fear about Da Vinci's masterpiece, although I admit I have seen another Mona Lisa which might puzzle many experts," he said.

Following last night's performance of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey's circus in Grant park, the side show and menagerie tents were taken down and moved to positions north of the big top, thus making the main entrance of the show opposite 7th street, as in former years. The move was made to eliminate confusion among patrons, who had difficulty on Saturday and Sunday in finding the main entrance facing the World's Fair grounds. A new act, the Royal Repenski troupe, acrobatic bareback riders, joined the circus for yesterday's performance and will remain with the show.

CHICAGO HOTELS HOSTS TO RECORD BREAKING CROWD

Find Comfortable Quarters for All Visitors.

Chicago's downtown hotels were hosts last night to record breaking crowds. From midmorning on through the day throngs of World's Fair visitors filled the lobbies of such establishments as the Morrison, Sherman, Palmer House, and Stevens until in the late afternoon, and, with no more accommodations available, the managements had to send the overflow to hotels outside the loop district.

The hotel men have perfected an efficient coöperative organization for the handling of such overflow crowds and all visitors are assured of comfortable quarters in the city, no matter what the demand is for rooms in the loop.

3,500 at Morrison.

The management of the Morrison announced at the close of the day that 3,500 would spend the night there—an all time record. With 2,250 rooms on its forty-four floors, many of the guests were sleeping two and three to a room.

The hotel's biggest restaurant, the Terrace Garden, also had the biggest crowd in its history last night, the Morrison management said. Twelve hundred guests were served between 7 and 9 p. m., with other hundreds expected later in the evening.

Part of the Morrison's extraordinary patronage, the management said, was accounted for by the arrival of 700 patrons of A Century of Progress tour from Memphis. To accommodate these guests, it was said, the staff had to set aside three large rooms for baggage and to turn away between 400 and 500 persons who had not secured reservations.

Fill Sherman to Capacity.

The Sherman also had to send several hundred applicants to other hotels, according to the management. With 1,700 rooms available, the Sherman had 2,400 all night guests under its roof last night, it was said. The establishment's College Inn, Celtic room and other restaurants were crowded.

James H. Crawford, manager of the La Salle, said that hotel had to send 220 guests to other hotels beyond the loop, no vacancies being available in the first class hotels of the downtown district. The La Salle was host to 400 retail grocers from Cincinnati, a situation which complicated for a time the arrangement for speedy transfer of waiting guests to other hotels.

Ernest J. Stevens, assistant manager of the Stevens, said that, notwithstanding its 3,000 rooms, the hotel had to turn away around 500 guests after making arrangements to accommodate 5,000 for the night.

Biggest Week-End.

The Palmer house reported its biggest week-end in years, with every one of its 2,400 rooms being occupied. The guests totaled around 3,800. Every restaurant in the Palmer house was taxed to capacity.

The management of the Drake and Blackstone hotels said they were "comfortably filled." There were 500 guests in the 400 rooms of the Blackstone, the management said, and about 800 in the 673 rooms of the Drake. The Edgewater Beach also gave shelter to a near capacity crowd, the night's registration for its 1,000 rooms being estimated between 1,400 and 1,500. The hotel's Marine dining room was patronized by a record crowd of 1,500.

Plenty of Rooms in City.

"Don't let the public get the impression that the city's hotel capacity is exhausted," the manager of the Drake requested. "While the downtown hotels and even some of the larger ones north and south may be full, there are plenty of rooms available in smaller first class hotels.

"The hotel association's clearing house is functioning effectively to see that every one is accommodated promptly."

Prizes donated by Mrs. Frank G. Logan to the artists whose pictures were chosen by popular ballot as the best on exhibition in the Grant park artists' show were awarded yesterday to William Earl Singer and Ivan Le Lorraine Albright. Singer received 1,515 votes for his picture, "Cyril," and Albright received 1,517 votes for his canvas, "The Monk." Because the vote was so close both artists were given a first prize of $50 by Mrs. Logan.

FAIR ATTENDANCE NEARING MARK OF MILLION A WEEK

Officials Wonder What Total Will Be.

Saturday, Aug. 5, 1933	157,293
Saturday, Aug. 5, 1893	106,742
Total including Aug. 5, 1933 [71 days]	7,581,425
Total including Aug. 5, 1893 [97 days]	6,920,922

The Columbia Exposition opened May 1. A Century of Progress opened May 27.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Fair officials studied registration charts yesterday in an effort to arrive at some conclusion as to what the final attendance at A Century of Progress will be. With visitors from every state in the Union and a dozen foreign countries already registered, officials announced themselves as vastly pleased with the way the crowds have been growing.

Compared with attendance at the 1893 Columbian exposition, officials said that attendance at this Fair is shown to be reaching startling proportions. Total paid admissions will not be less than 30,000,000, the officials predicted.

Weekly attendance has jumped from 426,678 in the first seven day period to 860,874 in the week just ended. The daily average has increased from 60,911 to 122,874. Since the opening two weeks no seven day period has drawn less than 500,000 visitors, and in the last four weeks the average day has never fallen below 115,000 visitors.

Daily Average Up.

The daily average for July stands at 129,870 as compared with an average of 83,146 in the first month. The first five days of the Exposition averaged 69,540 persons a day. The first five days in August averaged 141,065 paid admissions.

"At present it is not possible to do anything, but estimate roughly where our total attendance may go," Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair, said. "By comparing the attendance of this Exposition with that of the 1893 Fair our attendance reaches startling proportions.

"Of course it is impossible to say that the charts will run the same. That would presuppose that the habits of a nation have not changed, which they have. We are still sticking to our estimate of 30,000,000 persons for the entire period, although our attendance chart, if it continues as at present, will call for millions more in paid admissions."

Comparison of Days.

The total attendance of the Fair, as of yesterday morning, the end of the 71st day, was 7,581,425, as compared to total attendance at the same date in the Columbian Exposition—the 97th day of that Exposition—of 6,929,922 persons. By percentages this would call for a total attendance at the 1933 Fair of somewhere in the neighborhood of fifty million persons.

The crowd yesterday was the second largest Sunday attendance since the Fair opened. At 11:30 p. m., 175,209 had passed through the gates. The largest Sunday attendance was on July 17, when Gen. Italo Balbo, the Italian flyer, was a guest. The attendance at the Columbian exposition on Sunday, Aug. 6, was only 16,181 at 6 p. m. At the same hour yesterday the attendance was 150,744.

The registrations in the state exhibits show that thousands of visitors from those states are pouring into Chicago. In addition books disclose that states not represented by exhibits are sending just as many visitors to Chicago. Because a majority of the figures are estimates and only a small percentage of visitors to the exhibits sign registration books, it is impossible to grade the states according to the way they have responded in attendance.

A majority of visitors visit all the exhibits, if only for a brief stay, and a trip around the Hall of States shows that all state exhibits are crowded.

Summary of Visitors.

CALIFORNIA—In this exhibit 20,000 visitors pass the gates on an average day, while large days have clocked 40,000 to 50,000. Officials estimate 200,000 have visited the booth.

COLORADO—At present there have been 22,800 registrations. The total visitors number 570,000

FLORIDA—On July 31, 9,360 Florida residents had registered at this exhibit. Average daily attendance is now 56,000.

GEORGIA—About 6,000 registrations, mainly Georgians, have been made. The average daily attendance is 40,000.

ILLINOIS—In one month 40,000 persons have registered in this state exhibit, with one person in twenty signing the book. By actual clocking the average hourly attendance is 4,800 persons.

INDIANA—This exhibit does not register visitors, but a registration book is maintained by an Indiana newspaper, which estimates that 28,000 visitors have signed the books.

IOWA—Since this exhibit opened July 3, the average daily visiting list has been in excess of 6,000. The majority of the registrations, running about 000 a day, are Iowans visiting in Chicago.

MICHIGAN—On the basis of actual count at the gate, taking fourteen average days, an average of 19,130 persons enter each day. The exhibit has been open sixty-eight days, which would make a grand total of 1,300,000 visitors, with slightly less than 10 per cent registering. Registrations have been made from every state in the union, seven foreign countries, and seven Canadian provinces.

MINNESOTA—One out of six visitors sign the register with total registrations now standing at about 70,000 names.

MISSOURI—More than 100,000 Missourians have registered at this exhibit. Estimates of the officials show a daily average of 40,000 visitors.

MISSISSIPPI—In this exhibit 25,000 registrations have been made out of a total visiting list of 840,000. About 16 per cent of the registrants are from Mississippi.

NEW YORK—About 8,000 names have been signed to cards in this exhibit. Yesterday registrations showed about 300 for the day, with an attendance count of 1,700 on hour.

NORTH DAKOTA—Open since June 1, this exhibit shows a registration of 100 a day from that state. Attendance counts show the average visiting list to be between 6,000 and 8,000 persons.

OHIO—In this exhibit only residents from Ohio register. Last night the books contained 37,400 registrations. An average of 1,000 visitors an hour pass through the doors.

SOUTH DAKOTA—July attendance doubled that of June in this exhibit with about 75,000 registrations on the books. Officials estimate that one out of each hundred signs the register.

WASHINGTON—This state has made ten checks running a full day on each one, and has found an average of 15,000 to 18,000 persons a day.

WEST VIRGINIA—The exhibit has been open only a little more than a week and 1,300 registrations have been recorded.

WISCONSIN—In this state exhibit less than 1 per cent register with the card system being used instead of a visitor's book. At present approximately 50,000 cards have been signed, showing a total visiting list of about 500,000 persons.

"These figures conclusively show," Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair, said, "that the exposition is a national and international attraction. We are delighted with the showing and, from the comments of our visitors, know that none has been disappointed. We are particularly pleased with the showing made by some of the distant states."

Pageant to Show Progress of Colored People.

Aproximately 200,000 Negroes are expected to come to Chicago for National Negro Day at A Century of Progress next Saturday. The estimate was made yesterday by Chandler Owen, director of the committee on arrangements.

Twelve railroads have scheduled special trains operating from such places as Buffalo, New Orleans, Los Angeles, Louisville, and Cincinnati. The colored areas of Chicago, Evanston, and Gary, with 300,000 Negro residents, have been canvassed for lodging accomodations for the visitors.

Pageant of Colored Race.

The central event of this racial gathering will be a pageant to be presented in Soldiers' field on Saturday night. It is a pageant of a century of progress by the American Negro, beginning in 1833 with slavery, spirituals and sorrow songs, and touching upon historical events, including John Brown's raid, the Civil war, the emancipation by Abraham Lincoln, the rise of the Ku Klux Klan during the reconstruction era, and ending with a glorification of today's cultural development of the colored race.

Taking part in the pageant will be Richard B. Harrison, who played "de Lawd" in "Green Pastures," and George Dewey Washington, Cotton club star from New York. A chorus of 3,00 voices will be directed by Edward H. Boatner of the Pilgrim Baptist church choir at 33d street and Indiana avenue.

A field day for colored athletes will be held in the stadium on Saturday afternoon. The entrants will include at least two Olympic champions, Eddie Gordon, winner of last year's broad jump, and De Hart Hubbard, who won this event in the 1924 meet.

Thousands of Tickets.

Seventy-nine thousand tickets are being sold for the Negro day in Soldiers' field at 50 cents each. Box seats are priced at $12.50 and at $10. One ticket admits the holder to both the afternoon field meet and the evening pageant, but does not include admission to A Century of Progress. It will not be necessary to enter the World's Fair to see the stadium events.

"However," explained Mr. Owen, "we expect more than a quarter of a million to pass through the Fair turnstiles on Saturday, bettering the record crowd of Jewish day. Thirty large conventions of national Negro organizations will be meeting in Chicago, some with as many as 50,000 delegates."

MILK CODE FOES TO CARRY FIGHT TO WASHINGTON

A suit for an injunction to restrain the government from enforcing the milk trade agreement signed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace last week comes up before Judge James H. Wilkerson today, but will be continued by agreement of counsel.

The Independent Milk Distributors' association, which seeks the injunction to protect several hundred roadside milk dealers in the Chicago area, announced their intention of filing a similar suit in Washington, so that Secretary Wallace could be made to answer. United States Attorney Dwight H. Green has agreed to a continuance here.

The suit attacks the constitutionality of the agreement.

80 PATRONS ARE HELD UP IN TWO BEER TAVERNS

Patrons in two beer taverns were terrorized early yesterday by bandit gangs. Thirty men and women in the Derby inn, a roadhouse two miles west of Lake Bluff on the Waukegan road, were forced to lie on the floor and robbed of $200 by four gunmen. Fifty patrons in Ray's tavern, 5137½ Diversey avenue, were lined up against a wall by four men who looted the cash register of $45.

Tom Williams, proprietor of the Derby inn, told the police he believed the bandits were the same men who held up the tavern two months ago.

Ray Jones, owner of the Diversey avenue place, was outside the building when the bandits entered. Warned by his wife of the robbery, he ran to a nearby service station and called the police. The bandits fled just before a squad arrived.

A robber who gave his name as Tom Burke, 48 years old, was in the Bridewell hospital yesterday with a bullet wound which fractured his right knee. He was shot by Harry Baitman, proprietor of a café at 3101 Cottage Grove avenue, which Burke attempted to rob. Two bystanders, Richard Gutkee, 45 years old, 5100 Ellis avenue, and Emile Simms, 38 years old, 5318 Michigan avenue, a Negro, were slightly wounded by bullets fired by Baitman.

FESTIVAL VOCAL CONTESTS TO BE HELD THIS WEEK

Chicago Winners to Meet Out of Town Singers.

Sectional contests will be held this week for 278 vocalists of the west and south sides of Chicago and suburbs in the singing competition for the fourth annual Chicagoland Music Festival, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. The Chicago finals will be held a week from next Thursday night in the ballroom of the Drake hotel.

MRS. EDMUND TYLER.

Winners of the Chicago finals, the best man singer and the best woman singer, will compete against the out of town vocalists in the Chicagoland finals, to be held Saturday morning, Aug. 19, in the W-G-N studios in the Drake hotel. The two winners of the finals will be heard in the festival that evening in Soldiers' field.

Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler, who for three years has been the chairman of the vocal and choral contest of the festival, said the number of singers competing this year and the talent discovered were beyond expectations. "More good singers are entering THE TRIBUNE vocal contests every year," she said.

The north side contests closed last week. The following were chosen as the winners:

CONTRALTO—Evelyn Ham, 217 East Ontario street.

BARITONE—Ludlow White, 1722 Ridge avenue, Evanston.

TENOR—Sidney E. Greene, 3236½ Bryn Mawr avenue.

SOPRANO—Sara Mason, 521 Lee street, Evanston.

BASS—Raymond Steiner, 3423 Ouilem avenue.

This week's sectional contests will be held as follows:

West side—7 o'clock tomorrow and Wednesday evenings at the Midwest Athletic club ballroom, 6 North Hamlin avenue. Contraltos, baritones, and tenors will be heard tomorrow and sopranos and basses on Wednesday.

South Side Contests.

AMERICAN LEGION CHIEF GREETS ARMY GROUP FROM FRANCE

New York, Aug. 6.—[Special.]—A group of 154 French veterans with 100 of their wives and relatives arrived here late today from Paris to return the visit which the American Legion made to France in 1927. They were welcomed at a dinner given by Louis Johnson, national commander of the Legion, in the Hotel Pennsylvania.

The visiting French veterans represent the Association des Mutilés et des Anciens Combatants de la Grande Guerre, headed by their president, Rodolphe Rufenacht. It originally had been planned to have at least 1,000 French veterans, but the number was reduced by the failure of the French chamber of deputies to vote sufficient credits.

U.S. FOREST ARMY COST 15 MILLION FOR EACH MONTH

$25,000,000 More Spent for Equipment.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's reforestation army, now in full swing, is costing the taxpayers upwards of 15 million dollars regularly each month.

And in addition to this steady drain at the rate of half a million a day, some 25 millions out of the federal treasury has already been laid on the line for equipment.

The figures, in round numbers, were disclosed upon inquiry today at the offices of Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, following the issuance by him of statistics showing the huge quantities of supplies purchased—without showing the cost.

List of Supplies Bought.

Among the supplies bought by Mr. Fechner, through the various departments, for the conservation corps to date, were the following:

Two hundred and twenty-seven trailbuilders, 216 tractors, 65 graders, 24 compressors, 100,000 axes, 152,000 shovels, 152,000 wedges, 114,000 mattocks, 114,000 picks, 60,000 saws, 100,000 hammers, 40,000 crowbars, 30,400 chisels, 15,200 brush hooks, 15,200 peaveys, 70,000 canteens, 12,000 grindstones, 2,500 blasting machines, 60,000 files, 633,000 feet of rope, 7,500 wrenches, 6,300 wrecking bars, 2,000 wheelbarrows, and 7,500 forks.

In addition, the camp authorities have ordered a minimum of 200 tons of dynamite, 30,000 ounces of strychnine for conducting campaigns against rodents, 572,000 pounds of oats, 250,000 pounds of cement, 100,000 feet of blasting fuse, 3,000 gallons of paint, and several hundred miles of telephone wire.

To equip the men themselves, the war department has purchased a million pairs of cotton socks, one million pairs of wool socks, a half million pairs of shoes, 784,000 suits of summer underwear, one million pairs of denim jumpers, 200,000 raincoats, 625,000 shirts, 1,000,000 summer undershirts, 48,000 pairs of rubber boots, 12,000 tents, 185,000 denim hats, 250,000 canvas cots, 2,500,000 yards of denim, 88,000 overalls, 1,000,000 towels, and many other articles, including considerable quantities of cooking utensils.

Toilet Kits Not Mentioned.

Notable by their absence from the list of supplies set forth by Mr. Fechner today, were the 200,000 toilet kits he purchased from the Be Vere company of New York at an aggregate cost which the quartermaster general of the army said was $270,000 too high. A senate investigation into the purchase of the kits resulted in the disclosure that Richard Be Vere, president of the New York firm, persuaded Mr. Fechner, Louis McHenry Howe, the President's secretary, and several other officials that his kits were of such superlative quality as to justify their purchase at a price of $1.40 apiece, even though the quartermaster, who buys supplies for the regular army, protested that he could furnish kits just as good for 75 cents.

The regular monthly pay roll for the forestry workers approximates 10 million dollars, it was said. There are now some 310,000 recruits in the conservation army. In addition, there is a monthly pay roll of about two millions for the 20,000 supervisors who direct the forestry army—one supervisor for every 15 men.

The food bill for the corps runs to about $3,000,000 a month, it was stated, bringing the total regular outlay each 30 days to $15,000,000.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO WIN THE BRITISH OPEN!

● ABOVE—TWO CONTINENTS CHEERED when slender Densmore Shute, brilliant young American golfer, with wrists of steel and nerves that never wavered, won the British Open—the tenth American champion in ten years!

● RIGHT—"I'M NOT A CHAMPION GOLFER—not even a fair one, according to Mr. Shute's standards! I'm a young married woman, interested in home and children. But with all my home duties, and the activities of our bridge club, I'm afraid that I'm inclined to be the nervous type. So I switched to Camels, for the sake of my nerves, and because Camels are definitely a milder cigarette."

How are Your Nerves?

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

When it comes to healthy nerves, "DENNY" SHUTE speaks with authority. "I couldn't have won the British Open if my nerves hadn't been in perfect condition," says Shute. "Healthy nerves are essential to any golfer who wants to turn in a good score. The enjoyment of cigarettes has not interfered with my golf game because I have smoked Camels right along. I have tried all the brands and long ago found that Camels are milder, and what is even more important to any golfer, they do not jangle the nerves."

* * *

"Denny" Shute offers conclusive evidence that Camels are milder. That they don't interfere with healthy nerves. That smokers like Camels better, the more they smoke them. Consider the fact that Camels are made from costlier tobaccos—and switch to them yourself. You will also discover that Camels are better for steady smoking.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. Leaf tobaccos for cigarettes can be bought from 5¢ a pound to $1.00—but Camel pays the millions more that insure your enjoyment.

TIME TO BUY, TO BOOST JOBS, JOHNSON SAYS

Cites Blue Eagle for Purchasers' Guide.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Buy now for reemployment, was the appeal of Hugh S. Johnson today as he opened a campaign to induce Americans to open their purses in support of the national drive for recovery.

Stressing the truths that employers cannot pay more wages and hire more men unless the people buy the goods off their shelves, the recovery administrator declared it to be the patriotic duty of the consuming public to start their buying.

Mr. Johnson also expressed the view that people who buy now will profit thereby, because before long prices will inevitably rise as wages and other costs go up. Mr. Johnson brushed aside charges that his plans threatened a boycott. He said:

"If people spend under the Blue Eagle they are spending for increased employment. If they spend elsewhere they are hurting the cause to end unemployment, because they are helping to destroy the business of the men who are paying more for help. They are aiding those who refuse to do so.

"The usual timid minority, which always opposes a movement of this kind, calls this a boycott and holds up hands in holy horror, saying that what is proposed will ruin some worthy people who cannot do what is necessary to get the Blue Eagle."

Modified Blue Eagle.

Mr. Johnson said that arrangements were being made whereby the employer who "really cannot" do all things necessary to win the Blue Eagle will be given, in a couple of weeks, one with a white bar across its breast, showing the points on which he is excused.

"With that attended to," he declared, "it is no boycott for people who are sick of this curse of depression to patronize those who are working to get us out of it."

Urging that people must buy now, or the plan would be a failure, Mr. Johnson said workers should buy because "buying supports your job."

"But there is another reason," he went on. "These higher wages will make higher prices just as sure as the sun sets, and will make them soon. If folks don't want to start buying at once because buying is their part in the common purpose, they should start because buying just now is the best business they could engage in.

"This is no time to hoard. It is no time to save money. It is a time to get things. Buy things you need. Spend for reemployment. If you don't spend now and get something you will spend later for taxes and doles and get nothing."

Position of Stockholders.

Gen. Johnson said he had heard that employers were holding back from the agreement because of the rights of their stockholders to dividends.

"Stockholders will be all right if this plan succeeds," he declared, "but heaven help them if it fails. There is not a stock in the world that is worth a cent if it cannot earn, and no stock can earn if we are to let our business structure drop back into a new collapse. To put it in a nutshell: Men must earn before stocks can earn."

President Roosevelt, in a statement issued in Washington, promised to ask congress to recompense concerns supplying materials to the government under contracts for the increased costs which they must meet if they enlist under the Blue Eagle.

The President also urged that the heads of states, municipalities, and other local governments take similar action.

U. S. Should Take Chance.

"The United States government as a buyer of goods should be willing itself to take action similar to that recommended to private buyers," the President said, calling attention to his request to persons holding contracts that they make equitable adjustments to meet the higher costs.

A. D. Whiteside, deputy administrator, telegraphed the chairman of the Indiana Retail Grocers' association, meeting at Indianapolis, that it would be in violation of the spirit and fact of the President's agreement for the grocers to adopt shorter store hours. The telegram stated that in many local communities store owners by common agreement were shortening store hours. Whiteside indicated that if they were shortened appreciably the code permitting the stores to work employés on a 48 hour basis would be rescinded and the employés' hours shortened in proportion to the cutting of store hours.

Sweatshops Are Outlawed.

Elimination of the sweatshop is made possible by the code for the coat and suit industry approved by President Roosevelt Friday night, in the view of Administrator Johnson. The code, which was made public today, was written under the direction of Prof. Earl Dean Howard of Northwestern university, a deputy admin- in industrial relations which the industry has established in the last quarter century. Since 1910, the industry has operated under a system of collective bargaining labor agreements which is written into the code.

Some of the provisions are for a maximum 35 hour week, and the abolition of home work. An unemployment insurance fund is to be resumed in the industry as soon as conditions permit.

SCIENCE TODAY BACKS BUYING OF FARM IN 1851

Scully Tract Central Illinois' Best.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 6.—[Special.] The most fertile block of land in Central Illinois is near Hartsburg in northwestern Logan county. A soil so naturaly rich that little can be done to increase its yielding ability beyond applying manure or plowing under crop residues such as clovers, is controlled by the Illinois Agricultural Experiment station.

It is in the heart of that belt of black clay loam that Lord William Scully selected in 1851 when he invested $1.25 an acre for some 30,000 acres of Logan county land. His judgment in selecting that land is well verified by the experiment field results—it is the most fertile block of land available in Central Illinois.

Sections of the 20 acre plot gave an average yield of 46.5 bushels of corn over a period of 10 years when no treatment whatever was applied and 57 bushels to the acre where manure was used. Phosphate or limestone applied alone brought little if any better results. Manure and limestone in very small quantities brought the yield up to 62.9 bushels per acre for ten years.

This year the plots, despite drought, bugs, etc., will yield close to 55 bushels.

The Bloomington experiment station field, located on brown silt loam, has shown large increases in yields to result from phosphate containing fertilizers. Yet, as an average of 10 corn crops, the brown silt loam required a full treatment of residues, limestone, and phosphates to make a 60 bushel average, less than that secured on the Hartsburg black clay loam with manure and a little limestone.

Dentists Meet Today

Twenty-four dental organizations will open meetings today in connection with the Chicago Centennial Dental congress. More than 15,000 dentists from all parts of the world are expected to attend. Registration for the congress began yesterday. The congress is to be opened by its president, Dr. Arthur D. Black, dean of the Northwestern university dental school. Other speakers will include prominent dentists from various sections of this country and Europe.

FAIR EXPECTED TO COME UNDER RECOVERY CODE

Randolph Is Back Today After Seeing Johnson.

Officials of A Century of Progress are planning to take action today to bring all employés on the grounds under the National Recovery act, it was learned last night. Robert I. Randolph, director of operations and maintenance of the World's Fair, will return to Chicago this morning from Washington, where he was sent by the management of the Fair to confer with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the national recovery act.

Fair Aids Business.

It was understood that Randolph pointed out to the NRA director that the Exposition had already done more to aid in national recovery, through stimulating railroad travel, retail sales, hotel business, and allied industries than any other one agency in the country.

Officials of the Fair will meet with Randolph today to formulate a general program to be followed in line with the recovery act. The operations director, in his conference with Gen Johnson, pointed out the peculiar position of the Fair in respect to drawing up a code.

Difficulties Confronting Fair.

The difficulties which prevent the Fair management from following the prescribed procedure laid down for specific industries are, chiefly, as follows:

1. The Fair is without competition in its field, there being no other exposition of its size in existence.
2. There are no available practical comparisons to be found for the purpose of drawing up a code.
3. The Fair is temporary, running for only five months, which creates conditions not covered in the general code of the recovery act.
4. Many individual industries are represented at the Fair, some of which are working under codes and others which have not yet adopted codes.

Officials of the Fair emphasized the fact that no suggestions have been made by the administration at Washington for changes in the policy of the Exposition and that the effort to have the Fair recognized as participating in the recovery movement was entirely voluntary.

He and his wife had been visiting relatives here.

LOYOLA 'U' DENTAL COLLEGE TO OBSERVE ITS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

The Chicago College of Dental Surgery, the dental school of Loyola university, will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary Wednesday night with a homecoming banquet at the Stevens hotel.

DEAN WILLIAM H. LOGAN.

The college was opened in 1883 by the late Dr. Truman W. Brophy and his associates. For the first two years only medical graduates were accepted and 18 students enrolled in the first class. Last year 382 students were enrolled in the five year course.

Dr. William H. Logan, who was graduated in 1896 and immediately accepted a teaching position, succeeded Dr. Brophy as dean in 1920. Dr. P. J. Kester, 83, of Oak Park, is the only living member of the original faculty.

MEAT INDUSTRY EXPECTS CODE TO ADD 15,000 JOBS

Between 15,000 and 20,000 workers will be added to pay rolls in the meat packing industry as a result of the code to be established in compliance with the national recovery act. This was predicted yesterday by leaders of the industry, who said they expected the employment curve to go up more than 10 per cent to reach a figure higher than the 1926 level, a year considered normal from the employment standpoint.

Particularly optimistic was W. W. Wood, president of the American Institute of Meat Packers.

"The new agreement, we believe, will not only restore to employment the numbers usually attached to the industry, but will add additional numbers as well," he said. "According to the June figure of the bureau of labor statistics, employment for that month in the packing industry was 90.3 per cent of the average for 1926, a normal year. The packing industry has retrenched but little during the depression in so far as employment was concerned."

Many executives of Chicago meat packing plants were at their offices yesterday morning mapping out changes in working plans necessary to comply with the code.

Efforts of leaders of the fishing industry to draft a code were begun yesterday in the Bismarck hotel by members of the Midwest Fisheries association. The discussion was centered on suggestions for a code to regulate the operations of retailers and wholesalers. Members pointed out that it would be impossible to draft a practical plan to regulate the working hours of fishermen.

It was decided that as soon as an agreement can be reached on the plan for wholesalers and retailers a master code for the industry will be drawn up and submitted to Washington.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TO ATTEND MUSIC FETE IN VIRGINIA

Mountaineers to Play Old Tunes for Her.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Mountaineer musicians in five states are practicing the ancient tunes with which they will compete for the honor of participating in the special program to be given next Saturday at the folk music festival on White Top mountain in southwestern Virginia before Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, and an audience including music lovers from all parts of the country.

Mrs. Roosevelt's special interest in the occasion, and the excitement of the mountain people in her forthcoming visit, is based on the fact that Elliott Roosevelt, her father, as a young man, spent several years in the region as manager of one of the great land companies which formerly owned White Top mountain.

Months ago, at one of her press conferences, Mrs. Roosevelt spoke of her desire and intention to visit the region, and her plan to attend the third annual music festival in August. Returning on Wednesday from Hyde Park, Mrs. Roosevelt will leave on Monday night for Abingdon, Va. She will spend Saturday on White Top, which will be the gala day of the annual festival.

The festival program begins on Friday and ends with the special program on Saturday, with Mrs. Roosevelt as the guest of honor.

According to her present plan, Mrs. Roosevelt will leave Abingdon Saturday night, arriving in time for breakfast at the White House Sunday morning.

HUNT GIRL IN DEATH OF YOUNG RAIL EXECUTIVE

Other Mysteries Are Being Searched.

centered. Despite police silence, John Krugman, assistant district attorney, said the stenographer had been questioned at her Brooklyn home, but that she could throw no light on the mystery. He said he understood the stenographer and Sanborn were to have been married two weeks ago but that for some reason the ceremony was postponed until September.

In reply to this Chief Inspector Vincent J. Sweeney admitted only that the name of the girl was Magnhild Almskaar, a 27 year old business girl. He said Miss Almskaar was still missing tonight although detectives were waiting for her.

Sister Guest of Morrows.

Mrs. Grant Van Sant, sister of Sanborn and daughter-in-law of former Gov. Samuel Rinnah Van Sant of Minnesota, came to New York as soon as her brother was reported missing and has been staying at the Riverside drive home of Miss Alice Morrow, sister of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow.

"We thought that somehow his mind must have gone blank," Mrs. Van Sant said of her brother's disappearance. "He never had complained of any illness but that was the only possible way we could explain his absence. He just disappeared, taking no baggage, not even a shaving kit, and we had hoped that it was only a temporary absence.

"The news has been a terrible shock to all of us. He had no enemies that we knew of. We couldn't find any clews, no motive. We could not believe it possible that what has happened did happen."

It was learned from members of the family of Mrs. James Irving Bush Jr., niece of the slain man, that she was called from a dinner party at the home of Walter P. Chrysler, motor magnate, to identify the body of her uncle late last night.

Sanborn's plan to marry the Swedish stenographer was admitted by Mrs. James Irving Bush Sr. The elder Mrs. Bush also admitted that relatives of Sanborn, who has a 22 year old son now ill in a St. Louis hospital, objected strenously to the union.

Henry Sanborn was a Dartmouth graduate, had married early in life and had been divorced almost immediately. His first wife is said to be in Seattle.

After the first divorce, he married again—this time to Miss Irene Waterous of St. Paul. The second marriage ended in divorce because of incompatibility about four years ago.

Brother Hastens East.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Bruce W. Sanborn, prominent attorney and brother of Henry F. Sanborn, mysteriously slain on Long Island, left hurriedly for New York City tonight.

In a terse interview before departing the St. Paul attorney said he knew no motive for the killing of his brother nor had he had any word from authorities in the east concerning the crime.

He will go directly to New York in hopes of learning the latest information concerning his brother's death.

physicians will quit work on Tuesday. Cigarmakers have also joined the general walkout.

Besides Havana, the city of Camaguey and Santiago were hit especially hard by the strike. At Camaguey public conveyances were not running and the government's telegraph messengers walked out at midnight. At Santiago street car men, bakers and dock workers voted to strike tomorrow.

It was learned tonight that the constitutional reform program which Ambassador Welles is working out with a mixed commission would be completed by Tuesday. No meeting will be held by the group tomorrow, however.

It is understood the program includes a four year presidential term with no provision for reelection. Terms of representatives would be four years, with senators elected for eight. The number of representatives, 128, and of senators, 36, would remain as they are.

CALAIS OFFICIALS QUIT; CITY HIT BY TARIFF WALLS

CALAIS, France, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Public officials of Calais resigned in a body today to dramatize for the French government the tragedy of this lace center, which Deputy and Mayor Leon Vincent attributes to the operation of tariffs and quotas.

The municipal council, the chamber of commerce tribunal, and the commerce and labor court met in an all night session and 72 members resigned.

Vincent also resigned as deputy. He said that exports, which were 85 per cent of the trade, had sunk almost to zero and that 40,000 of the 72,000 population of the city were idle.

YOUTH IS HELD AS SLAYER OF PHYSICIAN, 61

Raymond Sullivan, 18, a former patient, the police said, acknowledged striking Dr. MacGibbon. The doctor, an ear, nose and throat specialist, suffered a fractured skull and a broken jaw.

Sullivan, held in $5,000 bail for hearing Wednesday, is said to have explained he had been drinking and struck the physician with a bottle after going to his apartment to seek a job.

U. S. NAVY DIVER RECOVERS BODY OF MINE VICTIM

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Upholding the tradition that bodies of mine accident victims must be recovered, Gunner's Mate Jesse Gose, a navy diver, today located the body of Frank Thompson, young Sunday school supperintendent, beneath 115 feet of water in an abandoned mine at Keffers, near here.

Gose's announcement from the depths that he had found the body caused much excitement in a crowd of several thousand persons.

Where Gose worked the pressure was fifty pounds to the square inch, experts said, and the temperature of the water 33½ degrees Fahrenheit. Thompson, who was 28, lost his life on July 12 while mining coal for his family in a makeshift working, the floor of which collapsed after a blast had been set off and hurled him into the old mine, abandoned sixty-seven years ago.

SHOW 282,518 WAGE EARNERS HERE IN 1931

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—(AP)—The bureau of census, publishing its biennial findings for the city of Chicago alone, said today that there were only 282,518 wage earners in Chicago for the year of 1931, as against 405,399 in 1929.

The workers of 1931 worked in 8,888 establishments, earning $367,007,299 for turning $1,138,726,142 worth of raw materials into products valued at $2,230,916,806.

In 1929 405,399 wage earners worked in 10,201 establishments, earning $646,456,054 in turning $2,100,935,460 worth of materials into products valued at $3,915,052,959.

Arkansas Preacher Dies on Day He Was to Baptize 9

Fort Smith, Ark., Aug. 6.—(AP)—What was to have been the Rev. Willie Wilson's first babtismal ceremony ended in his drowning in the Arkansas river today. He was 26, and came from Van Buren, Ark. He was caught in a whirlpool, while nine persons he was to baptize saw him sink.

FOUR ARE SAVED, ONE DROWNS AFTER SAILING BOAT UPSETS

New York, Aug. 6.—(AP)—John Chester Vaden, 24, of Yale's 1927 swimming team, and three others were rescued in a Long Island sound shipwreck today in which a frightened fourth companion drowned. Vaden was hailed as a hero. The rescued youths had been from at least six to nine hours in the water.

Vaden and his 15 year old brother, Alan, Stanley Nelson of New York, Gilbert Sharkey of Brooklyn, and Edward Jay, also of New York, who lost his life, set out in a 32 foot sloop late last night from Milford, Conn., for Greenport, L. I., a sail of little more than ten miles.

The craft had made little progress and about 5 a. m. a squall capsized it, throwing all into the water.

Jay screamed, despite their efforts at rescue, struck out at the Vadens, they related, wriggled free of their grasp and sank before he could be reached.

OPEN FUR SALE IN LENINGRAD; 150 FOREIGN BUYERS

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., Aug. 6.—The four day fur auction opening here today will be the greatest in soviet history, with 70 foreign firms represented by 150 buyers. Sales are expected to reach a record figure, with prices firm.

The Russians have made great strides in the new industry of dressing and dyeing furs, which formerly was left to foreigners abroad, according to Motty Eitingon, representative here of a large New York fur firm.

"Probably 20 per cent of the furs sold are to be home dressed, and 80 per cent of the 'Persians'—caracul and baby lamb—on which the new industry is concentrated," he said.

HULL DISCUSSES LONDON PARLEY WITH PRESIDENT

Turn Attention to Field in South America.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—The American foreign policy, past, present, and future, received a thorough going over today at the hands of President Roosevelt and his secretary of state, Cordell Hull.

The latter, with Mrs. Hull, came to Hyde Park yesterday following their return from England, and the London conference. They left today for Washington, following many hours of discussion, in which Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull considered the course to be taken in the light of the conference and its failure to achieve any but the most nebulous results.

Keep Regrets Concealed.

There may have been deep regrets on the part of the President and the secretary of state over the failure of the London meeting, but if so they were kept concealed. The impression to be gathered as the two men sat on the porch of the Hyde Park home was that they were quite well content to turn their energies to the settlement of domestic problems and to the building up of closer economic relationships with Latin America and with the British commonwealths.

When the American delegation to the London parley arrived they found themselves playing a lone hand; pretty much against the world. The United States was ganged, Mr. Hull indicated to the President.

When the conference convenes again, if ever, the President and Mr. Hull intend that those earlier scenes shall not be repeated. Great emphasis is being placed on the formation of a closer tie with Latin America.

Already trade negotiations are under way with the Argentine, Brazil, and Colombia. It would not be surprising if some dramatic gesture were made at the time of the pan-American conference to be held in Montevideo in December. There is some talk that Secretary Hull may personally head the American delegation to the conference and supplement his official journey with a good will tour to other South and Central American countries.

Cuban Situation Disturbing.

The only fly in the pan-American ointment at the moment is the crisis in Cuba, plus a minor species of unrest in Nicaragua. Nonintervention in the Caribbean is a policy that may receive a severe test if conditions in Cuba and possibly in Nicaragua do not improve.

Another arm of American foreign policy is bound to reach out toward Great Britain and the sister nations of the British commonwealth. The battle at London between the so-called "gold countries" and the inflation or price-boosting countries, disclosed a common bond of economic purpose between this country and the principal units of the British empire.

Diplomatic exploration is likely also to extend in still a third direction—and that is toward Russia. The American delegates returned, it is felt, with a confirmed idea of the value to be gained from commercial relations with the soviet government, but also with their eyes opened to the self-seeking skill of Russia's representatives in the field of diplomacy and commerce.

Quash Resignation Rumors.

More personal matters were discussed between the President and Secretary Hull, such as the reports that the secretary would resign and his unhappy experience at London with the capers of Assistant Secretary of State Moley. To all appearances any personal difficulties have been adjusted. The President declared that he wished Secretary Hull with him as one of his valued advisers, thereby quashing the resignation rumors, and Hull did not deny the implication.

From international matters the President's attention was recalled to domestic affairs by dispatches from the Pennsylvania strike area saying that the local mine unions had refused to accede to the truce announced by Gen. Johnson, recovery administrator.

To date the President has shown no sign of intervening.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt had Gov. and Mrs. Lehman of New York as dinner guests. In the evening the President visited the home near Fishkill of Henry Morgenthau Jr., farm credit administator. There he heard from Henry Morgenthau Sr., head of the American delegation to the recent international wheat conference, the story of how that meeting, too, failed to achieve the goal set for it.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 7.—A London Times dispatch from Berlin today, says: "Official figures on unemployment show a decline of more than 1,200,000 from the winter peak figure of 6,047,000 on Feb. 15, to 4,828,000 on July 15. These figures, however, no longer give an exact picture of German unemployment, for no longer thousands of idle are in concentration camps."

2,000,000 FLEE LONDON AS HEAT WAVE GRIPS CITY

Rush to Seashore; Many Sleep on Sands.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Great Britain was blistering tonight in the hottest weather it has experienced in a generation. Two deaths by prostration were reported in London as the mercury climbed to a maximum of 92 degrees. Record registrations were reported elsewhere in the country.

The seacoast was fringed late tonight with bathing parties unable to find places to sleep in the crowded hotels. Two million persons left London by train alone during the last two days to escape the heat. Many of them are sleeping on the sands.

Casualties Are Heavy.

The heat wave has resulted in a heavy list of casualties. Twelve persons were drowned. Many were reported injured in automobile accidents on overcrowded highways.

In London and many other cities the fire departments were kept busy today. A lumber yard fire raged at Birmingham. The damage is estimated at $250,000. The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. All the fire fighting equipment in the city answered the alarm and pumped water into the piles of timber from the adjoining canal while switch engines shunted carloads of gasoline to distant sidings. Firemen were unable to control the blaze which spread to several adjacent sawmills. These were destroyed.

Three Fires on Pier.

Three fires broke out on the crowded Margate pier. The fire was started by cigaret butts. Two blazes were extinguished by pier attendants, but firemen were forced to demolish part of the pier to extinguish the third.

The heat wave is common in all Europe. The heat belt extends southeastward from Britain into the Balkans and along the Mediterranean coast. Weather forecasts predict continued high temperatures.

The annual August bank holiday celebration began Friday and will last until Tbursday, permitting thousands to seek relief on the seashore.

U. S. Envoys Attend World Jamboree of Boy Scouts

GODOLLO, Hungary, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The American ministers to Hungary and Rumania today visited the fourth world jamboree of Boy Scouts and attended a special church service at the tent of Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the order. They then inspected the American quarters.

MAN SHOT AND TWO WOMEN BEATEN IN NEW YORK MILK WAR

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(AP)—One man was shot and another threatened with lynching today as guns barked for the first time in New York state's milk war.

Walter Laboza, 22, was sent to a Rochester hospital with a bullet through his left arm. His father, Adam, escaped injury as a bullet passed through his hat. The two farmers resisted efforts of strikers to dump their milk.

Two women were beaten and kicked by strikers; 500 quarts of milk were dumped near Penfield.

At St. Johnsville state troopers guarded the home of Arthur Galusha, a farmer, who said milk pickets had threatened to lynch him because he drove a dairy truck into the village today.

Harold W. Beach, a state trooper, was hit on the head with a piece of iron pipe when troopers dispersed 70 strikers near Canandaigua. The extent of his injuries is not known.

With almost every available state trooper concentrated in the strike area, citizens continued to seek National Guard protection. As the turmoil spread to new sections, Gov. Lehman, reluctant to call out the militia, sent telegrams to sheriffs of 12 counties authorizing them to appoint additional deputies to preserve order.

The strike in its sixth and most turbulent day today, was called by independent dairy leaders because the state milk control board refused to abandon the classified system of milk prices and guarantee them a blanket price of four and one-half cents a quart for their milk.

HINES' ORDERS TO LET DOUBTS FAVOR VETERANS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Special boards of review being set up to pass upon war veterans' presumptive service disability cases were directed today by Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, not to "allow their personal feelings to intrude."

The orders, prepared and issued under direction of President Roosevelt, repeated the instructions to "resolve all reasonable doubts in favor of the veteran, the burden of proof in such cases being on the government."

"It is to be remembered that the majority of claimants are disabled persons who are seeking benefits of the law to which they believe themselves entitled," Hines said to newly appointed boards in New York City, eastern New York, Massachusetts, and Illinois.

"In the exercise of their functions the members of the special boards must not allow their personal feelings to intrude; an antagonistic, critical or even abusive attitude on the part of the claimant should not in any instance influence the board members in the handling of the case."

PREDICT REPEAL WILL NET U. S. BIG GAIN IN REVENUE

Survey Sets Figure at 1¼ Billions.

New York, Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Gains in governmental revenue of more than a billion and a quarter dollars, with the creation of 650,000 new jobs, were forecast as a result of prohibition repeal in a survey made public yesterday by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

In addition, the survey envisaged a new market for more than 70,000,000 bushels of corn and barley annually, and pointed out that this will tend to absorb the price reducing surplus of these grains. New capital investments, to the extent of more than $430,000,000, were foreseen as likely to be made in the beverage industries as a result of the repeal movement.

Based on Former Consumption.

The survey was made for the organization by Malvern Hill Tillitt. Discussing the figures, Mrs. Edward S. Moore, chairman of the information service of the women's organization, said that they were not based upon an expected increased consumption of intoxicating liquors. The survey was undertaken, its introduction stated, to meet the argument of prohibitionists that repeal will merely shift capital and labor from bootlegging to legitimate industry and that there will consequently be no net enonomic gain.

This net economic gain will materialize, the survey stated, largely because figures obtainable since the legalization of beer have shown that an increase in consumption of malt liquors, and a corresponding decrease in consumption of spiritous liquors, may be expected to take place.

Malt Liquirs Help Employment.

Beer, ales, and similar beverages, because of their volume, require more man power for their production, distribution and sale than do hard liquors, the report pointed out. The malt liquors also, as compared with hard liquors, use larger quantities of raw material and fuel.

Still further important economic benefits were predicted in the report upon the expectation that comparatively high taxes will be imposed by the various branches of the government upon spiritous liquors. These collections will go to the government, instead of to bootleggers in the form of profits, the report declared. In addition, the government will benefit because it will save the vast sums now spent for prohibition enforcement, the report stated.

The investigation was based not only on figures gathered for the brewing, wine making and distilling industries, but also upon the probable effects seventy allied industries, including agriculture, mining, railroad transportation, glass manufacture, barrel and crate manufacture, lithographing and printing, and cap, crown and cork making.

U. S. TO QUESTION COPS WHO JAILED A FEDERAL AGENT

Leigh Swartwood and John Runge, policemen of the Hudson avenue station, who locked up a United States secret service operative at the request of a saloonkeeper, will be questioned today by Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, chief of the secret service. Capt. Callagahan said he would consider placing charges of interfering with a federal officer in the performance of his duties against the policemen.

Benjamin F. Davis, the secret service agent, was arrested Friday night in the saloon of J. R. Bonslett, 201 West North avenue, and held for several hours at the Hudson avenue station. Davis said he went there seeking a counterfeiter. Bonslett mentioned that he had a bogus 50 cent piece in his cash register and Davis asked to examine it. Davis refused to return it and Bonslett called the police.

Capt. Callaghan said it was unusual for policemen to arrest a federal officer on the word of a saloonkeeper. The policemen said Davis had been drinking and that Bonslett wanted him arrested for disorderly conduct. Capt. Callaghan asserted that Davis took the names and addresses of ten witnesses and this, he said, was evidence that he was not intoxicated.

Bonslett was charged with possessing counterfeit money and held in bond of $1,000.

BOY'S ARM IS AMPUTATED TO SAVE HIS LIFE

An emergency operation was performed at the county hospital yesterday to save the life of Teddy Rewers, 16 years old, 5027 South Carpenter street. His left arm, which had been broken Aug. 2, was amputated at the shoulder by Dr. Roger T. Vaughan, who discovered that a rare infection had set in and was rapidly spreading.

The boy was taken to the hospital by his father, Michael, who at first refused permission for the amputation. He was persuaded by his wife, Mary, to allow the operation after Dr. Vaughan had explained that it was the only means of saving Teddy's life.

Dr. Vaughan described the infection as a rare "gas forming bacillus," which quickly spreads a virulent poison through the system.

ALABAMA DRYS PLAN TRICK AT REPEAL SESSION

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Leaders in the fight for repeal in Alabama are becoming disturbed, according to information received here, that efforts will be made by some members of the convention that meets Tuesday to commit the convention to all sorts of resolutions dealing with the prohibition question.

It is reported that the drys in the convention will attempt to frame resolutions which would commit the convention as being against continuation of the state's prohibition laws. The drys' resolutions, it is learned, are being prepared for the purpose of leading the wets into a trap, by making the wets in the convention, and they will be in the majority, vote down the dry's trick resolutions.

CHICAGO CHIEFS OF DRY BUREAU ON ANXIOUS SEAT

Until Thursday of this week, local chiefs of the prohibition bureau will be on the anxious seat. Aug. 10 is the date President Roosevelt's executive orders on consolidation of government agencies become effective and the drys hear that the prohibition branch will bear the brunt of most of the abolition of "useless" offices.

Reduced 42 per cent already to a total of about 250 enforcement officers and permit inspectors in the Chicago district, the bureau has virtually been stalling along for weeks awaiting the falling of the next ax. The little work being done consists mostly of raids upon illicit breweries and wild cat whisky stills. No "buys" have been made recently, to the great joy of speakeasy proprietors who have been running almost unmolested.

Expect a 50 Per Cent Cut.

Predictions in the United States courthouse are that the pruning order expected Thursday will reduce the bureau by at least 50 per cent and perhaps more. The enforcement unit will be combined with the bureau of investigation in the department and the alcohol permit division will remain in the treasury department. But the personnel of both will be reduced drastically.

Agents still working after the 42 per cent order were mostly "elders" in the service, although such young officials as Eliot Ness, chief investigator for the enforcement division, and Al Aman, deputy administrator, are still retaining their jobs.

Former Administrator M. L. Harney was one of those given an "indefinite furlough." To fill his place, Washington sent Gus Simons, a veteran in the internal revenue service before he entered the prohibition bureau on Jan. 12, 1920—in the first batch of dry enforcers. Simons has led a roving life, being transferred from one part of the country to another and serving in all capacities in the bureau. But since none of the officials know their fate, Simons, too, is a bit anxious over his fate.

Yellowley Still Supervisor.

Heading the permit division as supervisor of industrial alcohol—a unit which includes breweries—is E. C. Yellowley, who has had 27 years of government service. One of the colorful figures of the prohibition régime; Yellowley served as enforcement administrator in both New York and Chicago in the days when raids were frequent and speakeasies were being padlocked on every side.

Yellowley's fate is thought to depend, in part at least, upon the treatment accorded his superior, Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the permit division and former commissioner of prohibition. Political gossip is that Doran may be supplanted by Maj. Dalrymple, present national head of the bureau, whose job will cease with the transfer of the bureau to the department of justice.

Sugar and the Home

Sugar is a household necessity; its cleanliness, purity and price are of daily concern to millions of homes. As refiners of the raw cane sugar of the Tropics, we and our predecessors have served the country for over 200 years. Our refineries and products are the best in the World. We have performed the refining service through the years at low cost. Before and during the World War, the United States cane refining industry proved to be the key of the sugar supply of the Nation.

Expanded capacity a legacy of our War effort

During the World War, the industry went under governmental control as a patriotic service, expanding its capacity to care for the Allied nations. No provision was made by our Government to hold, through trade agreements, the Allied nations' business after the War. Refiners, as individuals, were powerless to accomplish this end, so this left us with excess capacity more than enough for domestic need. Since the War nations have by tariffs, bounties and other devices closed their doors against American refined sugar, and by bounties on exports have displaced our refined sugar even in world markets. Our large excess capacity is thus a disastrous legacy from our war effort.

Deliberate duplication in the Tropics

Due to a loophole in the tariff the domestic industry has been further imperiled by a deliberate Duplication in the Tropics of refining facilities long established here. Our Tariff and Colonial Policy encouraged the production of raw sugar in the Islands and protected its refining on the Mainland. The tariff loophole reversed that—clearly a mistake and a costly one. The extent of this duplication is shown by the following table of refined sugar coming into continental United States since 1925.

Puerto Rico	84,504	72,314	66,164	38,969	40,006	10,584	2,891	707
Hawaii	20,247	9,720	15,003	8,723	14,641	12,328	7,244	8,592
Philippines	52,794	32,009	25,197	8,396	7,103	1,836	4,000	2,647
Foreign	8,295	6,499	9,197	1,820	5,200	917	3,394	3,554

The refined sugar brought in during 1932 was sufficient to supply 14,150,000 Americans, equivalent to the consumption of 21 states, and resulted in reduced meltings in United States, dismissal of employees, reduced wages, and decreased purchases of supplies.

Tropical refiners now seek to perpetuate their duplication of United States refineries by demanding an official share—or "quota"—in the United States market!

Naturally. But would it be fair to the domestic industry, their employees and stockholders, numbering tens of thousands? Would it be in the public interest? Would it square with American policy, old and new? The Philippines and Puerto Rico have been liberally treated and should be content to continue as producers of raw sugar, as originally intended. Would it be fair to give Cuba a "quota" on chocolate and silk and other manufactured articles, or would it be fair to give Canada a "quota" on flour, or Holland on cheese? If so, what a stimulus for further unnecessary duplication of mainland facilities! If not, why should the sugar refining industry be subject to such official treatment?

No justification for Cuba to duplicate domestic refineries

In 1920 the Tariff Commission pointed out that Cuba did not refine sugar, and so the 20% preference on Cuban raw sugar afforded protection to American refiners. This theory failed when Cuba built refineries. Cuba knew full well our tariff principle of providing a higher duty on an imported manufactured article than on the raw material imported for its domestic manufacture. Cocoa beans are on the free list but chocolate pays 40% duty. Raw silk is free of duty but silk itself pays 65% duty. And so generally. Cuban duplicators of domestic sugar refineries well understood that they had no claim on the United States market or households.

This is true of Canada, England, France, Italy, Holland, Sweden, Denmark, Japan, Australia and generally throughout the World. Refining in country of consumption is the approved practice. Such is the practice in Canada, England, France, Holland, Japan and other countries and always has been the practice in the United States. It has proven best for raw sugar producers everywhere. It has proven the best safeguard for the households rather than dependence on remote tropical refineries.

Why we are advertising these facts to the Home Makers of America

United States sugar refiners now have the capacity and can employ labor if the sugar now refined in Cuba was refined in the United States. We enter daily about 25,000,000 homes. Cleanliness, purity and prices are daily topics. If sugar prices are high the households look to us. If low, the sugar producers in the Tropics look to us. We stand between these two large groups, with a permanent relationship to both. Sugar refining and distribution, to be efficient in all respects, must be a large volume industry. In years of crop failure we search the World for supplies. In years of war we are vital to national defense. Anything which lessens our volume lessens our efficiency and increases our costs. The households of the country will be the first to feel the effect. From our contacts with the sugar producers of the Tropics we are satisfied that they agree with us that the two-hundred-year system of producing raw sugar in the sugar islands and refining it in the United States, where it is consumed, should not be disrupted.

Decision at Washington will affect Homes of the Nation

We are advertising these facts so that the home makers of the country may know that our Federal Government at Washington, under the cloak of its Recovery Program, has been asked by a small minority group of producers of the Philippines, Puerto Rico and Cuba to make a decision against the interest of our people in the United States.

WARDEN ZERBST DENIES LAXITY AT LEAVENWORTH

DoublePrisonResponsible for Confused Ideas.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Leavenworth, Kas., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—The largest of the country's federal prisons stands on a bluff overlooking this town of the old frontier. From the main gate, the structure gleaming through the trees might pass for a fine library or museum.

But behind its stone facade, if gossip in the town may be credited, the institution is a powder keg where graft, lax discipline, and pent up hates may momentarily provide the spark to cause a blow up. Among the 2,800 inmates are scores of the most dangerous train robbers, safe blowers, and police killers of the southwest.

The reported condition in the main prison, however, is one apart from that in the prison annex, a separate institution three miles away, where the coddling of the Chicago beer baron, Terrence Druggan, has created a first rate scandal already resulting in three suspensions from the annex personnel. Each prison is under a separate warden and a separate staff.

No Trouble at the Annex.

There is no apparent fear of uncontrollable trouble at the annex. Ninety per cent of its 1,700 inmates are drug addicts, diseased and dispirited men, cunning only in their schemes to smuggle drugs inside the walls and lacking the fortitude to organize a mass rebellion or a prison break.

The only question embarrassing the annex administration is how Druggan with his Chicago gang background managed to be transferred there from the more rigorous main prison and why, after being transferred, he was permitted to spend half his time at a cottage in town and dine at the chaplain's parsonage.

The warden, R. H. Hudspeth, an affable man, somewhat influential in Kansas Republican politics and former warden at the Kansas state penitentiary, is reported to have reduced himself to a sick bed trying to provide the department of justice an answer to the questions. The chaplain and two of his guards have been suspended.

Shows Nerve in Crisis.

Facing the more sinister situation at the main prison is a warden of another type. He is Fred G. Zerbst, son of a Prussian drill master, who fought the American Indians in his own youth and now, at the age of 61, is administrator of the federal prison with a history of more riots, graft, and jail breaks than any other.

If the warden's character is any reflection of conditions in his institution, there is no graft or laxity in the main prison now. He was deputy warden at the annex on Dec. 11, 1931, when seven convicts of the main prison smuggled in arms, seized the then warden, Thomas B. White, compelled him to order the front door opened, and got away, using him for a shield.

Zerbst took command in the crisis, rescued Warden White with his arm full of buckshot, trapped three of the fugitives who killed themselves to avoid capture, and caught the other four. Thereafter, Warden White was relieved and his deputy replaced him.

Zerbst a Disciplinarian.

Warden Zerbst is a disciplinarian and has his enemies. To hear the gossiping of some of the guards, their wives dread to see them leave for duty in the morning lest the unruly inmates rise during the day and kill them.

To check up on some of the rumors, the warden was approached for an interview. Sauntering through the grove of trees to the main door, one saw the lights flash on the windows of the mess hall and heard from within a noise like the muttering of a thousand devils. It sounded ominous.

A year ago this time the inmates kept the civil population of North Leavenworth awake two nights with their din of protest over being forced to bed at night an hour before their favorite radio program went on the air. Each prisoner has head phones in his cell and some of the trusties have their own receiving sets.

In the instance of the radio protest, the prisoners won their point. In this instance, it appears, the noise is only that of the men breaking silence before sitting down to the evening mess of spinach, boiled potatoes, stew, and prunes.

Challenge All Visitors.

All visitors at the prison are challenged from a twenty-foot concrete tower which commands the main gate. A hard faced guard steps out on the steel sheathed platform, rifle in hand, and demands the callers business. If it is a peace officer, the guard lowers a bucket on a rope in which the visitor is required to drop his pistol. No firearms are permitted within the walls.

The gate keeper must have the tower guards' signal before he unlocks the steel barred door. In this instance, the gate keeper is a big, broad faced Irishman, the only man who showed a smile during an hour in the prison. Civilian clerks in the outer office look slyly at every visitor calling on the warden.

Zerbst sits at a big desk in a cool room with a picture of Washington on the wall. His eyes are cold and blue, his voice harsh and his face austere. On the wall opposite Washington's picture is a numercial chart, showing the fluctuation in the prison population from day to day. On this day there are 2,928, of whom 8 are lifers and 310 trusties.

The warden is asked about the rumors of laxity. His cold eyes drill the opposite wall. He speaks slowly and harshly, with a barely perceptible German accent.

"It is a lie," he says. "I pay no attention to it. I will not be terrorized or browbeaten by such stories. I have been here nineteen months. We have had one escape in that time. He was a trusty and we brought him back. There is less punishment of prisoners, less expense and fewer reports since I took charge than there ever were before."

The warden has worked off some of his wrath. His mood softens a bit and he begins expounding some of his philosophy about prisons. He dislikes such sumptuary laws as the Volstead act, which makes felons of farmers who turned moonshiners because they were too poor to support their families raising crops.

His thoughts revert once more to the stories of laxity.

"A powder keg we have here? Humbug!" he exclaims. "But I make no statement, one way or the other. A woman—what we call a tomb angel—used to help some of the young men here in charity. She used to tell me how glad she was her boy was not a felon. I was here to see that boy brought in a prisoner. So it is with prison troubles. None can tell where or when the lightning will strike."

THE DESPOT AND HIS ARMAMENT.

It may be a disturbing observation for democratic people to note that the recrudescence of despotism in Europe has coincided with a development and specialization in military arms which in itself breaks down the defenses of the people. Here is one of history's repetitions in which cause and effect appear with a dismaying distinctness. The absolute dictator rules a large part of continental Europe as he has not ruled for generations because again the decisive weapons of warfare can be possessed by only a minority and because the autocrat, once in possession of them and in command of the men to use them, cannot be resisted.

These arms are gas, tanks, explosives, planes and machine guns. The masters they have set up are Stalin, Hitler, Mussolini, and the lesser dictators in smaller countries, who, once they have seized power, are made formidable if not irresistible by the apparent hopelessness of rising against them to face the weapons which the majority can not possess.

When the Stalin, Mussolini, or Hitler has seized power he has control of armanent against which rebellion seems futile. It is true that they had to seize the power and that the governments they overthrew did not use it against them at the moment when they might have been stopped. That may be explained by timidity, irresolution, or lack of purpose, but once the place has been occupied the people confess their inability to hold their liberties and the democratic institutions disappear.

Whenever a powerful minority has possessed weapons which the masses of men could neither obtain nor resist, absolutism has prevailed. If the heavily armed horsemen could ride down masses afoot, the foot soldier was held to be negligible and the people who furnished him were equally disregarded. Whenever the foot soldier with simple and easily obtainable weapons could stand against horsemen, democracy made progress. More people had pikes and fewer had armor and horses.

England had redoubtable foot soldiers in the long bowmen who were highly respected, and quasi-democratic institutions held their own and progressed in England when they were being destroyed in continental Europe. It can be observed as generally true, and it would seem that it must be true, that when men have gained their liberties it has been because the most effective weapon was not necessarily reserved by a dominant class.

The long bow's successor was the musket, and when it had reached a reasonable degree of dependability democracy again took up its march forward. The invention of the bayonet, the ring and not the plug bayonet, gave the foot soldier an additional confidence against horsemen. The musket and bayonet destroyed French absolutism and before that the American democracy had won its fight.

America won its liberties because the ordinary citizens could get as good a weapon as the one used by the British regulars, and in the long rifle the frontiersman had a better one. Furthermore, although cavalry was still effective, many of the American battlefields were in forests such as Burgoyne encountered or in the hills to which the American troops took pretty consistently, and the terrain prevented the use of a military arm which the revolutionists had not well developed.

The long rifle in the hands of American frontiersmen was the best weapon of its day, used by men accustomed to make everything of the natural advantages of the land. Their participation in several revolutionary battles was decisive, but they possessed a skill which ordinary man did not have. His confidence increased as the bayonet was added to his equipment. As Anthony Wayne said: "A bayonet keeps the bayonet away."

The loss of liberties in Europe following the trend of modern armament does not offer much encouragement for people who believe that the orderly processes of democracy, defective as they may occasionally reveal themselves to be, work out to better consequences than will flow from the dominant will of one man. But it has been found in the past that the balance was restored by some invention which the average fellow could use to protect himself and regain what had been taken from him.

Such a weapon in the future may be the automatic rifle, built to the requirements of military use, restoring to individuals the confidence that their armed masses can overcome the specialized armament sent against them.

COLORADO WATER.

The Los Angeles chapter of the Southern California Taxpayers' association alleges that there is an appreciable amount of fluorine in the waters of the Colorado river. Readers of Dr. Evans' column need not be told of the damage which fluorine does to the teeth, particularly of growing children. An inquiry has been started to determine whether the charges are true; if they are, the project for an aqueduct to Los Angeles from Boulder dam may have to be abandoned in the interest of the public health.

It is unfortunate that an adequate analysis was not made before the dam was started, but that kind of carelessness must be accepted as characteristic even of the largest of government enterprises. No adequate study has ever been made under government auspices of the traffic possibilities of the St. Lawrence seaway, but our government has signed a treaty calling for the expenditure of several hundred million dollars to build the seaway. Postoffices are erected at great expense where they are not needed and never will be needed. River and harbor undertakings that never can be worth what they cost have been paid for by the taxpayers. Reclamation schemes that no competent engineer, and certainly no competent economist, would have recommended at a time of crop surpluses have been authorized with a free hand. The expenditures of government are undertaken, more often than not, with a view to their political rather than their actual usefulness. That is one reason, and perhaps the principal one, for doubting the feasibility of the kind of national planning which is now in favor.

So far as Boulder dam is concerned, it never should have been undertaken at federal expense, fluorine or no fluorine, unless, indeed, it is the business of the federal government to provide water works for cities all over the country. Under the circumstances perhaps the federal government might be justified in demanding that Los Angeles proceed with the work and suffer the consequences of its own selfish folly, but in view of the fact that the money for the aqueduct as well as the dam is coming from the federal treasury, the rest of the country will not insist on revenge.

TAKING IT AS IT COMES.

A New Yorker who believes that his city is as pleasant and habitable as any on earth remonstrates against the overplay of its recent suffering from heat when one thermometer with a good sun exposure touched a freak record of 141. It may be granted that the accounts of what was happening in New York gave an imperfect, a distorted, and misleading picture of normal life in that city. It is not normally a bake oven, nor is Chicago, which also has encountered a few days this summer it very willingly would have done without.

Here we think the lake is a more dependable modifier of hot weather than the seashore, but account can be taken of local preferences and prejudices. Nevertheless it is. If the Denver flood had been a California flood the country would have heard of it as a light rain in Los Angeles. A heavy rain there may fill a day with uninterrupted sunshine if it is not the season when a rain is wanted. Thus a candid people maintain a glorious and profitable climate which it is.

In brisk communities which find their assets and read their future in man power, where the chief preoccupation is not with what befalls out of nature, the disposition is to accept what does so befall and if it is interesting tell the world. The communities may even have some pride in their ability to take it, and if the misfortune or discomfort is freaky so much the better. They feel that they gain more in recognizing what happens to them, whether desirable or undesirable, than they would gain by suppression or illusion. That feeling applies to their disorders and errors as well as to their climate. They doubt the value of self-deception.

HOME FROM THE CONFERENCE.

Henry Morgenthau Sr., returning from London, confirms the impression regarding the failure of the economic conference to get anywhere. "When the nations were gathered in London they were not motivated by the desire to benefit the world. Each delegation went with definite instructions to secure advantageous terms for its own country." That condition was true not only of the economic conference but of the others.

When it became apparent that after some wavering and confusion the American delegation was present on the same terms as the others, there was nothing to do but to make as polite an end of it as possible. Secretary Hull of the American state department is given credit for preserving the amenities at the finish. Mr. Hull had a difficult job all around and it wasn't improved by the visit of Prof. Moley and Mr. Swope. But the secretary faced his embarrassments as best he could and amiably got himself out of his difficulties.

Nearly every international conference bases its hopes or illusions of success upon the chance that among the horse traders there will be one Santa Claus. Nearly always the United States is expected to take out the money roll. When this expectation fails, adjournment is only a matter of form.

It wasn't a reasonable belief that any of the desperate nations would take any chances with altruism which didn't clearly reveal their own self-interest. The United States could not exempt itself from this rule. It was wholly improbable that any of the delegates could present a simple and acceptable formula upon which any dependence could be placed. About the only chance the conference had was in debt cancellation. That subject had been barred from discussion and the American delegates had no authority to take it up. When it is discussed it must be discussed with congress.

Editorial of the Day

NERVOUS BREAKDOWNS.

[Grand Rapids Press.]

In all the debate that has been going on the past two years concerning the proper functions of the schools, no argument has been more inane than that offered before an educational conference in Chicago the other day by Dr. Mandel Sherman of the University of Chicago, who might be supposed to know better.

"I prefer," said Dr. Sherman, "to see these so-called fads and frills—art, music, athletics, and such—increase, even at the expense of such a subject as arithmetic, in order that nervous breakdowns later may be avoided."

It never has been demonstrated that nervous breakdowns, if there be such, were caused by arithmetic any more than by music, art, and athletics. When an educator attempts to pass such pish-posh off on the public he is merely bringing his profession into ridicule.

Our contemporary, Dr. William Brady, has recently been devoting considerable space on this page to the debunking of so-called "nervous breakdowns." We wonder what he would have to say concerning Prof. Sherman's notions. Certainly nothing complimentary.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

MARKET LETTER.

FREQUENTLY IN THE PAST, while pinch-hitting in this space, we have presented Market Letters for the financial guidance of investors and speculators. We assumed all such followers had been completely deflated. However, like the public which rushes back to Wall and La Salle streets time and time again for another trimming, they evidently are gluttons for punishment. This is suggested by the fact we have received numerous requests for a revival of these letters. Since we aim to please, he's all right with us. Besides that, we don't play our own tips.

The bourse now is in the latter stages of a corrective reaction. It was corrective enough to amount to chastisement. We have it confidentially from an eminent chartist that if prices do not fall below these corrective levels resumption of the rise will follow. If, however, new lows are recorded, there will be three weeks of rain before sunshine may be expected.

Financial opinion is almost unanimous we should see higher prices in September. In fact, this opinion is almost too unanimous. Inflation, not talk of inflation, however, is a possibility after the government financing is accomplished. It may even be necessary for its accomplishment. When dollars are cheap and plentiful there are more of them to go around, so get your share. At the same time, do not become overextended unless in the rubber issues.

Looking at individual groups, we find Steel is hard with a good backlog. Despite the increase in states voting for repeal, Industrial Alcohol, National Distillers, and Commercial Solvents were "all wet" in their market action. The cork was pulled on Anchor Cap. With declines elsewhere, Monsanto Chemical received the "needle" and held steady. National Tea also acted well, as if it had been given a "cup" of tea, as they say on the turf. Sears is receiving more male orders. We think something might be rung up by staying with National Cash Register.

On the local board Sally's Frock was not quoted because Sally is doing a fan dance now and does not wear frocks any more. Similarly, small demand for Reliance overalls. Asbestos was not so hot. Greyhound had little speed. Kingsbury Brewing went down easily. Middle West is still a futility rather than a utility.

In conclusion, we feel the market is at a point requiring extreme caution. If you must speculate, be sure to establish a profit, not a loss. Then do not let that profit get away. Under this plan one may secure at least moderate accretions.

SILENCES.

I have found but two silences—
The muted secrecy of new sorrows
When slow dawn
Finds grief destroyer of all constant thought;
And the silence that is near to peace,
In your arms,
Marie.

ATHLETE'S FOOT NO. 2.

IN certain groups of people it is said that they are unanimous when it comes to having athlete's foot. They may be weak, crippled, and disabled, with athlete's foot as their only qualification as athletes.

This disorder usually affects the skin between the toes, causing itching, oozing, and peeling. When these more annoying symptoms are absent the presence of the causative microbe can safely be inferred if there is a sweetish, mysty, offensive odor given off by the exfoliated skin between the toes. While the toe area is the favorite location of the eruption caused by the fungus of athlete's foot, it may locate in any one of several areas on the feet or elsewhere.

The cause is one or more of the fungi, of which plants there are hundreds of species. This particular group of fungi lives in such places as the interior of shoes, in floor and carpet dust, in and around the toenails. They select the skin between the toes as a good place to do their work because the area is moist, warm, and protected, and the skin is not thick or tough.

In a sense the harm done by athlete's foot is trivial. Nobody dies from it, nor is anybody made very ill or very greatly discommoded by it. But it is highly contagious, it causes a good deal of vexation, and the time taken and the cost required to cure it, the loss of time and energy that can be charged up to it, and the difficulty of prevention make it a matter of considerable importance. It is a source of a good deal of trouble to medical officers of the army, navy, and marine corps, and to physicians in charge of the student bodies of universities and colleges.

Dr. W. L. Wilson found it so troublesome among the soldiers in Schofield barracks that he decided to do something about it. About one-fourth of the men in a certain command had it. He cured these by means of Castellani's paint and ammoniated mercury, as has already been described in a previous article.

To prevent the spread of the disease every person using the baths and pools was required to put his feet in a tub containing a 15 per cent watery solution of thiosulphate of soda before he went into the bathroom or poolroom, and to repeat this performance as he emerged after his bath or swim. This solution was kept fresh and strong. Since the chemical is inexpensive the cost of the solution is trivial. This foot bath can be so arranged as to cause very little inconvenience. The men were given a powder composed of sodium thiosulphate and boric acid, with which they were to dust the interior of their shoes. This powder was described in last week's article on athlete's foot. It is inexpensive and its use not bothersome.

Making use of these procedures, the soldiers in this command were speedily cured of all athlete's foot, and they remained free for the several months they were under observation. Doubtless in time most of them will become careless and indifferent, and the job of cure and prevention will need to be repeated.

HAVE METABOLISM TEST.

U. R. writes: My skin is very dry and it scales off profusely. I do not perspire except under my arms. I suffer greatly from heat in summer and cold in winter. In hot weather my face gets very red. I have tried rubbing my dry skin with cold creams and salves, but it does no good. My sisters and two cousins have the same trouble. What is it and what shall I do?

REPLY.

Have a metabolism test made. You may have myxedema. If so, taking thyroid would help. Another possibility is ichthyosis, or fish skin. Have a physician decide what your trouble is.

THYROID.

C. D. writes: The other day, after an examination for a job, the doctor wrote on the chart that I had thyroid glands. What is that? He felt my neck and told the nurse it was not dangerous now.

REPLY.

The thyroid gland is a large ductless gland located in the front of the neck, low down. It supplies a thyroid secretion that is very necessary for vigor, good health, and good growth. But too much of it makes one nervous and jumpy. Goiter is one of the diseases of the thyroid. The doctor thinks your thyroid is a little too prominent, but that it is not causing trouble now. It may or may not do so in later years.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

AUGUST 7, 1917.

AMSTERDAM.—The shakeup in the German ministry, with the resignation of five ministers of state and four secretaries of state, does not mean the parliamentarization of the empire, but it may be expected to be followed by some changes in the method of conducting the war. This seems to be the consensus in Germany, as expressed by the comment of the German papers which have been received here dealing with the situation. Most interest in the events of the last few days in Berlin has centered around the appointment of Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann, in succession to Dr. Alfred Zimmerman, as foreign secretary.

WAR SUMMARY.—The Russians stiffened their resistance on the Rumanian frontier and prepared to give battle to the advancing Teutons between the Dniester and the Pruth rivers. London reports a further advance in the encircling movement at Lens. Paris reports artillery activity in Champagne.

CHICAGO.—Of the first 845 men called for examination for the draft in the First district (downtown area) there are 139 quitters. Fifty-eight of these deliberately have given false addresses, as the examination summons addressed to them have been returned to the board with the significant words "not found" marked upon them. Eighty-one, although notified, have failed to respond to their examination notices. These facts, which are contained in a report of the exemption board of the First district, give strength to the report that a deliberate scheme to evade the draft law has been unearthed in that district, a conspiracy which is believed to extend to other districts as well. The report will be submitted to the federal authorities for investigation today.

CHICAGO.—Positive action, the details of which are withheld, to bring down the prices of Illinois coal from $2.75 and $3.50 a ton at the mines will be taken today by the state council of defense, according to statements of its members. Support of its program by the governors and councils of defense of the surrounding states has been enlisted by Gov. Lowden and Chairman Samuel Insull, and the cooperation of the remainder of the states is being sought.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Illinois will send to the Houston camp two brigades and one regiment of infantry, two regiments short of infantry divisional strength; a brigade of field artillery, a regiment of engineers, a signal corps company, and a sanitary train. The present intention of the war department is to add no troops to this number by drawing from excess troops of other states, but to leave the Houston camp short of a division.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—Is it true that Indian head pennies are cashing in for $1 each at the Fair?

ANSWER—There is nothing to that report.

QUESTION—I have three United States half dollars, dated 1829, 1827, and 1833. Are they, especially the one minted in 1833, of any additional value at the Fair?

ANSWER—No.

ANSWER—The $5 drive certificates are being redeemed at the 12th street gate, reception room, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTING.

Irwin, Pa., Aug. 1.—As developments at Washington continue to unfold and the enormous extent of the government's expenditures become more apparent to the public, several things are apt to happen.

One thing at least should be provided for—namely: a requirement that candidates, especially Democratic, for positions of accounting, or having to do with public funds, should have to pass a special examination to establish soundness of mind. Something will have to be done to protect us locally from that brand of "economy" which is heading the whole nation toward financial and moral bankruptcy while claiming to protect the country's credit.

For obscurity and duplicity the bookkeeping methods of this administration are unique, to say the least. Elected on a promise to save the people a billion dollars per year, the new government blandly opened another set of books. Over half a billion was carefully lifted out of the regular expense account and transferred to the new expense account. With a great hurrah the people were then told that all this money was being saved, when as a matter of fact it is being spent outright, and in addition hundreds of millions of so-called loans are being made for capital expenditures which will never in the world be repaid.

Other savings are to be less than first announced, consisting only of what can be taken from the soldiers and civil service employés. Even this is being squandered through new swarms of political appointees and costly publicity in an effort to stampede the country into a prosperity which had far better be achieved without this ballyhoo.

Thus our much heralded "economy" program has become a myth and that is one reason why taxes and prices are going up faster than wages. Attempts to force wages up by bulldozing business will later bring other troubles of a different nature.

We all want prosperity on a sound basis, but we cannot live on the money lenders. Those who are most anxious to project themselves at once into a fools' paradise via the borrowed money route, or other unsound expedients, are always the least willing to endure the consequences which are certain to follow when pay day arrives.

R. E. Newell.

INTERESTING IF TRUE.

Elmwood, Ill., Aug. 3.—The merchants in the town of Elmwood, Ill., justly famed as the home town of Lorado Taft [population 1,200], display almost 100 per cent the Blue Eagle of Prosperity with a net result of no employment gain and no increase [not 1 cent] in the town's weekly pay roll.

By closing places of business on Thursday afternoons and no longer opening on Wednesday evenings [a long established custom], the patriotic business men of this community are able to derive whatever benefit [if any] they may gain from the display of the Blue Eagle. Elmwood business men seem anxious to show the Blue Eagle and derive profit [if possible] therefrom, but also seem unwilling to spend an extra penny to hire additional help and remain open as heretofore. Perhaps they prefer a curb on business activity to an increase in pay rolls—the thing might not pay! We wonder if business men of other communities are using the same tactics.

Ottumwa, Ia., Aug. 2.—In our little city of Ottumwa, Ia., the barbers at their meeting this week, called to do their bit toward the reconstruction plan of the NRA, decided to help by raising their prices about 40 to 45 per cent. Do you call that patriotism?

BEACH CURFEW JUSTIFIED.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—If Mr. Dennen, who complained because the Rogers Park police ordered him off the beaches at 11 p. m., would rent an apartment on one of those street ends where he was enjoying the air he would realize why this was done.

On any warm night while those residents who have to do a full day's work at the office the next morning are trying to get to sleep, the following sounds are a common occurrence, made by people leaving the beaches:

1. Crowd of young people walking home singing at top of their combined lungs.
2. Several cars warming up, accompanied by five or six explosions.
3. Sudden scream of brakes as two cars parked in alley collide directly under window of sleeper. Impetuous words from all masculine occupants of both cars. [Two weeks ago the police patrol was required to settle a similar row, also about fifty bystanders.]
4. Violent dog fight between pets of two midnight pedestrians, instantly followed by the sympathetic barking of all the dogs in the apartment houses in that section of Rogers Park.

All we can say is that so long as the average human being behaves noisily when away from his own back yard those who are considerate will have to suffer along with the majority under our lenient curfew law.

Street End Resident.

SLEEPS ON BEACH.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—With reference to Louis Dennen's complaint about the Rogers Park police chasing the people off the beaches at 11 p. m., may I state an incident that happened during a hot night last week?

A resident who lives near the lake called up Capt. Harding and requested that he have the people put off the beach because of the noise, to which Harding replied that it was too hot a night to keep said persons in the house, but that he would have his police try and keep them quiet.

I sleep on the beach almost every hot night and instead of being bothered by the police I am usually kept awake by the unnecessary loud noise of out of the district beach party celebrators.

BRITAIN'S MONEY TRADE IS PERILED BY CITY'S ACTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Aug. 6.—Great Britain's status as a creditor nation is threatened by the action of the city of Auckland in repaying its 5¼ per cent tramway loan in New Zealand currency, although the bonds were marketed in London.

The city's action has provoked a serious situation between the London financiers and New Zealand. The New Zealand pound is at present at a discount of 25 per cent on the British pound sterling, a level which was fixed by direct intervention of the government last February in order to obtain relief for the farmers, who provide more than 90 per cent of this country's exports. The action by Auckland means a slash of 25 per cent in the interest due to British bondholders. And the British hold more than 50 per cent of New Zealand's total national debt.

$6,250,000 Loan Involved.

The Auckland tramways board which took the step of paying its London creditors in the depreciated New Zealand pound states that it did this only after conferring with the city council and has been indemnified by that body against loss. The loan involved is one of $6,250,000, of which $4,800,000 is held in London.

Recently the Australian Broken Hill Mining corporation found it had the right to pay its London loans in Australian currency. This was upheld by the British privy council. The Auckland tramways board acted because of this judgment and points to the fact that New Zealand law prevents it from paying loans save in the currency of this country.

Though the finance minister, Joseph G. Coates, declares that the matter has no general bearing on the question of New Zealand indebtedness to Britain, the financial opinion is that there is an intimate relationship and that the credit of the country has been affected.

"The money was subscribed for the loan on a sterling basis and with the belief that New Zealand would honor the obligations," said one banker of national reputation, "and the failure to do this is a grievous blunder. The board may have legal backing for its action, but it has a moral obligation to meet the loan in the currency in which it was borrowed."

Bankers Attacked.

To this government officials retort that the bankers are not able to give unbiased opinions, as they have been buying up the bonds and shipping them to London in the effort to make undue profits by claiming payment in British currency.

Finance Minister Coates declared that "large numbers of debentures were sent out of the country when the rise took place in the exchange rate. If the loan was made in this country and the debentures were originally held here, local bodies are being advised by the government to pay in New Zealand currency."

Auckland city has been the heaviest of the local borrowers in New Zealand and much of the money it obtained has been sunk in unprofitable enterprises, such as the existing transport service, part of which the board is now seeking to sell. But other cities are also embarrassed because of the additional charges laid upon them by the high exchange rate and are expected to follow Auckland's example.

Perils London as Money Mart.

This will mean a serious threat to the position of the London money market and may mark the decline of London as an investment center. It is but a step from a local body's default on loans to national default. And there can be no question of the government meeting the obligations of the local authorities because the government itself is short of funds and unable to balance its budget.

ALDERMEN WORK ON NEW BUILDING CODE THIS WEEK

In daily sessions this week, a subcommittee of the city council committee on buildings and zoning will continue its scrutiny of the tentative draft of a new building code for Chicago. The draft was prepared by a citizens' committee headed by Oscar W. Rosenthal, which worked on the task for over six years.

An effort is being made by the subcommittee, of which Ald. Frank J. Corr [17th] is chairman, to finish the study of the new code in time to make a report on it to the full committee this fall. Then, according to Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe [42], building committee chairman, the code will be reviewed by the full committee preparatory to submitting it to the council for action.

"When finally passed," said Ald. Corr, "the new code will provide the city with cheaper, safer, and more sanitary structures. Because of these benefits that will stimulate building construction, the subcommittee has been, and will continue, to meet daily so that the code can get to the council.

"Buildings will cost less because of permission to use certain materials formerly barred; through the use of new materials discovered since the old code was enacted more than twenty years ago, and also through an increase of maximum floor loads Changes in the use of concrete also will reduce construction costs materially."

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

SUSPECT'S WIFE IN POISON FOOD CASE QUESTIONED

Nine Are Made Ill After Eating Gift Flour Cake.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Police today were informed of additional persons made ill yesterday from eating cake baked from "gift" flour and sugar mysteriously left on the front porch of the Walter Kraus home at 1514 North 23d street.

The information came as detectives bor, held as a suspect after Mrs. Lillie Kraus had become ill, and her four children had been removed to county emergency hospital after eating of the cake. It raised the number of victims to nine.

The wife of the suspect told police today that she had found a package marked "arsenic" in his clothing several months ago, and that she had left home because she feared poisoning.

None Is Seriously Ill.

The new victims are neighbors of the Kraus family, and had been invited into the home to taste the cake. They are Mrs. Kunegumba Hermann, 25, of 1520B North 23d street, and her two children, 18 months old, and Gilbery, 5 years old, and Emily Bartol, 7, who lives on Cherry street, near North 23d street.

The Hermann family were treated at county emergency hospital today after being ill all night. The Bartol child is under care of a private physician. None is in serious condition. The four Kraus children are on the way to recovery.

Police today had not yet definitely established the fact that the illness of Mrs. Kraus, her four children, and the neighbors, was caused by poison in the cake, as they suspect. Tests were being made at county emergency hospital of the food eaten by those made ill.

The remainder of the flour, sugar and other food products, which the Kraus family found in a sack on the front porch of their home Friday night, has been turned over to Russell W. Cunliffe, city chemist, for examination. Definite tests will not be completed until tomorrow, police said.

Tells of Finding Poison Box.

The wife of the suspect, questioned today, told a story, however, which caused police to continue his detention. She told detectives that she had found a box, marked arsenic, in his possession several months ago, and had left home because she feared he would attempt to poison her. She became ill last November, she said, from drinking wine which had an unusual taste. The glassful of wine was handed to her by the husband, she said, but he did not drink any of it.

The suspect was submitted to another grilling after the wife had told her story. He denied that he ever had arsenic or any other poison.

"I never poisoned any one," he kept repeating in answer to questions.

The suspect is described as an atheist, and had frequently ridiculed the religious beliefs of the Kraus family, police were told.

The note found on the "gift" bag of groceries on the front porch of the Kraus home, written in German, read: "You believe in God, and therefore you shall be rewarded by God."

The wife said she left home last February because she feared her husband. He always objected to her visiting the Kraus family, she said.

Last November he asked her to raise her insurance policy from $2,000 to $3,000, and became extremely kind to her, she told police. The kindly treatment was such a contrast to his previous behavior, she said, that she became suspicious. While he was in another part of the house she searched his coat and found a box marked "arsenic," she said.

A post-mortem will be held tomorrow on the body of a roomer at the suspect's home, who died without medical attention a week ago. He had been suffering from tuberculosis. Neighbors said the man, who often sat on the front porch of the suspect's home, had complained of "funny pains" in the stomach.

VETERAN FLYER AND PILOT PASSENGER KILLED STUNTING

Lansdale, Pa., Aug. 6.—(AP)—A veteran aviator and his pilot-passenger were killed today in the crash of their airplane while stunting for a crowd at a farm on the outskirts of Lansdale.

The victims were Henry H. Landis, 29, of Souderton, Pa., who was at the controls, and George Haines, 27, of Sellersville, Pa. Witnesses said the crash came after the ship had made a long dive from an altitude of about 1,500 feet and the pilot attempted to "level off."

Its engine apparently stalling, the craft fell about 300 feet, striking a hill and burying its nose in the ground.

1 Killed 1 Injured in Kentucky.

Flemingsburg, Ky., Aug. 6.—(AP)—One man was killed and another injured probably fatally this afternoon when an airplane crashed in a field about one mile from here. The man killed was identified as Arthur Evers, 32, pilot of the plane, and the other was identified tentatively as Robert C. or Harold Pierce, 30. Both were believed to have been from Dayton, O.

SEIZE FLOATING CHINESE ARSENAL OFF PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Capture by a Philippine coast guard cutter of a Chinese sampan laden with arms and ammunition off the coast of Luzon, 100 miles south of Manila, was reported in a cablegram to coast guard headquarters here today.

A message from the c ptain of the Cutter Palillo reported the sampan, the Sin Ban Fong, carried "seven cannons, nine rifles, five lances, three sabers, 824 cartridges, and 130 pounds of gunpowder."

Whether the sampan was a gun runner or a pirate was not learned. Possession of weapons by the Moros of the southern islands is forbidden by law. The Sampan was escorted to Calapan under guard.

Mr. Oliver attended Notre Dame university at South Bend and later Asbury, now De Pauw university, at Greencastle, Ind. Immediately upon completion of his schooling he entered upon his business career as a clerk in his father's company.

TOKIO REHEARSES FOR AIR RAIDS; ALL LIGHTS OUT

TOKIO, Aug. 6.—Nine million persons in and around Tokio have been successfully inoculated with the idea that their homes are exposed to aerial attacks. Each night for the last ten days district after district has rehearsed the air defense measures which will be put in practice during maneuvers of the navy this week.

The exercises are dramatically realistic. At the shattering sound of aerial bombs each block is taken in charge by uniformed members of the Young Men's association, who have been instructed by the army.

All lights are extinguished, even in moving taxis. Trucks commandeered from local business houses carry squads of young men around the districts allotted to them, while scouts on bicycles penetrate every alley, summon the inhabitants with fire brigade sirens and issue instructions through megaphones. A touch which never fails to thrill the inhabitants is the appearance of stretchers, attended by white clad nurses and guided by boy scouts.

REBEL CHINESE GENERAL QUITS ANTI-JAP ARMY

PEIPING, Aug. 7.—[Monday]—(AP)—Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang and the National government appeared today to have reached a peaceful solution of the Chahar province situation.

Feng, after resisting the National government many months and threatening to renew the war against Japan for the recovery of Jehol province and Manchuria, announced his willingness to give up his title as head of the "People's anti-Japanese army" and place Chahar in the hands of Peiping national government representatives.

If the negotiations prove successful it was indicated that Feng, who is short of money and munitions, likely would be given a position in the National government, or some other means of saving face, and then would retire to Changpei, 40 miles northeast of Kalgan, Chahar province, where he has his headquarters. Meanwhile Dolon-nor, which Feng's troops recently occupied, was reported recaptured by combined Japanese and Manchukuan forces.

He had landed in the field with the intention of taking up passengers.

RECORD IS SET ON PERSONALTY TAX SCHEDULES

Million to Be Sent Out Within Few Weeks.

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs yesterday announced that 676,000 schedules for 1932 personal property taxes had already been sent out, and that the total of nearly 1,000,000 schedules will be out within a few weeks. The schedules have been distributed by deputy assessors in all the country towns, and have been mailed to the city towns of Rogers Park, North, South, Lake View, and Hyde Park.

The schedules are now being mailed to residents of Jefferson and the assessor will begin this week to send them to the towns of West and Lake.

"This is the largest number of personalty schedules that has ever been sent out," Mr. Jacobs said. "For last year we sent out only 843,000 schedules for 1931 personal property. In 1931, when the old board of assessors was in office, only 270,000 schedules were sent out for 1930 personal property."

Sept. 1 Is Penalty Date.

The penalty date for the payment of the second installment on 1931 real estate taxes is Sept. 1. The board of tax appeals has been conducting hearings on the objections to the 1931 real estate assessments since March 8, and will conclude these hearings on Aug. 19. Hearings on the objections to the 1932 personal property assessments are expected to begin about Sept. 1, according to George Nixon and Fred Brummel, the members of the board of appeals.

"We have heard 82,966 cases and have made 23,000 revisions in 1931 real estate assessments," Mr. Brummel said, "and must rule on about 48,000 more cases. Of these cases, 7,000 are resolutions for corrections made by the assessor and 20,000 are cases which have already been heard, but have been continued for various reasons. The other 21,000 cases have not yet been heard."

Seeks Additional Funds.

Mr. Brummel said that the board of appeals had anticipated only 30,000 complaints, on which basis an appropriation of $42,500 for the office was made by the county board. The board already has spent $77,811 because of the unprecedented number of complaints, Mr. Brummel said, and has asked the county board for additional appropriations of $48,000 for office expenses and $7,000 for printing.

Antoinette Donnelly Tells How Noted Beauties Keep Charm

Two Ceremonies Are Held in Evanston.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE hasn't been a more exciting wedding reception in many a day than that of Charles Frederick Bullard Jr. and his bride, the former Melanie Truman, on Saturday afternoon at the lovely residence of the bride's parents, the Percival H. Trumans, in Evanston.

While the attractive young couple who had just exchanged their wedding vows at a simple but beautiful ceremony in the chapel of St. John the Divine in the Western Theological seminary were receiving the good wishes and congratulations of their many friends, Mr. Bullard's beautiful sister, Polly, and Arthur John Holden Jr. announced themselves "Mr. and Mrs. Holden."

To the great surprise of all except the immediate families, Mr. Holden and Miss Bullard, here from the east for Mr. Bullard's wedding, decided to make their anniversary the same day, so they slipped away and were married at high noon Saturday in the Lady chapel of St. Mark's church, Evanston, by the Rev. Carl Ernest Range.

This is interesting news to Chicago society because both Mr. Holden and his bride have so many friends in the city and along the shore to the north. Mrs. Holden and Mr. Bullard are the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederick Bullard of Elmira, N. Y., and Mr. Holden comes from a family that goes back in New England history for generations, that of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur John Holden of Bennington, Vt.

Mrs. Holden Is Smith Graduate.

After preparing at Abbott academy, where she made many Chicago friends, the new Mrs. Holden went to Smith, where she was graduated. Finishing in the class of 1928 (the class of which Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was a member) she went abroad for a year of travel and study and then returned to the serious life of assistant to President Robert Leigh of that new and exclusive girls' school, Bennington college, at Bennington, Vt.

It was while she was there that the romance between her and the attractive young New Englander developed. He was just returned from a year of study in Germany and Switzerland on a Harvard fellowship. This he earned while taking a master's degree at Harvard, where he was graduated a year or two earlier.

After their marriage Saturday there was a wedding breakfast for them and their families at the Sheridan road home of the John H. S. Lees in Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. Lee's two daughters, Mrs. Gerrit Davis Foster, who now lives in Milwaukee, and Mrs. Winston Healy of Englewood, N. J., were both classmates at Smith of Mrs. Holden. Two other guests were Mrs. Armin Elmendorf (the former Laura Gundlach), another classmate of Mrs. Holden, and Mrs. Innis Alexander MacKenzie, who came out here from the west to live after her marriage to the young Williams graduate.

After a wedding journey Mr. Holden and his bride are to live in Montpelier, Vt., where they have already taken a little white house with an acre of land and stables. Mr. Bullard and his bride are to be at home in Rochester, N. Y., after Sept. 1.

Two Dinner Parties Tonight.

Two dinners have places on today's social calendar. One of them is the party the Charles H. Schweppes are giving for Mr. and Mrs. George Carr, who are here visiting Robert F. Carr. A solitary moment is one thing that the Carrs haven't experienced since their arrival here [Mrs. Carr preceded her husband by more than a week], for there has been a gay round of luncheons, teas, dinners, and late suppers. The reason is that they haven't set foot in Chicago in more than ten years . . . since they went to France to live. They will be here until the beginning of October.

That recently married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Otis, are to be entertained at the second dinner party. Mrs. Daniel Burnham, who is the sister of Mr. Otis, and Mr. Burnham have invited more than two dozen guests to meet them tonight in the Belgian village. Before her marriage Mrs. Otis was Miss Ethel Lake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome H. Lake of Woodside, L. I. They were wed in Waukegan and from there motored north and east on their honeymoon. They are to settle now in a little apartment on the near north side.

Midsummer Travels of Society Start.

The usual midsummer travels of society have started. Some have gone to the woods, others to the seashore, while relations and friends of others have decided that now is the time to come to Chicago to see the Fair and renew their friendships.

Among those going or gone is the Donald F. McPherson family. . . . Mr. McPherson and Victor Elting are up in the wilds of Canada hundreds of miles north of Toronto. They have started on a canoe trip even farther north. Mrs. McPherson and her daughter, Miss Fanny McPherson, are leaving in two or three days to spend the rest of the month in the east. They are going to visit Mrs. McPherson's mother in Pittsfield, Mass., where little Sally Ann McPherson is, and Mrs. McPherson's sister and brother-in-law, the Perry M. Shepards, in Geneva, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Shepard were recently in Chicago to see the Fair.

Donald McPherson Jr., who has been on a cruise with some of his schoolmates, is at present visiting the Ernest S. Ballards on Cape Cod, and will join his mother in Geneva, and return with them. On their way back to Chi-

Here's the tired business girl, just home from work, whose eyes smart, whose feet feel like lead, who doesn't care whether her hair is falling down and who wishes she didn't have a date tonight.

And here's the same girl, no longer tired, tremendously benefited by the physical and psychological changes some particular clothes and beauty treatments insure. Her gown is a feminine soul satisfier of blue lace with an organdy collar to make her forget her hard day. The beautician has taught her how to make use of restful eye packs and stimulating facial treatments. And no one could deny that she's now a new woman.

Proper Clothes and Beauty Aids Rest Mind and Body as Well as Help Appearance.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

YESTERDAY witnessed another sensational demonstration of the power of dress and makeup properly, smartly, cleverly applied to women.

As said before, there is a considerable body of business women in this country of ours who let themselves become so completely enmeshed in their work—they forget they are women. They live for their work, excluding from their program the very thing necessary to keep them alert, efficient, young in spirit.

As Mrs. Ford Carter, style director of the Fair, agrees, you can't argue with this group that they're not getting out of life what they should be getting. You've got to show them how to get it.

Nothing will effect the miracle like changing into an entirely different type of woman after the business day is done. And the more feminine, the more opposite to the "workish" type dress one can get into at the end of the day the better. A bath, makeup, well arranged hair, a charmingly feminine frock and a leisurely dinner—and the tired business woman automatically becomes a new person. She sheds her business cares or her habit of living only for the job. She's in the frame of mind and dress for bridge, backgammon, fun or adventure of some kind.

We saw at the demonstration yesterday just this change wrought in a tired business woman. From a girl—and a tired looking one in dress, hat, washed out coloring—after the expert put her through her paces and the makeup artist gave her new courage with rouge and lipstick, there emerged a woman as unlike a tired sister as you could imagine one to be.

From her practical and rather discouraging looking gray tailleur to a lovely blue lace frock with revitalizing shoulder cape of white organdy and warm, cheering lip and cheek rouge and a more attractive coiffure—she was changed. And what a change! The psychological value of the lesson intended was plainly apparent.

Now, today at 1:30 p. m. at the Fair the high school girl, or young girl in any circumstances, will be put through the ropes. The expert is going to work on the one I chose who, like so many, many young girls, nurse the ambition to look 30 [looking really quite awful in the forced mature rôle] and prove how perfectly devastating these girls might be acting and looking their own glorious age.

Tomorrow we will conclude our experiment with the wallflower girl who never gets a rush because she's too negative, wishy washy, has no appeal. The style expert and the beautician will show how this same girl can turn herself into a vivid personality, with men fighting for the chance to dance with her, take her out, show her a good time.

Good Morning!

What IS a "headline shooter"? A "headline shooter" is a news reel camera man. And, sometimes, I think that these intrepid fellows are the bravest men in the world.

This picture deals with events in the lives of some of these gallant lads, specially stressing the adventures and romances of happy go lucky Bill Allen who falls in love with a "sob sister" who thinks her heart's desire is to marry a nice Rotarian back home, settle down and "feel safe" . . .

The two know some sizzling experiences together and then the maiden DOES go home and DOES turn in her resignation. BUT——

There's a flood back where she came from . . . And just as she's saying good-by forever to her old city editor a new story breaks . . .!

Do you think our heroine takes the train that night with her Rotarian? If you do you wot not of Newspaperia's spell. Once in your blood that charmer of a million whims and fancies, of cruelties and careless laughter, is there to stay.

Ably directed and photographed, "Headline Shooters" moves along at a fast pace. It's effectively acted and, while some of the feats did seem well nigh impossible to this timorous soul, I'll wait for some expert photographer to write in and tell me the lowdown before I pass on them.

Anyhow, I liked William Gargan a lot as Bill, found Frances Dee interesting, regretted deeply the fate of the drunken wonder Mike. The last's ability to focus, and grind out stuff under certain staggering [used literally] handicaps, was among the sights to ruffle my credulity. Ralph Bellamy et al. do nice work.

See you soon!

A MAN went into a State street store the other day to make a purchase, and as he waited for his parcel, heard one of the saleslades address a co-worker as "Nira." This aroused his interest, and it turned out to be just as he thought. She was a new employé who had come in under the National Industrial Recovery act, and, as her name was unknown to the other workers, she was tagged "Nira."

BETTY PRESCOTT of Grand Street Follies fame, here for her annual visit at Hull house, tells about the little boy who wasn't allowed to go to the Fair. He is a little neighbor, named Sammy Fitzsimmons, and as he watched her depart for the Fair he called out:

"Couldn't you at least take a bottle along, fill it full of Fair air, put a cork on and bring it home for me to sniff at?"

WE are reminded, perhaps irrelevantly, that Chopin kept with him in France, until the day of his death, a box containing Polish earth, solace in moments of yearning for his birthplace.

* *

WE preface this by saying that the Stuart Logans' cook is famous for her pancakes. Thus the other day at the Malibu Beach club at the Fair when the Logans were making out a guest card for Joseph Santley, he thanked them and added:

"But I'd rather have a two weeks' card for pancakes."

"Well, I've seen so much nakedness here tonight it will be a positive relief to go home and put clothes on baby."

SOMETIMES we think it would be nice to write about the things that really please us, but mostly they are so intangible and fleeting it would mean nothing to readers. Sandy and Binge, the wire haired terriers, leaning out of the front windows of the car, pink tongues hanging, black India rubber noses fringed with whiskers. . . . The pseudo-classic contours of a girl visitor [Zenaide Vogelgesang], with the rounded throat and modeling of a Picasso lady. . . . The charm of the Audubon prints in Stuart Logan's set of books, every feather distinct and beautifully colored. . . . One of the town's most beautiful and soignee ladies spending the week-end at the primitive country place of less wealthy friends and throwing buckets of water over herself at the pump in lieu of a bath. . . . Whimsicality, the greatest of charms, appearing here and there, but too fragile for catching in type.

Doris Warns Wife to Put Pride Aside if Husband Is Penitent

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Remorse and sorrow over hurting his wife decided him to end the affair. The woman has gone back to her husband.

The man came clean with his confession, begged his wife to stay on with him, telling her that in spite of everything she is his big love. He begs for patience until this other woman is entirely clear of his thoughts.

"We were married very young," the wife relates. "Never had any romantic affairs but our one for each other. Because of this, do you think my husband's lapse was inevitable? If I forgive and forget, will I cheapen myself in his eyes. Will it appear that I am condoning the affair and thus encourage him to renew it, or break out again with some other woman? Needless to say, I still love my man. HULDA C."

Confronted with the common enough problem, is it wise to talk about "cheapening yourself"? What does it matter did you cheapen yourself in your eyes, his eyes, the world's eyes, so long as you manage to hold what is dearer to you than anything else.

There's no explaining these lapses of men. Why they fall for some other woman when they maintain [and honestly, we believe] they still love their wives is something they themselves cannot tell. They meet temptation and they succumb, that's all. Weak, of course—disillusioning to the trusting wife, heartbreaking—but what can be done about it? One might sit down and chalk up: "Nine years of happy married life. Well, that's good! A dispensation that's been denied many women." More happy years to follow, providing this situation is met with courage. It takes character and a big person, we claim, to see a thing of the sort through understandingly. We're far more for women who can take the big view and rebuild life out of the so-called ruins than for those whose "pride" won't stand for a reconciliation for fear of cheapness or because some other personal vanity obstructs the big issue. The big issue, after all, is to make a success of an undertaking, even though it has its discouraging moments.

MURDER MYSTERY.

I, Gilbert Jonathan Redd, being of sound and disposing mind and a fair state of health, or whatever the legal rigmarole is—propose, starting here and now, to set down from day to day the important developments, if any such there be, in what so soon as this the newspapers are beginning to call the Kettle Pond Murder Mystery. A murder it undoubtedly was, or at any rate a homocide without seeming provocation. And at this moment it undoubtedly has in it certain elements of mystery.

I am not one of those persons, unique among their contemporaries but esteemed by future historians, who keep diaries. But on many of the outstanding experiences of my life I have kept notes. Probably this habit is a heritage of my newspaper training. In this case I shall do more than merely make notes. I mean to write out chronologically, chapter by chapter, so to speak, a sort of running account of this affair as I see it and in so far as I may figure in it. More or less it will be then as though I had stepped back thirty-odd years and was again a police reporter, except that here the reporter is cast also for the rôle of participant, at least in some of the phases of a ghastly and thus far perplexing affair. Moreover, I shall be on the spot where a grewsome thing already has happened and where things may continue to happen.

For the present I intend that my narrative shall be a private narrative. No eyes but mine will see what I have written. When the story is finished I may tear up these pages or, on the other hand, I may leave the completed manuscript in a safe place with instructions to my executors that in the event of certain contingencies following my death, all or specified portions of it be given out for publication. So, while it may be that the final record never beholds daylight, in any event it should have a touch of authority and more than a touch of authenticity, since I shall be entering down each succeeding step or phase when the picture of it still is fresh and vivid in my mind.

For the benefit of the reader—if indeed there ever be any reader—perhaps it would be well here at the outset that I should tell a little about myself. I am fifty-eight years old, a bachelor, and a native of Tennessee, but it has been so long since I left there that sometimes I feel almost as though I had lived always in the north. After I was graduated from Vanderbilt I went to work as a cub reporter on a Nashville daily. Two years later I emigrated north to take a berth on the old Evening Recorder. On the Recorder I was first reporter, then assistant city editor; next I was city editor, and finally, for a considerable period, I was managing editor. Shortly before the Recorder went out of business, I did. My great-uncle, Gilbert, who to me was little more than a memory, died, and, seemingly for no better reasons than that he was childless and that I had been named for him, left to me his very tidy little estate. Coming into that legacy enabled me to get out of harness before I wore out in harness. So I took the money and I quit the job, and I have not yet regretted it, although I will confess, even after all these years, that when some big story breaks I have a sort of longing to get back again into the thick of the mess. Possibly that helps to explain why since my retirement the story of criminology has been a besetting fad of mine, but, as it so happens, not my only besetting fad. I raise dogs. I go in for Irish wolfhounds. And I have a collection of what I insist is the truest and earliest form of genuine America—relics from the mounds and the graves and the battlegrounds of the prehistoric Indians and, with these, examples of the handicraft of the Indians of comparatively modern times: weapons, utensils, sacred objects, objects of adornment—that sort of stuff.

Where I practice these hobbies of mine is where I live and where I am writing now, and that is on the lower edge of the village of Bridgeton, which is near the eastern end and on the south shore of Long Island beyond the Hamptons as you go toward Montauk Point.

By the clock on my mantel in front of me it is now twenty minutes of twelve o'clock at night, the day being Tuesday and the date being Oct. 18, 1932. I am here in my small living room, which also is my study, right where I was sitting this morning when the telephone alongside me rang and a flustered voice told me my stepbrother, Uncas Cresap, was dead by violence in his boathouse on Kettle pond.

As I try now to recreate the moment and the words that were spoken, it seems to me as though it must have been yesterday or the day before when this telephone bell rang, so much of shock and thrill and tragedy had been crowded into this one day. From the confusion one circumstance stands out clearer than almost anything else: While I was taking the receiver off the hook I recall having a distinct impression that the message about to be delivered would be sinister and significant. It was more than an impression; it amounted to an absolute conviction, a warning really, a warning coming out of the air. This knowledgeable sensation, this premonition, was strongly within me as I put the earpiece to my ear and said "Hello!"

"This is Gilbert Redd speaking," I said. "Who are you? And what's wrong?"

"This is Charlie Clabby." I recognized the voice then. "And something's wrong over here where I am now at your kinsfolk's house—Mr. Cresap's house. Something's happened over here and I think you'd better come right on over, Mr. Redd, quick as you can get here—yes, sir."

"That'll be easy," I told him. "Anybody sick—or hurt?"

"Worse even than that, Mr. Redd."

BY MARY MEADE.

We can't quite figure out where it started, but there seems to be an idea going around that veal and chicken are the only meats that can be used in making main dish salads for luncheon or supper. Anyway, it's a shocking idea, for it leaves completely out in the cold—or the heat, these days—ther pork, beef, tongue, heart, and sweetbread salads that any connoisseur of things delicious can tell you are more than estimable. Mutton and lamb alone we leave for the hotter dishes, since eating cold mutton fat is just a little too much like chewing tallow candles.

To make any meat salad, simply clear the meat from any skin, bone, fat or gristle and then cut it in cubes. These cubes should be from one-quarter to one-half inch square. Too finely cut meat breaks apart and the result is pasty. To improve the flavor of any meat salad marinate the pieces—that is, let them lie in French dressing for at least half an hour, then drain and use.

First out of the kitchen comes a pork salad platter which is assured of cheers whether the affair be a private family luncheon or a buffet supper for guests:

PORK SALAD PLATTER.

3 cups cold roast pork, diced
2 cups diced celery
1 green pepper, chopped
2 tablespoons grated onion
Paprika
½ cup whipping cream
Mayonnaise
Lettuce
3 hard cooked eggs
6 stuffed olives, sliced
Celery stalks stuffed with cream cheese

Combine the pork, celery, pepper, and onion. Let them chill in French dressing made tangy with paprika for one hour. When ready to serve whip the cream, fold it into the mayonnaise, and mix with the salad ingredients. Pile on crisp lettuce leaves in a rough mound on a large salad platter. As a garnish add slices of hard cooked egg and of stuffed olives. Around the salad on the platter place a border of half or whole pineapple slices masked with mayonnaise dressing and dashed with paprika. Slant in, at proper angles, the crisp celery stalks stuffed with cream cheese. Serve all cold with hot rolls, a beverage, and a fresh fruit dessert.

Or if your wishes—or the left-overs—run to beef, then let it be in the form of a:

BEEF SALAD.

1 cup cold beef, diced
1 small cucumber, diced
½ teaspoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon capers (optional)
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 sprigs mint, minced (optional)
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
French dressing

Toss together all the ingredients, using enough French dressing to blend.

It is so easy to do—at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years' success. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Defies detection. No tell-tale, "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not give your gray, streaked, dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and luster, your money back. Only 60c.

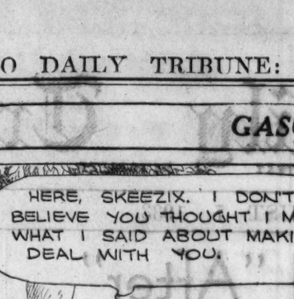
Quilt Pattern Makes Effective Use of Prints



Pennsylvania Dutch Rose.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The "Pennsylvania Dutch Rose" always has been pieced from printed materials. Back in 1820, when the pattern originated, the colors generally used were pink and red. Other interesting and harmonizing color combinations should not be overlooked . . . such as varying shades of blue on a yellow-tan background, or combinations of rose on delicate green.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Buddy Rogers Gets Big Hand from Children

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

The Hotel Sherman looked like a large school during recess time when my guests for our Buddy Rogers party met there. Youngsters are always excited on party days but on this particular occasion they seemed to be just bubbling over!

When we finally got organized on Saturday afternoon, we took about six elevators up to the lovely Bal Tabarin. The Fox company had sent over Buddy's latest film, "Best of Enemies" for a special showing for our guests, so we were seated and immediately settled down to enjoy the film. We particularly liked the funny horses with big straw hats on, the funny old German who always got his words mixed up, and of course Marion Nixon and Buddy. The film was an extremely nice one for children.

As the last scene faded away and applause filled the room, the lights went up and Mr. Rogers, handsome and affable, strode into the room. He got an enthusiastic greeting and was immediately besieged for autographs. As soon as he signed his name for one, he was surrounded by children. It was a rather warm day, and nearly 100 youngsters gathered eagerly around the young man made it a great deal warmer, but he smiled and chatted and scribbled away with a will.

After much writing, he talked and laughed some more and then played the piano for us. He would have liked to stay longer, but had to rush off to another engagement, so after refreshments the party broke up. We'd had a very gay time.

I hope all you youngsters are busy on your letters for our next party. The Jack and Jill players are to give "Little Lord Fauntleroy" in their own small theater for us on Aug. 17, you know. It's just the sort of play children like and understand, so you'd better make an extra effort with that letter. Boys and girls of your own ages are presenting the play, and the same constume that was worn by the first child to play the part many years ago will be used by the lad who'll play the little lord.

Letters are due on Wednesday, you know, and you must each write your own, include your name, address, and age, and direct it to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—The secretary of state and Mrs. Hull returned this evening to their apartment at the Carlton hotel, accompanied by the latter's niece, Mrs. Paul Hays of Staunton, Va. They landed in New York a few days ago from London and went immediately to Hyde Park to spend the week-end with President and Mrs. Roosevelt at their summer home, Springwood.

The secretary of commerce, Daniel C. Roper, gave a tea this afternoon to members of the "little cabinet" in his home on Woodley lane to introduce the new members to each other.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Brewer Montgomery, formerly of Quincy, Ill., who were married here last month, left this morning for Harrisburg, Pa., by motor to attend a luncheon to be given there today by Mr. and Mrs. Lesley McGreath, whose guests they will be overnight. Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery went to Wardour, Md., yesterday for the wedding of Miss Olga K. Craven, daughter of Admiral Thomas T. Craven, and Lionel Glenn Anderson of Washington and Virginia.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Lacks Rug, 12x12.

"Dear Miss Brown: For the last several years this organization has been assisting a woman who is a partial invalid, deserted by her husband. The linoleum on her kitchen floor is old and badly torn and most difficult to keep clean. She is a good housekeeper, and our worker would greatly appreciate any floor covering you can secure for her. The size needed is 12x12. W. L."

Would Welcome Dress Form.

"Dear Miss Brown: I wonder if it would be possible for you to obtain a dress form of medium size for me? I have been unemployed for some time, and, with a friend of mine who is able to sew rather well, I have been trying to do some plain sewing for neighborhood women. We will be glad to call for the form in case you are able to secure one for us. Miss I. S."

Unable to find work, these girls are trying to earn a living and will be grateful for any assistance.

Music Plays Part in Swiss Day at Fair

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Of the several musical events at A Century of Progress yesterday, the Swiss day celebration in the court of the Hall of Science, was the most elaborate. Most of it was concerned with choral singing, and men's, women's and mixed organizations took part in this section. Some of it was straightforward, melodious folk music, while other numbers were combined with yodeling, of which not less than four varieties were heard. At its most elaborate, yodeling is an artful device, though, it would seem, confined exclusively to the Swiss nation.

Dancing took a prominent part on the program, the participants wearing garbs that fairly outshone in color the uniforms of A Century of Progress police. A group of bronze limbed young nymphs wearing white waists and brilliant red shorts did a formal dance of poses and arm gestures under excellent discipline. A larger group of children performed a complicated march with similar exactness except for the last, an archer who lost count and burst into exasperated tears over the mischance.

Carrie Jacobs Bond, one of the most famous song writers of the present day, presented a program of her own well loved works in the Illinois Host building late in the afternoon. She was assisted by Isabel Zehr, contralto, and Ruth Braum, soprano.

A number of musical events were heard in the Hall of Religion. Here were scheduled the Mormon choir of Chicago, the Wiley college colored male quartet of Marshall, Tex., an organ recital, and the Episcopal church choir of East Liverpool, O.

The Forty and Eight band concert in the plaza of the Sears building was played by the Chicago Commandery band. There was an evening community sing in the court of the Hall of Science, where later a concert was given by the Mundy choristers and the Quinn Chapel choir. The Birmingham, Ala., choruses of 150 voices were reserved for the floating theater in a night program.

Patou Provides Silk Dress with Linen Sleeves

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Linen is being put into a minor place in fashions as the season gets along in Paris, but linen is still the cloth of fashion. All-linen dinner dresses and dance frocks have been just a little bit too much worn, too early, and they aren't considered so smart by most fashionable women here, as the linen-trimmed silk frock that Patou is bringing out, and that is shown in our sketch today.

Only the sleeves of this frock are made of white linen, and please observe that they are something new in the way of sleeves. They consist of a cuff and two rising pieces of linen shaped like arrow heads, the underside piece being sewed into the armhole and the top one held on by a silver chain across the top of the arm. The sides of the sleeves are open in loops so you see the arms.

The black silk crêpe frock has a slim skirt with a pie-piece godet set in low at the center back, giving a small trailing flare. The bodice has only an X strap for a back, and in front a rather high neckline made by crossing this strap.

Tactful Nude, Expert's View of Sally Rand

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The case of Sally Rand, whose vogue as a fan dancer has assumed staggering proportions, is now open to critical opinion as well as judicial ruling. I attended her vaudeville première in the Chicago theater last Friday, more out of respect to her reputation as the World's Fair Venus than because of a fondness for nudity glimpsed behind ostrich plumes; and I found her performance graceful, handsomely staged, and free from suggestions of vulgarity.

She has two numbers, both supplemented by the theater's excellent ballet. In the first she is seen in the billowing skirts of an old-fashioned garden costume, innocently skipping about with the chorus girls. In the second she is the famous nymph of the fans, completely disrobed to all appearances, but also carefully calcimined into the semblance of a statue. One observed her not as a naked woman but as a tactful nude.

The stage is darkened when Miss Rand begins her ceremonial of the fans. She makes her ceremonial descending a stairway and creates a more rewarding picture than the celebrated futurist painting, dealing with nudity on the stairs, now on exhibition at the Art institute.

A circle of theatrical moonshine is the only illuminant for her calm, measured ritual with the fans. The ostrich plumes are waved without any bashfulness, and the customers have ample opportunity to form their opinions about Miss Rand's firmly modeled figure. What I saw convinced me that Sally is a handsome gal, and a sincere but not a remarkable dancer.

The other contributors to the current stage program at the Chicago are: Johnny Perkins, roly-poly comedian and master of ceremonies; Ruth Petty, a smart, emphatic singing girl; Tom Howard, a veteran vaudeville comedian in one of his standard sketches, called "The Hold-Up," and the Three Biltmore Boys, who strum banjos and guitars.

Taking Small Child for Walk May Satisfy Desire to Roam

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Have you in your family a little Christopher Columbus? Or Magellan? Or Marco Polo?

Have you a little two year old or three year old or four year old who won't "stay and play in front of the house when I tell him to; who insists on crossing the street, which is a highway with many automobiles; who runs away to the woods across the way; or who is crazy about going to the garage two blocks off?"

One mother says, "My two year old promises me faithfully he won't go away." Another says, "My four year old can't keep his word—he says he won't go to the place where they are excavating—and then he goes. What can I do?"

Well, one of the explanations of children going off on jaunts by themselves is an unsatisfied curiosity about this world—the enticing field opposite, the playmate across the road, or the thrilling steam roller two blocks away.

And some cures may be effected by the simple expedient of satisfying the child's curiosity. Usually thirst ceases when it is quenched, hunger when it is satisfied.

Take your little boy or girl for walks around the neighborhood. Let him visit, as you stand by, the garage that has such a fascination for him. Take him across the street so he can play with the little boy there. Let him sometimes lead you or just wander where he wants to, as you follow him. Try not to thwart the adventurer in him, but satisfy it. I think you'll find he'll settle down better afterwards and be more nearly able to obey your injunctions about staying near the house to play. And remember that sometimes, for children, as for adults, "the hills are greener far away."

M. J. Pittsford of Wheaton is president of the council. D. J. O'Grady, assistant general sales manager of Marshall Field & Co., is general chairman of the session.

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

INSTALLMENT XLIX.

FAITH RENEWED.

It was a Japanese trick known in English as the "stomach throw." Garrick's bare foot went into Schewan's stomach. Simultaneously he dropped on his own back. There was a slight lift from Garrick's foot—and Schewan shot over Garrick in a deadly arc and landed with terrific force on the crown of his head.

Garrick rolled free and sat up. Schewan lay still and a dark pool gathered and grew on the parquet flooring.

"He's not dead!" panted Garrick, and flung himself over to the armchair and reclaimed Schewan's revolver, which he handed to Lanport.

"He's breathing—you can drop him if he gets up—while I telephone."

Garrick did good work with the telephone. A quarter of an hour later there was an ambulance at the door—and three doctors and a number of policemen in the room.

They moved Lanport last as he was the least seriously injured. As they put him on a stretcher Garrick asked:

"I say, Lanport—am I under arrest?"

"Don't make me laugh—it hurts my leg!" answered Lanport. "If the three of us live through this we shall owe 't to you. If—if I'm able to hobble in time—I'll put in for the job of guarding your wedding presents."

"Never mind me, auntie! I've been in an accident. Is Rhoda here?"

"In the drawing room. But she says she can't stay. She says——"

"Hullo, darling! Don't mind me! Just had a mixup with Schewan. I say, isn't everything fine! D'you realize that from this very moment you and I start living happily ever afterwards and——"

He broke off suddenly. She was smiling—but it was not the smile he had been waiting for.

"I shall never be able to thank you sufficiently for all you have done for me——" she began, when he broke in.

"Phew! But I haven't got the hang of this. Do I—just get out and take the next bus home? The last time we met I was under the impression that we intended to get married."

"O, how can you!" The pain in her voice shocked and bewildered him. "I had better tell you at once that I saw the announcement of your—your marriage—in the paper."

"O-o-o! Now just let me go on. After you were shown that news in the paper—how it got there I don't know because no one else has seen it—Tarranio & Co. suggested that it would be a fine thing all round if you were to marry Esdale."

"Yes. But, Lyle—do you mean—you can't mean that it isn't true?"

"I mean it as hard as you like. It's no more true that I'm married than it's true I got drunk with Esdale. I spotted him doping the wine—so I pretended I had drunk it. But never mind that! The main question is——"

"There isn't any question now," said Rhoda as she slid into his arms.

Dorling and George got out of the country and the Yard made no real effort to pursue them, for it was known that they were mere tools in the hands of Schewan. So there was no trial of any member of the gang. There was not even an inquest on Schewan, who died, not directly of the concussion of the brain inflicted by Garrick, but from pneumonia following an attempt to escape in his night clothes.

Three weeks later Rhoda was married to the man who still looked, in spite of his grim experiences, "the World's Perfect Tailor's Dummy."

To Garrick's deep satisfaction it was a double wedding. The other bridegroom was a loyal friend—Richards, the chauffeur—who joined his life to that of the young lady of the silent tongue, who had equipped the caravan for Rhoda and bought her clothes. They were going to join a kinsman in Australia and—although they didn't know it yet—Garrick was going to buy them a farm.

"Gor blimey, Mr. Garrick, sir, I shan't never look as smart in these 'ere chauffeur's clothes as what Mr. Richards did. Sure you aren't sorry you've given me the job, sir? With that thousand pounds in the bank it isn't as though I couldn't wait for something to turn up."

"You're smart enough for me, Alf. And besides I might get into trouble again——"

"No, you won't!" said Rhoda with all the positive authority of a bride of six hours standing.

"Do you think you'll ever be able to stop being a wild young man?"

"I don't know," he laughed. He drew her to him. "But I think——" their lips met in a long kiss— "it will be quite easy to settle down—now."

Shops Show Fuzzy Wools in Two Tones

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It's the peak of the season for the summer clothes hounds who struggle nightly with the problem of keeping white gloves, shoes and accessories in that spotless condition of perfection to wear out the next day. But the prowlers who can't keep away from town, the perspicacious shoppers who can't resist a daily peek for new stuff, are having a grand time discovering . . .

Bolts of new fuzzy wools in some of the most fascinating new colors, shades and weaves that have been invented in years. Rabbits' wool, incredibly soft and furry looking, may not mean so much to the casual snooper during the dog days of August, but it's what you'll grab gleefully for your smartest, slimmest, new one piece street dresses for early fall. All kinds of duotone effects, gray, some intriguing new prune and raisin shades, flattering greenish bronzes and a lot of deep bottle greens and cinnamon browns are just as smart and twice as interesting as single tones of these colors. For instance, you can find a deep sapphire blue clouded with silvery gray, a garnet frosted with gray, and even a delightful shade of brown casually dusted with a film of another tint of gray. They really must be seen to be appreciated.

A new tone of gray that will probably submerge the town is called gunmetal [the old guard will probably murmer "taupe"] it's stunning and you will be able to do grand things with eye-filling contrasts of old gold, canary yellow or orange; hats, or a blouse of any of these colors as an alluring accent.

MINUTE MYSTERY
CAN YOU SOLVE IT?
BY H. A. RIDLEY
[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]
A STORY OF CHINA.

"We have with us this evening a particularly distinguished guest," said the banquet toastmaster of the International Police Chief's convention. "Perhaps he will be good enough to say a few words. Gentlemen—Prof. Joseph Fordney, the eminent criminologist, whom most of you know."

After acknowledging the invitation Fordney said: "While this is, in a way, talking shop, possibly you gentlemen will be interested in hearing a story of China.

"I was a boy at the time, living in Peking with my father, who was attached to the consular service and who had an enthusiastic academic interest in criminology.

"One evening we had as our guest a police official of the city who told us that the previous day two Chinese coolies had been arrested on suspicion of murder and put into the same cell. Later that day a guard, in making his rounds, found one of them dead—dead from strangulation—his neck bearing a thin mark. Investigation disclosed that from the time they were put in the cell until the tragedy was discovered, no one had been near it. That neither man wore shoe strings, of course; that the dead man had not been choked by hands or any kind of clothing. Another baffling disclosure was that no piece of rope, string, or similar article was found. The cellmate of the murdered man, with Oriental composure, refused to say a word.

"The police official was about to tell father how the man had been killed, when he interrupted with, 'I know.' The question is, my friends, do you?"

AND DO YOU?

MALONE'S SIX HIT PITCHING BEATS PIRATES, 6-0

SOX WIN IN 11TH, 6-5; THEN LOSE TO BROWNS, 7-1

Blaeholder Is Puzzle to Hose in Second.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 6.—The White Sox this afternoon eked out a 6 to 5 victory over the Browns in the eleven inning first game of a double header, but their nerves were so shattered by happenings in the encounter that they went to pieces in the second game, a deplorable affair in which they were spared a shut out through a pinch homer which Earl Webb knocked in the ninth. The score of the second game was St. Louis, 7; Chicago, 1.

The first game was the third in a row for the Sox to go more than 10 innings. And all three were extra inning affairs because of the interesting experiment which the White Sox are making—that of conducting a major league team without a first baseman of experience and inclination. Four runs in the second game also were traceable to wretched play around first, though the young man who at the time was conducting the day's second first baseman masquerade was responsible for only two of the runs.

Tie Score on Blunder.

The first game was sent into extra innings because Webb, for the second successive game, dropped a perfect throw from Appling. He varied the technique today as compared with yesterday, by not waiting for the potential final putout to let the ball pop out of his mitt. Today he allowed the Browns to tie the score by dropping the potential third out in the eighth.

Kress relieved Webb after his second fumble of the first game and his third in two games, the one just described, and while he was able to catch all throws, his work at first in the second game was picturesque, to say the least.

These things are not stressed in disparagement of the two lads, however. Their mothers didn't rear them to be first basemen, and it would seem that asking them to make spectacles of themselves in positions they have not been trained to play, is an imposition, especially in view of the current national drive to increase employment. It is said there are many players in the land who at least know the rudiments of first sacking and would be glad to play for the White Sox.

Blaeholder Is Tough.

Another element in the loss of the second game was the pitching of one George Blaeholder. George held the Sox to three singles up till Webb made his ninth inning homer. Two of the hitters were snuffed out in double plays and the other smack was accomplished to no purpose after two were out in the sixth.

This was in marked contrast with the stick work in the first game in which 13 hits were made by the Chicagoans. Four of these were made in the first inning, three in the tenth and two in the eleventh. The three in the tenth put the Sox ahead but the Browns tied it up. Singles by Swanson and Haas in the eleventh and a fly by Kress again put the Sox ahead and this time they made it stick.

FIRST GAME

Three runs in the first inning gave the Sox a 3 to 0 lead which prevailed during the first three innings. Swanson opened with a double which bounced off the bag at first base and promptly scored on Haas' double to center. Gray fanned Webb, but Simmons doubled off the right field screen and came home on Appling's double over third. Levey threw out Dykes. Hayes walked. Melillo threw out Sullivan.

Gray held the Sox to one hit, a bunt by Swanson, in the second inning, but something went wrong with his mechanism and he retired at the close of the session. Knott succeeded him.

Browns Pick Up Two.

The Browns sneaked up on the Sox with two runs in the fourth. Reynolds walked and went to third on Campbell's double. Miller fanned Burns. Melillo singled to center, scoring Reynolds and Campbell. Shea flied to Swanson and Levey fanned.

The Sox got the bases full with none out in the sixth, but could glean but only one run. Dykes walked and went to second while Hayes was beating out a bunt. In attempting to catch Dykes off second, Knott threw to center field, both runners advancing. Sullivan was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Miller forced Dykes at the plate, Burns to Shea. Swanson flied to Campbell, Hayes scoring after the catch and Sullivan taking third. Haas popped to Storti.

One of Webb's butter-finger maneuvers tested Miller's mettle in the seventh. With one down Storti grounded to Appling. Luke made a perfect throw to Webb, but the shot popped out of Webb's glove and Melillo was safe. West forced Storti. Simmons made a great one handed running catch of Reynold's foul.

Campbell opened the eighth with a single to deep short. Burns attempted to sacrifice, but forced Campbell, Dykes to Appling. Melillo came through with his third successive single, putting Burns on third. Hornsby went up for Shea and Fonseca countered

WEST POLO TEAM WINS, 10-6, OVER FORT SHERIDAN

The polo team which will represent the west took its first workout yesterday in preparation for the intersectional series which begins next Sunday. Sparing their ponies and taking as few chances as circumstances would permit, the westerners defeated the Fort Sheridan high goal team, 10 to 6, at Onwentsia, where the series is to be held.

The quartet, which is composed of Cecil Smith, Rube Williams, Elmer Boeseke, and Aidan Roark, had never before played as a unit, so the afternoon was devoted largely to polishing team work and experimenting with the placing of players.

Shift Lineup.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, chairman of the managing committee of the series; Louis E. Stoddard, chairman of the United States Polo association, and Neil McCarthy, alternate and manager of the western team pending the arrival of Carleton F. Burke, directed the experiments from the sidelines.

At the start of the game, Williams took No. 1 position, Boeseke No. 2, Smith No. 3, and Roark back, but after six chukkers Williams was shifted to back and the three others moved up one notch apiece.

Maj. McLaughlin, Stoddard, and McCarthy decided this combination worked more smoothly, but further experiments will be made before fixing the lineup definitely. The final arrangement will be made by Burke, who is expected to arrive tomorrow.

Ponies Need Conditioning.

Yesterday's game brought out the fact that the western ponies need considerable conditioning before they can be expected to cope with the fleet footed mounts of the easterners. Accordingly two more practice games have been scheduled with the army team. One will be played tomorrow at 4 p. m. at Onwentsia and the second on Thursday. The Fort Sheridan quartet is composed of Capt. C. A. Wilkinson, Capt. C. E. Davis, Capt. P. P. Rodes, and Maj. C. C. Smith.

It was pointed out that this team furnishes an excellent test for the westerners, for it is the United States army's international squad. Moreover, these men are mounted on ponies which are generally considered to be the best the army has. In yesterday's game the western mounts were repeatedly outrun by the army horses, but this circumstance was explained by the fact that the visiting ponies had not been conditioned since their arrival, nor were they urged to the limit of their capabilities.

EAST HARD PRESSED

Port Washington, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(AP)—After a whirlwind start the all-star eastern polo team led by Tommy Hitchcock bogged down in the second half today and needed its big early lead to stand off E. A. S. Hopping's Reds in the final test match for the forthcoming East-West series at Chicago.

The score was 13 to 7, but Hitchcock's 32 goal side, including Michael Phipps and the Guest brothers, was decisively checked and outplayed in the second half, after piling up a lead of 10 goals in the first three periods. In this one-sided rush by the "varsity," Phipps scored six goals and Hitchcock, hitting sensationally, added three.

The Red back field shifted places for the last half, with E. A. S. Hopping moving to back and Stewart Iglehart going to No. 3, with the result that Hitchcock thereafter was the only regular able to score. Tommy tallied twice in the fourth period, but the Whites were blanked for the rest of the game.

AND THEN CAME THE CUBS' BIG BOMBARDMENT

Women Open Western Golf Meet Today

One of the largest and most talented fields in the history of the Women's Western Golf association will start play today at the Oak Park Country club in the association's thirty-first annual championship tourney. An 18 hole qualifying round will feature the opening of the meet, which will continue through Saturday, with the low 32 scorers advancing to the match play rounds for the championship proper.

Eighteen hole matches will be played on the morning of tomororw, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, with the 36 hole final scheduled for Saturday.

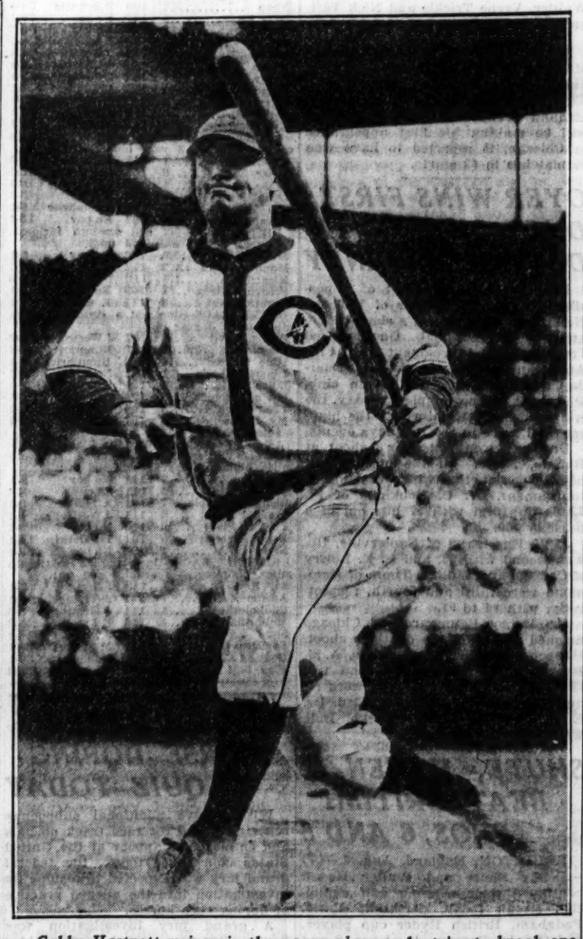
Champions in Field.

Heading the field is Virginia Van Wie of Beverly, national women's champion, for whom the western title has been a most elusive one. Matched against Miss Van Wie are Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, the defending champion, who also won the title in 1927 and 1929; Mary K. Browne of Cleveland, former national women's tennis champion, who has also been runner up in the national women's golf tournament; June Beebe, young Olympia Fields star, who has swept through all three previous major Chicago events of this season; Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., runnerup to Mrs. Hill last year, and Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt Jr. of Northmoor, another three time winner of the event.

Miss Van Wie holds the course record of 77 at Oak Park, where women's par for the 6,447 yard layout is 40—38—78.

Shoot Practice Rounds.

A number of entrants in the tournament practiced yesterday, the best card, a 44—41—85, being submitted by Miss Browne. Among the late entries were Miss Helen Lawson of St. Paul, Minn.; Mrs. H. C. Kersten of Richmond, Va.; Miss Diane Marks of Calumet, Chicago; Miss Imgard Grabbe of Terre Haute, Ind.; Mrs. R. I. Caughey of Sappington, Mo.; Mrs. F. A. Dowling of Kansas City; Mrs. L. E. Bailey of Olympia Fields; Miss Mary Pletsch of Glen View; Mrs. Ed Mayo of DeKalb; Mrs. Paul Kalman of St. Paul; Mrs. W. H. Littell of Indian Hill; Miss Adelaide Tieken of Biltmore; Mrs. Milo Oakland and Mrs. J. Howard Trees of DeKalb; Mrs. J. E. Edmonds of La Grange; Miss C. Bortree of Oak Park, and Mrs. Florence Strupk of Mid-City.



Gabby Hartnett swings in the wrong place as he tries to knock one of Swetonic's pitches over the fence in the fourth inning. The Cub catcher then waited Swetonic out and drew a pass. In the next inning the Cubs scored five runs, more than enough for Pat Malone to win.

GIANTS DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER WITH DODGERS

Lose Opener, 6-3; Then Triumph, 3-2.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(AP)—The Dodgers came from behind to defeat the New York Giants, 6 to 3, in the first game of a double header today. They threatened to do the same thing in the second, but at a critical moment in the sixth inning Adolfo Luque, veteran relief pitcher, turned back the assault, then held them for the rest of the contest while the league leaders won, 3 to 2.

An eighth inning attack spoiled Carl Hubbell's efforts in the first game. Tony Cuccinello's double with the bases full drove in three runs and lifted the Dodgers into the lead. Van Mungo pitched steady ball for Brooklyn. Scores:

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs rose up impressively yesterday and filed a protest against the charge that they are developing a habit of losing to contenders. They gave the second place Pirates a blast of base hits and also a blast of fire ball pitching, in which Pat Malone sparkled to attain his eighth triumph of the season. The combination served to bowl over the second placers and boost the current league champions to a decisive 6 to 0 win for their tenth in eighteen starts against the Buccaneers this year.

Mr. Malone did his day's work in such elegant fashion that the Pirates, after half the afternoon had been spent in futile swinging, were perfectly satisfied to get a hit here and there. During the first six innings they were good enough to roll up a staggering total of three hits. Then Mr. Malone, having fallen heir to a big lead, took things a bit easier and surrendered one hit in each of the last three sessions. But even with his excellent work, the big right hander twice had a full house on his hands. In neither instance was he annoyed.

Break Out in Fifth.

The Cubs themselves didn't start off as if they were in the mood to do anything more to Steve Swetonic than the Pirates were doing to Malone. But the Cubs changed around, whereas the Pirates couldn't. Swetonic held the Grimm boys with marked ease for four innings, as was indicated by a total of two hits. Then the Cubs put on their big push of the day. They were so crude that Swetonic had to leave in the fifth and his successor, Bill Harris, was additionally disturbed before suppressing the uprising. Five runs scored during the mêlée, and later another was added, merely on the excuse that 15,000 spectators needed some form of amusement besides airtight fielding.

Babe Herman, who either is a flop or a sensation at bat, selected the latter rôle for himself, thus proving of great aid to Malone's cause. In the midst of the turbulent doings in the fifth the rather graceless Babe uncorked a homer with a mate on base. Prior to that he had walked twice to no account. And after the homer he ripped off a double, which was the potent item in the scoring of the lone run in the seventh. As it turned out, however, Malone could have gotten along without the Babe Herman help. The runs that hits by Bill Jurges, Woody English, and Billy Herman had driven in before the Babe went to work would have been ample.

Malone Escapes Trouble.

Malone didn't encounter a semblance of trouble until after two were out in the second and then suddenly found himself confronted by a full house. But the situation wasn't exactly trying on the nerves. Suhr singled to center, Piet singled to left and Grace walked to load 'em up. All that Malone had to do to squirm out of this fix was to fool the Pirate pitcher. This was done easily on a roller to Jurges.

The Cubs cooked up a little fuss in their half of the second and could easily have extracted a run therefrom but apparently didn't wish to exert themselves. At least Babe Herman appeared to be in that mood. The Babe drew a pass to open the inning and Demaree followed with a single to center. Hartnett succeeded in sacrificing. Grimm sent a healthy fly to Lindstrom and Herman started for home with the catch. The peg by Lindstrom was perfect. Mr. Grace, the catcher, stood idly at the plate as if the throw hadn't even been made. The alert Babe, noting Grace's lack of interest, decided it would be safe to go into the plate standing up. He did so and just as he was taking his last step Grace tagged him. Had the Babe slid he'd have scored easily, because the bounce on the throw in was high. The Babe learned his baseball with the daffy Dodgers. So he can be excused.

Swetonic on Ropes Again.

The Cubs had Swetonic staggering a bit again in the fourth and again let him get away without a scratch. Cuyler singled to center with one out,

Christopher Leads Amateurs with 157.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Tommy Armour, Medinah Country club professional, was home yesterday with a 36 hole score of 143, five under par, and almost a certain winner in the first annual open tournament of the Columbian Country club, when his pal, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, came in with a duplicate card to tie him for first place. Nearly a hundred professionals and amateurs, several of the former en route to the National P. G. A. meet at Milwaukee, competed in the tournament.

It apeared that Dick Martin of Briergate, and Ay Favelli of Lake Shore would be forced to play off for first place among the amateurs as a result of having finished with 159, but Charley Christopher of Park Ridge, playing in one of the last threesomes of the day, pushed them back to second place by posting a 157.

Split First, Second Purses.

Armour and Walsh shared first and second money among the professionals, each collecting $250. Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, who finished with a disastrous 42 on his last nine, and Al Huske of Elgin, tied for third and fourth, each receiving $125. Other prize winners and their scores included Jock Hutchison of Glen View, 150, $70; Tom Carney of Northmoor, 150, $70, and a quintet of 151 scorers composed of Sonny Rouse, Eddie Williams and Joe Paletti of Chicago, Ben Coltrin of San Francisco, and George Reid of Noroton, Conn., each went away with $22 for the day's work.

Either Armour or Walsh could have led the field single handed, and by an even more comfortable margin than their six stroke advantage. With Tommy it was a case of missing a number of short putts on the morning round, several of them potential birdies, and Frank's opportunity flitted away on the last hole, where he took a six, one over par.

Westland Shoots.

Par—Out	455	355	443	—38

Morning Round.

Armour—Out	455	354	442	—36
Armour—In	454	545	245	—38—74
Walsh—Out	555	334	343	—35
Walsh—In	453	364	354	—37—72

Afternoon Round.

Armour—Out	434	343		—34
Walsh—Out	544	343	434	—34
Walsh—In	453	435	346	—37—71—143

In fashioning his 143, Armour brought down nine birdies and one eagle, while Walsh went him one better with as many birdies and two eagles. Tommy was under par on three holes in the morning and over on the same number. He was on the 526 yard sixth in two for his first birdie and was close to the pin at the 9th and 16th for the other two.

Missed Putts Hurt.

Missed putts at the 12th and 13th and a bunker at the 15th cost him a stroke on each case. He putted for birdies on the 17th and 18th, but failed on both. In the afternoon he scored an eagle at the second by sending his second shot four feet from the pin. He took four from the edge of the fifth green, but birdied the next two holes. He was out in 34 and coming home scored birdies at the 12th, 16th, and 18th.

Walsh had a great day with chip shots, particularly in the afternoon, when he laid his shots to the second and third stony, and holed out a 30 foot effort from off the edge of the sixth for an eagle, following two fine shots with his driver No. 1 iron. He ing round, holing out another chip ing round, holing ont another chip shot. He three putted only one green, the ninth in the afternoon.

On his final hole of the day Walsh's drive sailed into the 17th fairway, but he placed a great spoon shot between the bunkers before the green. His third shot didn't hold, rolling off the green, and although he nearly holed out coming back, the ball rolled four feet beyond the pin. He missed that to take a six.

Special Prize Unclaimed.

A special prize of $100, to have been awarded to any professional lowering Abe Espinosa's course record of 67, is still at large. Armour's 69 was the only card within hailing distance

ATHLETICS BEAT SENATORS, 12-8; YANKEES GAIN

Washington's Lead Is Cut to Three Games.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—(AP)—The New York Yankees cut Washington's American league lead to three games today by winning from Boston while the Senators lost to Philadelphia, 12 to 8, with Manager Cronin gambling on a rookie pitcher.

Cronin started Ed Chapman, fast ball pitcher, recently acquired from the Rochester Redwings. The Athletes feasted on his offerings for four runs in the second, including Jimmie Foxx's thirty-first homer, and were well on the way to another quartet in the third when he was yanked to make way for Thomas.

The Senators fought back with four runs in the second and third, and tied the score in the sixth as Cain went wild and gave three walks to make a total of eight for his sojourn on the mound.

YANKS BEAT RED SOX, 5-4.

New York, Aug. 6.—(AP)—With the aid of three Boston errors, some timely hits, and George Pipgras' wildness in the early innings the Yankees broke their losing streak today by beating the Red Sox, 5 to 4.

Neither of the starting pitchers, Pipgras and Danny MacFayden, could go the route. The former yielded three runs in the first inning after the Red Sox had scored twice and finally retired in favor of Johnny Welch in the third. MacFayden lasted until the sixth, when Boston put over two runs to tie the score.

The Yanks scored the winning run in the seventh when Buck Walters fumbled Tony Lazzeri's grounder, letting Lou Gehrig score. Score:

Reds Win Pair from Cards in Extra Innings

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 6.—(AP)—The crippled Cincinnati Reds bounced back out of the cellar today by handing the St. Louis Cardinals a double defeat in extra inning games. The scores were 2 to 1 and 1 to 0.

The first game, a pitchers' battle between Tex Carleton and Red Lucas, ended in the eleventh inning when Manion smacked a single into left field to bring home Chick Hafey, who had advanced to second on a sacrifice. Hafey also crossed the plate with the winning run in the twelve inning second game.

Jones May Hurl Final of Brown Series for Sox

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 6.—The White Sox and Browns will finish their series tomorrow. If Sam Jones feels amply rested from his splendid performance in Detroit last Wednesday he will be asked to pitch.

The game in Detroit Thursday, the one here yesterday, and both of the contests here today should do much to impress upon the White Sox that a major league ball club should not try to skin by without employing a first baseman.

Bill Sullivan caught the first seven and one-third innings of the first game and looked good, especially in view of the fact that he had done no catching previously this year. He caught in only six games last year.

Red Kress' return to work was auspicious in that he drove in the winning run in the 11th inning of the first game and caught the ball for the last putout of the contest.

The folks are beginning to show some interest in the Browns, as predicted by Rogers Hornsby when he took over the tailenders ten days ago. Two thousand formerly was a swell Sunday turnout for the Brownies. More than 7,500 paid to get in today.

The season series between the Sox and the Browns now stand at 13 for the Sox and 6 for the Browns.

Police Quell Fight as Mills Win 2 Games

Police were called yesterday to stop a fight during a double header which the Mills won from the Madison Blues, 4 to 1 and 5 to 2, at Mills stadium.

In the eighth inning of the second game Manager Eddie Lenahan, enraged because a close play at first base was called against Madison, rushed out of the dugout and struck Umpire Edward Baldwin. The attack precipitated a finght, in which Butch Krueger, Madison pitcher, and Lefty Sullivan of the Mills also participated.

The two victories enabled the Mills to increase their Wisconsin-Illinois league lead to four games over the second place Madison club. Scores:

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Cliff Sutter of New Orleans, defending titleholder, moved into the second round of the eastern grass courts tennis championship without lifting a racquet today, but three other seeded stars had to overcome stiffer resistance than they had expected.

Of these only Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, Cal., seeded fifth, dropped a set, but both Gregory Mangin of Newark, seeded No. 4, and George M. Lott of Chicago, No. 7, were pressed to the extent of one deuced set apiece.

Sutter advanced through the default of Samuel P. Gilpin of Merion, Pa. Gledhill beat Ernest Kuhn of New York, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3. Lott defeated Harold MacGuffin, Philadelphia, 6-3, 8-6, and Thomas Flynn of Albany gave Mangin a struggle before surrendering, 11-9, 6-4.

DIVERSE EVENTS GIVE RIDDLE TO WHEAT TRADERS

See Higher Prices as Situation Clears.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat traders are having a hectic experience as the result of the extremely bullish crop news in the United States and Canada, the sensational decline around 30 cents a bushel following an advance from below the 50 cent level a few months ago to $1.20 for September wheat within a few weeks.

There has been no such an experience since the world war. There is every evidence, however, of a change for the better. Drastic liquidation on the part of the public, who bought on the talk of inflation by the government and sensational crop news, has put the market in better shape. What the trade needs now and is anxiously awaiting is the removal of price restrictions and a revival of confidence.

Expect Wheat to Top Dollar.

There are said to be solid reasons why wheat should be selling at a dollar or more and the trade will be greatly disappointed should the price fail to work irregularly higher from now on.

The belief is generally expressed that with sensationally short crops of small grains in North America, uncertainty as what foreign importing and exporting countries have raised this year, still plenty of time for damage to overtake the Australian and Argentine crops, and the acreage reduction movement in leading producing countries, there is the basis for higher level of prices.

Price restrictions by the government and leading exchanges is looked upon as a necessary movement to protect the public who recently bought recklessly in the belief that there was no limit to the advance and forgot that prices cannot move up indefinitely without meeting sharp reactions.

Future Favors Holders.

Everything lately has worked in favor of the speculative holder and the farmer. The latter will get more than double and perhaps treble the prices secured for his grain last year. Wheat prices the world over are regarded as too low and an upward readjustment is necessary under changed conditions.

Supplies are not heavy and are decreasing. Farmers are not selling their grain freely, either new or old. In fact, the primary movement in the United States since July 1 has aggregated 42,716,000 bushels, compared with practically 50,000,000 bushels for the same time last year.

A feature of the movement is the arrival of only 10,248,000 bushels at Kansas City, compared with 16,836,000 bushels last year. Territory tributary to that market has one of the smallest crops this year and there is a large carryover from the previous year despite the short crop.

Fair European Crop.

September wheat in Chicago ranged between 92⅛ cents and $1.02⅛ for the week and closed at 98⅝ to 98¾ cents, while December finished at $1.01½ to $1.01⅞, and May at $1.00⅝ to $1.05⅜, showing net gains of ¾ to 1⅛ cents for the week. Winnipeg advanced on heavy buying from Chicago with net gains of 2⅝ cents, October finishing at 85⅝ cents and December at 85⅜ to 85½ cents. Liverpool lost ½ to ⅝ cent on futures for the week, and October closed at 76⅛ cents and December at 78¼ cents.

Corn Traders Mixed.

Corn crop prospects have deteriorated in some of the best sections and the promise is the most irregular in recent years. This condition has created good buying of corn by speculators, who believe there will be a demand not only for the big carryover from the 1932 crop but also for the small production of the current year. The market's action has puzzled all classes of traders for a month. They cannot neutralize the effect of the smaller crop and a heavy carryover the latter being suggested by the record visible supply of 60,731,000 bushels, or practically 50,000,000 bushels more than last year.

September corn closed at 55⅝ to 55½ cents; December, 59⅜ to 59½ cents, and May, 64⅞ cents, showing net gains for the week of 2 cents on September, 1⅛ cents on December, and ⅞ cent on May. Prices for the week follow:

Oats Yield Below Needs.

Oats production in the United States promises to be the smallest in nearly half a century and is estimated by Nat C. Murray at 686,000,000 bushels, which with the carryover is below domestic requirements. Traders have bought oats on the acute shortage of supplies for several weeks and prices respond readily to new buying. The close was ⅛ cent higher on September, which finished at 40¼ cents, while December closed at 43 cents, losing ⅛ cent; and May at 46⅝ or ⅞ cent under the previous week.

Hot Weather Fails to Halt Business Gain

Undeterred by mounting thermometers and signs of a leveling off of activity in certain lines, industry genealy moved forward again last week. However, the sharp gains which characterized a few trade divisions during the last two months are now absent, and advances are being distributed more uniformly—if not so spectacularly—in other directions.

The steady increase in the number of corporations that are showing profits provides proof of the extent which the recovery has attained thus far. The list of wage advances, granted in accord with the spirit of the national recovery campaign, continues to grow.

See Revival of Buying.

The fact that consumer buying has lagged behind the hectic gains in industrial productions is no cause for concern, in the opinion of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., who point out that the pinched spending habits acquired under the stark grimness of the last three years cannot be expected to change in a hurry. Retail inventories, the agency contends, are still below normal.

The peaks in some of the basic industrial indices showed signs of a rounding off progress last week. Steel production dropped one point to 54 per cent of capacity, according to the trade review, "Steel." This was attributed to the uncertainty surrounding the labor difficulties in the Pennsylvania coal regions, and the inability of the industry to determine clearly the full effects of the national industrial recovery act.

Rail Repair Work Gains.

Railroad repair work showed a substantial expansion with several carriers planning to rebuild cars and put down new rails. Inquiries for new equipment were also increasing.

Electric power output rose 15.4 per cent for the week of July 29—the latest reportable period. It was the thirteenth consecutive weekly gain, although the percentage improvement was unchanged from the preceding week's showing.

Automobile production eased off during the past week. As estimated by Cram, output totaled 57,017 units, a decline of 7,408 from the previous week. July production was estimated at 245,000 units, 6 per cent under the June volume, but an increase of 109 per cent over July a year ago.

Car Loading Increase.

Railway car loadings for the week of July 29, totaling 638,295, were 24.9 per cent ahead of the corresponding week last year, constituting the twelfth consecutive week in which traffic has bettered the comparative periods of 1932. The current report, however, represented a decrease of 10,518 cars below the preceding week.

Retail sales last week were generally ahead of last year, although there has been a recession from the recent peak levels. One of the features of current consumer buying is the spreading of interest to articles—largely in the luxury class—which heretofore have been slow moving.

Wholesale buying remained on an even keel, surveys show, with the unsettled price situation and the uncertainty of deliveries constituting the only check to further pronounced gains.

FORECLOSURE IS STEP TO REVAMP REPUBLIC GAS

New York, Aug. 6.—One of the final steps preliminary to the voluntary reorganization of the Republic Gas corporation, will be taken in the next few days when the bondholders' protective committee, through the Manufacturers Trust company, institutes foreclosure proceedings.

The bank as trustee will foreclose on pledged collateral underlying the present issue of first lien collateral 6 per cent convertible bonds, series A, which are to be exchanged for securities in the new company to be formed under the reorganization.

The amended plan of reorganization was dated July 19, 1933, and provided that for each $1,000 first lien collateral 6 per cent convertible bond, holders would receive $500 principal amount of 6 per cent collateral trust bonds, $500 in 6 per cent convertible income debentures and 30 shares of common stock in the new company. The common stock is being given in lieu of unpaid interest on the old bonds, from July 15, 1931, to Dec. 15, 1933.

South Carolina Tobacco Markets to Open Aug. 10

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6. — The farm administration has announced that the South Carolina and border tobacco markets would open on Aug. 10, instead of Aug. 15, as was originally scheduled. Only a day or two ago the sales committee of the Tobacco Association of the United States, representing the principal tobacco buyers, refused to change the Aug. 15 date but they receded from their position under pressure of the farm administration.

New Secretary Is Elected by N. Y. Cotton Exchange

Frank J. Knell has been elected secretary of the New York Cotton exchange for the ensuing year. The board of managers announced that the best interest of the exchange would be served by reverting to its former custom of having a board manager of the exchange serve as secretary.

WALL ST. AWAITS STEEL REPORT, DUE THIS WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 6.—There are a number of items on the new week's calendar which ought to have an important bearing on stock market operations. High up toward the top is the United States Steel corporation's unfilled tonnage report to be issued Friday. This is always a market factor of considerable influence and, in view of the industry's great strides toward recovery since early spring and labor troubles which may affect the industry to some extent, it is more so than usual.

Steel production was reported at 57 per cent of capacity last week, or approximately its peak, and the reviews dwelt on the prospects of further improvement in the fall. Although the corporation's orders in July have shown a decrease, in seven of the last ten years, the speculative community is betting on a gain when the figures are made public this week.

Crop Estimates Due.

The government's estimate on the year's wheat yield will appear on Thursday and this, with the department of agriculture's report on the cotton crop outlook due on Tuesday, is sure to have some influence on the farm equipment, mail order, and related stocks and through them probably to react on the list as a whole.

Other developments of promising weight on speculative hopes and fears include the dividend meetings of the General Motors corporation and the Union Pacific railroad, a number of important corporation earnings statements, and governmental decision on a batch of industrial codes now hanging fire.

Whether any or all of the developments will be able to pull the market out of the slough of despond into which it has fallen since the big shakeout three weeks ago remains to be seen. Most brokers are resigned to a prolonged period of stagnation; some do not look for any great change either in the pace of trading or the trend of price movements until the new crops begin to move in the fall.

Rests on U. S. Action.

In the popular viewpoint, prospects for the long pull depend almost wholly on the outcome of the administration's recovery program. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson was quoted awhile back as saying that the succeeding sixty days would tell the tale on this problem, although developments long before the expiration of this period may, it is believed, provide evidence upon which to base a dependable speculative guess.

Meanwhile the disposition of the rank and file seems to be to sit tight and await the turning of the wheel. This policy brought dealings last week to about the slowest stage since the "new deal" administration went into action, creating a drag that sent prices of leading issues 1 to 5 points below their figures at the close of the preceding week.

Turnover Declines.

The turnover for the four and a half trading sessions—business went back on the regular five hour basis last Monday but Friday's session was halted at noon by the tear bomb explosion in the ventilating system of the exchange—was 8,609,393 shares, or only a little more than the turnover for a single day a few weeks ago.

Inflation, in view of the government's latest denial of any immediate intention to speed up the greenback mills, has been crossed off as a market factor and the trade reviews, which on the whole continue encouraging, cut little figure in the average calculations. Attention centers more and more on Washington.

Geneseo, Ill., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Freight shipments to and from Geneseo in July increased 212.5 per cent over July, 1932, according to a Rock Island agent here. Shipments totaled 162 carloads, compared with 31 in July, 1931, while receipts totaled 138, compared with 65 last year. Increased activity in the grain and live stock markets was the principal factor.

Grigsby-Grunow Reports Big July Radio Shipments

July radio shipments by the Grigsby-Grunow company were the best for any month this year, except June, which was the peak month for the last two years, officials report. Shipments of receiving sets and refrigerators for the month were 29,777.

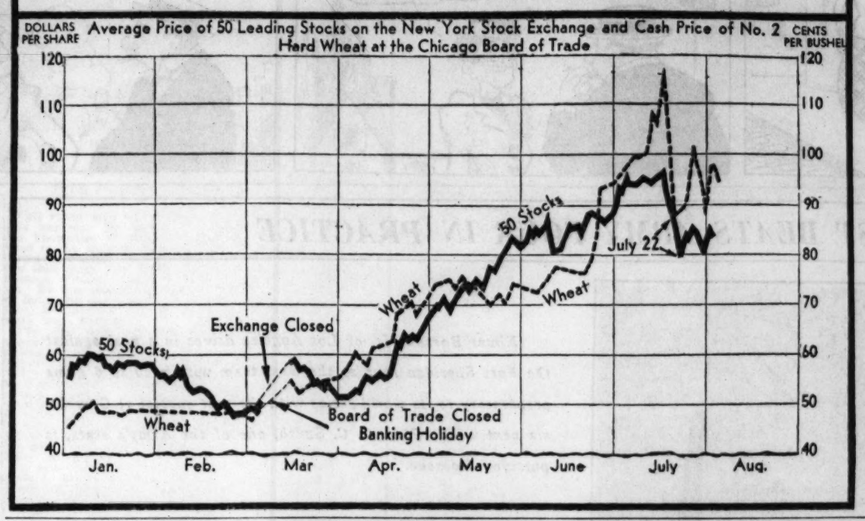
Wheat and Stocks Move Together in Rise and Fall



NEW YORK CURB TRADE DULLEST IN LONG PERIOD

Influences which made for a restriction of speculative operations on the big board likewise put a damper on trading activities in this market. The sudden slackening of interest left the market without the bullish support it had been receiving during the last few months. Trends over the week were irregular.

A revival of interest in the alcohol stocks, on a small scale, enabled the most volatile member of that group to climb a few notches. Utility leaders gave a spiritless performance, possible as a result of strong agitations for electric rate reductions in New York state and other eastern centers.

Industrial shares, representing a wide group of business lines, were inclined to sag, partly as a result of neglect and also because of theories that recent peak levels had fully discounted immediate earnings prospects. Some of the mining issues rose above the inertia which characterized the general group and scored modest gains. Oils showed only occasional flashes of prominence, with quotations changing but slightly.

NO BONDS SOLD LAST WEEK, FIRST TIME SINCE MAR. 10

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 6.—Apart from the new financing of the United States treasury there were no bond offerings last week. Municipal financing was confined to an offering of $5,000,000 of six months notes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, carrying a rate of 0.78 per cent, and offered to yield five-eighths of 1 per cent.

Last week was the first occasion since the week ended on March 10, the period of the bank holiday, that no new bond financing had been reported. Added to the normal seasonal let-down in financing at this time of year, the absorption of the market in the treasury's offering of $500,000,000 of 3¼ per cent bonds, the first bond issue since September, 1931, accounted for the absence of other business.

Dealers reported that quotations continued firm, although business was quiet. A fairly large volume of new offerings is expected to appear this week.

DIVIDENDS CUT, PASSED FEWEST IN THREE YEARS

New York, Aug. 6. — Dividend cuts and omissions in July were fewer than in any month since August, 1930, the Standard Statistics company reported today. Unfavorable changes totaled 87, compared with 140 in June and 286 in July, 1932.

There were 71 favorable revisions against 82 in previous month and 26 in the same period last year. For the first seven months unfavorable actions numbered 1,208, against 2,129 in the like period last year.

VARIED TRADE SHOWS BRING MORE BUYING INTO CHICAGO MARKET

Wholesale houses were occupied with preparations for the opening of the Interstate Merchants council. Crowds of visiting buyers here for the ten trade shows now in progress have brought buying into the market, the association reported.

"Inventories at retail were still below normal and indications were that, by this fall, demands for new stocks will be the heaviest in several seasons, it is said." One of the big loop department stores reported that July business increased 52 per cent over 1932.

LAMB SUPPLIES WILL BE SMALLER THAN LAST YEAR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—Supplies of lambs for markets during the next ten months are slightly smaller than those a year ago and some improvement in the demand for the products is expected as industrial activity increases.

This is the summation of the bureau of agricultural economics, but it said that the demand for feeder lambs this fall might be adversely affected by the general shortage of feed in the corn belt.

The sheep supply was reported to be trending downward. The agricultural observers said the trend of flock numbers in the western sheep states during the next few years would depend on the number of ewe lambs kept for flock replacements. These replacements during the last two years have been relatively small.

The bureau said that the domestic rise in wool prices had been considerably greater in this country than abroad and that the continuation of high domestic mill activity would depend to a great extent upon the reaction of the buyers to the higher price textile.

A strengthened financial position for the growers was reported due to the increased price for lambs and wool this year over 1932. The 1933 lamb crop, estimated at 28,988,000 head, was reported to be 729,000 head smaller than the 1932 lamb crop and this year's crop was the smallest since 1929.

New York Stock Exchange Groups to Protest Tax

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 6.—More than 200 members of the New York Stock exchange, partners in stock exchange firms, and representatives of financial institutions will go to Albany on Tuesday to protest against the bill empowering New York City to levy a tax of 4 cents a share on transactions in securities. It is expected that many upstate brokerage firms and financial institutions also will send representatives with protests to the hearing.

STOCKHOLDERS IN 20 CONCERNS SLIGHTLY FEWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 6.—The number of stockholders of leading American corporations turned slightly downward in the first half of 1933, the movement coinciding with the revival of stock market activity and the simultaneous accumulation of large blocks of shares by important investment accounts, both private and incorporated.

As yet, compilations reveal, the decline in numbers of stockholders has not made much headway, but the change is viewed as significant, especially in view of historic records showing similar results at the end of other depressions.

There were 3,790,392 holders of common and preferred shares of the twenty companies with the largest number of stockholders on or about June 30, 1933, comparing with 3,635,609 on Dec. 31, 1932, and 3,366,526 on Dec. 31, 1931. These figures, however, reflect the sharp rise in holders of Radio corporation shares resulting from the distribution of large holdings by General Electric and Westinghouse earlier in the year.

Excluding Radio corporation common shareholders from the computation, there were 3,519,666 stockholders for the twenty companies at midyear, comparing with 3,547,609 at the end of 1932 and 3,280,526 at the end of 1931. The decline was actually less than one per cent.

WESTINGHOUSE RAISES PRICES OF REFRIGERATOR

An increase in the price of electric refrigerators, effective at once, has been announced by R. C. Cosgrove, manager, refrigeration department, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. The price increases range from $10 to $75. The lower priced new model announced last week remains unchanged.

In commenting on the price increase, Mr. Cosgrove explained that higher costs have been due to the rapidly changing conditions affecting the manufacture of refrigerators. He said:

"With the price of raw materials and labor substantially advanced, it has been found necessary to increase retail price of the finished product to maintain a sound merchandising program and to stabilize production. Prices of some of the raw materials used in the manufacture of our product have advanced, in many cases as high as 100 per cent, within the past few months. With the price of tin, copper, steel, rubber, insulation, hardware, cloth, labor, lacquer, and other products materially increased is was found necessary to adjust the retail price."

Pacific Coast Building Rises 152% This Year

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 6.—Construction projects on the Pacific coast have been awarded at a rate 152 per cent above that for last year during the first seven months of 1933. Figures assembled by Gilbert Darwin, construction trade publication editor, listed total awards in 1933 to July 31 of $146,839,048 as compared with $52,140,119 for the same period in 1932.

National Bellas Hess, Inc., Sponsors Buy New Stock

Sponsors of National Bellas Hess, Inc., successor to the National Bellas Hess company, Inc., have exercised an option to purchase 100,000 shares of the new corporation's stock at $150,000 and another block of the same size at $175,000. An option to buy a third 100,000 share block at $275,000 expires Aug. 31, 1934.

Dominion Stores, Ltd., reports a net profit of $156,774 for the six months ended June 30, equivalent to 55 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $223,235, or 79 cents a share in the first half of 1932.

Transcontinental-Western Air Travel Shows Increase

F. W. Woolworth.

Investors' Guide: Will you please mail me the latest information regarding Woolworth?—Mrs. D. H.

Answer: F. W. Woolworth company was the first to conceive the idea of "five and ten" store and the first to incorporate numerous such units into a chain. The advantages of such a system are that all business is done for cash, which eliminates credit losses and makes possible purchases at substantial discounts, enables sales to be made at a small margin of profit with a rapid turnover which in turn makes it possible for the company to make heavy purchases at lower unit costs.

Falling prices brought many articles within the price range of this system that formerly were too expensive to be sold through their outlets. This, however, did not prevent sales from falling off, despite increased number of stores, because of increased competition, including that from local merchants, and gradual elimination of desirable store sites, as well as restricted consumer purchasing power.

To counteract this the company in 1932 experimented with the introduction of articles to sell at 20 cents. This proved successful and the idea has been incorporated into all the larger units. Its success has been demonstrated by the fact that sales for June, 1933, were 2.2 per cent more than in June of 1932, and represented the first increase in sales over the corresponding month of the preceding year for 23 months. Sales in January, 1933, for instance, were 11.93 per cent under January, 1932, sales, and for the first half of 1933 sales were 7.9 per cent under sales for the first six months of 1932.

Sales in 1932 totaled $249,893,000 and net income equaled $2.32 per share. In 1931 sales were $282,670,000 and net equaled $4.24 per share. Net income was equal to $3.56 per share in 1930, against $3.66 in 1929 and $3.63 in 1928.

Funded debt consists of $3,247,000 purchase money mortgages. There are outstanding 9,750,000 shares of $10 par common stock. Dividends are 60 cents a quarter.

Stockholders' "Increase."

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me the desired information? Stocks have gone up since early spring. When will stockholders get their increase?—Mrs. H. G. K.

Bond Trading Lowest Since Start of Rise

New York, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The bond market ended last week under a gaseous cloud, with prices uncertain and trading activity at its lowest ebb since the start of the 1933 upswing.

Transactions in bonds as well as stocks finished abruptly shortly after noon Friday, when fumes from hidden tear gas bombs drove brokers to the street and caused the closing of the stock exchange for the day. Under a previous ruling of the exchange governors there was no business Saturday, nor will there be on other Saturdays until Sept. 9.

Prices Ease Slightly.

Prices were somewhat soft on Monday, picked up a little on Wednesday, and were generally unchanged on the other three days. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was off two-tenths of a point on the week at 81.1. The lack of enthusiasm was shown by the fact that sales totaled only $47,140,000, par value, against $55,155,000 in the previous five day week of three hour sessions.

There was little to choose from between the various corporate categories. Most of them recorded slight recessions on the average. The secondary rails were under some pressure most of the time, as were some of the more speculative utilities. The industrials, as a whole, gave better account of themselves.

U. S. Financing Gives Cheer.

Followers of the higher grade groups were considerably cheered by the response to the government's long term issue. The heavy oversubscription to this offering of $500,000,000 3¼ per cent was seen as an indication that investors are not now so fearful of inflation as formerly and that confidence in the reëstablishment of industry without the utilization of the drastic currency expansion powers given the President has been growing.

United States government listed securities still continued listlessly and some of these registered small losses. Little importance, however, was attached to the minor fluctuations of this division.

Foreign obligations were mixed. The most active British 5½s, together with French, German and South American issues, were virtually unchanged.

FARM GROUP TO ELECT BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Although the Farmers' National Grain corporation operated at a loss in its fiscal year ending May 31, according to C. E. Huff, president of the organization, stockholders will be informed at the annual meeting Aug. 22 at the Palmer house that prospects indicate a profit for 1933-'34 on the basis of a lower budget and increased volume of business.

Representatives of the 27 regional stockholders will consider the annual report of the officers and will elect a board of directors at the annual meeting.

The program of speakers includes Earl Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association; L. J. Taber, Columbus, O., master of the National Grange; Le Roy Melton, Greenville, Ill., president of the National Equity union, and C. A. Ward, Salina, Kas., president of the Kansas Farmers' union and adviser in the hard winter wheat belt to the agricultural adjustment administration. Representatives of the farm credit and agricultural adjustment administration have been invited to appear on the program.

United Aircraft Earning Gains in Second Quarter

United Aircraft and Transport corporation reports net income for the second quarter of $848,258, equivalent, after preferred dividend requirements, to 35 cents a share on the common stock. In the corresponding period last year net income amounted to $502,861, or 1.5 cents a share.

LETTERS

GRAIN MARKET NEWS.

Fancy Prairie, Ill., July 30.—I want to compliment Mr. Charles Michaels on his very interesting article on the grain and live stock situation in today's TRIBUNE. He has given us so much real information and the article is interesting to read.

We always expect good things from THE TRIBUNE and Mr. Michaels is certainly doing his part to keep up your good name. We have readers of THE TRIBUNE for a good many years and feel that our knowledge of current events and public opinion is hardly complete without seeing what THE TRIBUNE has to say about it.

There have been times when I did not agree with you but on the whole you deserve the name of the World's Greatest Newspaper.

CARL O. MONTGOMERY.

BUTTER AND EGG MENU.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—In connection with your story in THE TRIBUNE this morning, relating to butter and eggs, some of our members have asked if you will correct two of the figures printed therein. In your article, you stated that the surplus of butter was 1,000,000 lbs. and the egg surplus 10,400 cases. Actually, butter holdings totay between 30,000,000 and 35,000,000 lbs. more than last year and eggs total between 30,000,000 and 35,000,000 last year.

I think the confusion arose over the fact that the daily movements of stocks into storage, reported Monday, were 1,000,000 lbs. and 10,400 cases more than last year. Some danger might arise in the speculative public through interpretation of the figures as printed. Right now, our exchange is getting more attention from the speculative public than ever before. You can see, therefore, why our members are anxious to have the statement corrected. Naturally, the bears are more anxious than are the bulls.

The story received a great deal of favorable comment on our floor this morning.

DUDLEY E. MCFADDEN,
Assistant Manager, Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Large Users Seek to Keep Differential.

A fight is looming in the steel industry over the proposed elimination of preferential price schedules. Big consumers of steel are showing increasing opposition to the proposals for abolishing price concessions in the new schedule.

According to the magazine Steel, a deadlock on the preferential price issue is likely to develop in the near future unless a substantial improvement is shown in consumptive demand. Large users of steel have already won a point and will continue to be quoted the Pittsburgh base at the Chicago mills, according to the review. Small users will continue to pay the $2 a ton differential.

Outlook Eases a Point.

The uncertain price outlook, coupled with the more aggressive attitude of labor and the inability of the industry to gauge the full effects of the NRA blanket code, is tending to freeze purchasing and has caused a letdown of 1 per cent in the operating rate, the review finds.

Stability of the industry's price structure is dependent to a great extent on the early adoption of the code, according to the review. In the interim, it adds, more producers are adopting differentials for steel bars and shapes in lots of three tons or less, and are extending these to plates and structural shapes. Differentials have also been put into effect for small orders of railroad spikes and tin plates.

Price Trend Upward.

The price trend generally continues upward. Cold finished steel bars have been raised $5 a ton and further increases are noted in raw materials, principally furnace coke, refractory brick, and manganese ore.

Steel makers are still confident of a fall upturn, based on the increased purchasing power for miscellaneous products, public works, and railroad requirements. The award for 34 war vessels call for about 77,000 tons of steel.

METRO-GOLDWYN PICTURES

August 7th, 1933.

The Board of Directors has declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾% on the Outstanding Preferred Stock of this Company, payable on the 15th day of September, 1933, to Stockholders of Record at the close of business on the 31st day of August, 1933. Checks will be mailed.

Vice-President & Treasurer.

$140.00 NET HIS FIRST WEEK!

This young man was without experience in this business. He had been a bank clerk. His knowledge of making money was confined to the pay-roll checks he had once received at a bank. But he had a few qualities that make men money in this desirable business without respect to their past training. He was courageous and he was willing to do a full day's work every day! Therefore, he received net for his first week's work here $140.00

You can well call this interesting. It should be good news to any man who is serious about permanent success—about doing the things for his family and himself which circumstances in the past few years have prevented. But such incomes are frequently found in this work. E. J. M., for example, just made $46.00 in one day. R. R. made better than $100.00 the last week in July. The week E. J. made over $80.00. N. H. just made over $80.00 in two days. In 3 days J. D. made over $70.00 There are current earnings.

No man invests in this business or buys goods or posts any money at all. We make money for men not to be philanthropic, but because they also make money for us. On this basis, this great business has grown rapidly and solidly. We are interested in you because once we help you become successful, you are an asset to us—but you make far more out of every transaction than we make. You are paid first, promptly, generously—and learn more about this work in a few days than you probably learned about your past business, trade or profession in many months. You may make more money here in your first 6 months than you ever did to make in any one year before.

This does not depend entirely on us. It depends on you. We do not need men to tell us how to transact our business, and this is true not because we are too old or too successful to learn, but because we lead in our line by a wide margin, and the gap between us and others broadens month after month. If you are in earnest and take an interest in a business that pays you well—more and more as time passes—you will then learn what we teach you, and as we teach it.

Look for us when you are ready to prove your ability. Comp. now 47 yrs. old. This is your one opport. in a thous. to learn mech. and work into an imp. pos. in few months. Tell us about yourself. Address A X 55, Tribune.
